The Charleston News.

THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1873.

THE CHARLESTON DAILY NEWS "is designs eled as the newspaper for the publication of "all legal notices. and official advertisements, for the County of Charleston, under the act of February 22d, 1870, entitled an act to regulate the publication of all legal and public "notices."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Both branches of the Alabama Legislature have passed the bill to annex West Florida. -A theatre to cost fifteen million francs and to hold twenty thousand people, and take thirty thousand francs at each representation, is talked of in Paris.

-The New York Commercial Advertises states that Mrs. Southworth has written fortytwo novels! And adds: "Thousands of her readers have died, but she is still alive."

-The attorney-general of Kansas has given an opinion against the constitutionality of the law to "promote the improvement of real estate by the exemption of mortgages and other securities from taxation."

-Felix Pyat, who took part in the con mune of Paris, has been condemned to death by the French courts "par contumace." It is highly probable that M. Pyat, as well as General Fremont, who has been condemned to five years' imprisonment, will treat French jurisdiction and territory with "contumaciam," and give both a wide berth.

-Mr. John Hopkins, of Bultimore, has given money and land to the aggregate value of four million dollars, to found a hospital in that city. He has also provided in his will for the establishment of an educational university, for which he has made a bequest of from four to six millions dollars value. Mr. Hopkins is a bachelor seventy-seven years old, and the richest man in Maryland.

-The benevolent old uncle of the stage has actually turned up in propria persona, in Taunton, Mass. A house there was to be sold vendue, and among the bidders was an unknown man who seemed determined to have the house at any price, and got it. He then called a young man aside and told him was adopted, and the citizens are now rethat he would give him the property. It was thought to be a joke, but the young man's wife being summoned, it turned out that the mysterious old gentleman was her uncle from the West, and that the house was his present to her. Then they all went into the house and had a good time.

-The original Ravels are all alive, but the youngest is more than slaty years old. When this troppe was last in the United States, two young ladies were riding in a car and wished to open the window near them. They failed, and one suggested asking the aid of an old gentleman sitting on the seat next behind them. "Oh, no," responded the other, "don't trouble the old man." To their astonishment this aged individual rose, stepped in the alsle, made a low bow to the young ladles, and then turned a somersault forward and then one backward. After this he made another bow. and then threw up the window. This was Gabriel Ravel, aged seventy.

-It would seem by cable dispatches that the French Assembly has virtually confirmed the exile of the Bonaparte family. Such was the result of an excited debate over Prince Napoleon's petition praying for the restoration of his rights as a citizen and remonstrating against his illiegal expulsion from France. The debate on the subject is said to have been an excited one, and the order of the day was adopted by a vote of 347 to 291. Hitherto President Thiers, though sometimes assuming untenable positions, has been able, when ssary, to retreat in good order, and whether he has been right or wrong his ad- for that service. Instead of this, however, versaries have been uniformly unlucky. It remains to be seen whether the banishment of the Bonapartes (supposing there may be any left worthy the mark) is not calculated to strengthen their cause by exciting sympathy on the ground of unnecessary persecution. The Prince Napoleon, from his antecedents, would not seem to be a man of dangerous capacity, and if any of the rest of the family have even his cleverness it has been carefully concealed from the observation of the world. It is not to be supposed that the large minority which voted against the proscription of the Benapartes have any special fondness for that dynasty or for imperialism, but may perhaps regard the exclusion of citizens from their own country as not exactly the reasonable thing at this day of the world, especially if they have committed no offences against the State, or have no such qualities as would render them dangerous to it. There are many who will interpret such a measure on the part of Thiers's government as a confession that there is still a strong party in France in favor of the empire, though there may really be no one to play the emperor.

-The announcement of the return of Mr. George M. Pullman from Europe, where he has been for the purpose of introducing the Pullman palace cars into that country, is accompanied with the gratifying intelligence that his mission has terminated successfully. arrangements having been completed by which the Midland Railway Company of England is to use them on their lines. The contract is substantially of the same kind as those entered into with railway corporations here. The Pullman Company agree to furnish as many dining-room, drawing-room and sleeping-cars as the demands of the travelling public require, without charge to the road. Their compensation is in the extra fare paid for the use of the cars. The gain of the road is in the free use of the cars, in return for which it guarantees to the company the exclusive right to furnish such cars for fifteen years. It is further stipulated that at the end of a year, should the experiment prove satisfactory, the Midland Railway may furnish one-halt the capital for the construction and management of the cars, and become joint owners with the Pullman Company. The plan goes into effect in the latter part of August or the first of September next. On the London and Liverpool line at its opening the palace cars will first be used. Two night trains and two day trains are all that will be put on at the start. To furnish these eighteen cars will be shipped this summer, and their construction will begin immediately at the company's factory in Detroit, Michigan. The cars are to be similar in pattern to those used in this country, though the construction of the English road, its tunnels and other permanent features require, however, a car one foot narrower and eight inches lower than the American pattern. To give the novelty a fair trial it is arranged that the first trains shall be entirely made up of the American cars. Mr. Pullman expects to be called upon to furnish one hundred cars within a year after the introduction. The contract, it is said, is not at all exclusive, and the other great railways of England are walting the result of the experiment.

The Financial Condition of the City.

This paper had called on the City Council, more than once, to make a plain statement of the actual liabilities of the municipal government, and to say frankly what sums of money have been spent without authority, or in excess of the known appropritions. This course was necessary and of thirty per cent. in the aggregate earnings, proper, because the City Treasurer had presented a statement containing a terrible array of what purported to be municipal liabilities, and because it was currently reported that the expenditures for the year 1873 would largely exceed the income of the

The Council did take up the matter, and the joint Committee of Ways and Means and of Accounts made their report on Tues day night. In that report they say that they have examined "a paper issued from "the treasury and purporting to be an ad-"dendum, (not ordinance,) and statement "of receipts and expenditures," and find them "inaccurate in many respects." Du ring the discussion which followed the reading of the report, Alderman Pelzer (whose remarks were incorrectly reported in THE News of yesterday) pointed out two instances in which the paper presented by the treasurer conveyed an erroneous idea to the public. The treasurer put down, amongst the liabilities of the city, a sum of $95,690 46, for interest on city stock due January 1, 1873; the treasurer likewise gave $506,000 as the amount of city stock due and falling due in 1873. Alderman Pelzer explained that, according to custom, the interest for the last quarter of 1872, due January 1, 1873, was provided for in the appropriations of 1873, and that the present Council had already paid four quarters' interest out of the appropriations of 1872. This, we understand, was the course taken by the Clark and Pillsbury administrations, and their successors are not guilty of any impropriety in declining to saddle five quarters' interest upon a single year. As to the city stock, Alderman Pelzer explained that the general sinking fund held $159,860, and the Orphauhouse and other funds $9560 of the stock due and falling due this year-leaving a balance of $336,580, instead of $506,000. These examples illustrate the "inaccurate" character of the papers which the committee

We willingly accept the report of the joint committee of Council as a candid and truthful reply to the questions which this paper has asked. The committee have scrutinized the accounts, as we cannot pretend to do, and their assurance that the city is financially sound, and that the prospect is exceedingly bright, will be both welcome and cheering to those citizens who had feared to find a skeleton in the municipal cupboard. The City Council are doing their best, and we do not desire to throw any "wet blanket" on their efforts, even in this sultry weather.

The Perils of the Sea.

The appalling disaster which has overtaken the White Star Line steamer Atlantic will not surprise the persons of experience who have watched, with increasing alarm, the rivalry between the ocean steamship lines, and the systematic disregard, in building new vessels, of any other consideration than the securing of a high rate of speed. One would think that the unavoidable perils of ocean travel would induce the greatest care in constructing and running steamships the preservation of due proportions in measurements is neglected, and, in the worst weather, the mail steamers are driven ahead without any heed to the result.

Strangely enough the White Star Line has lately been singled out as the most uncertain of the companies engaged in the ocean business. A correspondent of the New York Graphic, less than two weeks ago, said that when ships, "as at present constructed are "crowded, something must break before a "great while." The concluding sentences of the same letter are as follows:

It is no secret, and it is scarcely denied, that they do crowd the laman and White Star ships. There has been and is a flerce rivalry between the ships of these lines. They are what are called "wet" ships, from the fact of their becalled "well" salps, from the fact of their beling long and narrow, and equippe d with powerful machinery. Their models tell the story.
They are built to run, and they are run simply for the glory of who gets there first, and without any regard to salety of the passengers.
During the past winter there has been a sharp race between several of the competing lines, and in party every insigned the ships have and, in nearly every instance the ships have been delayed, machinery has given way under the strain, and in some instances lives have been lost. The facts are carefully kept from the public, and to the public everything ap-pears to be lovely. Keep your eye upon these steamers, and you will have a big sensation to llustrate before long-and from sketches not taken on the spot. The "big sensation" has, indeed, come. More than seven hundred lives sacrificed to the frenzy for rapid travelling !

Other correspondents of the Graphic wrote in the same strain. They cited the experience of the Collins line captain "who never "drove his steamer hard, in rough weather. "unless he knew there was a Conarder righ "behind him, and it wouldn't do to let her "beat;" of the Baltic which sailed from New York with a broken propeller; of the Hansa and her fifty days' trip; of the captain of a mail steamer who, meeting a disabled and almost sinking rival, refused to tow her two hundred miles, saying that his orders were "to save life, but never mind the property "and, above all, lose no time by towing ships "of another line." The correspondents agreed in declaring that the crack lines of "floating palaces" are too narrow for their length, that they are too long to cover two ordinary seas to advantage, and too short to ride safely, over three; that they are "wet" and uncomfortable. There are some lines which are regarded as safe, but the large majority think more of retaining their con tract for carrying the mails than of securing the lives of their passengers.

Whether any remedy can be found for the rashness of the ocean steamship companies it is difficult to say. The passenger who longs for a watery grave has a right to gratify his fancy. But it should be insisted on that mer and women, the throng of pleasure seekers, shall not be inveigled into taking a passage aboard of floating rat-traps, while believing that they are as safe as careful construction and prudent management can make them. It is idle to say that there is nobody to blame. The death of the seven hundred presses hard on some consciencestricken wretch this day.

The Northeastern Railroad

The annual report of the President of the Northeastern Railroad Company, printed elsewhere, shows that there is an increase that the road and equipment are in excellent condition, and that there has been no serious accident during the year. These gratifying results are a practical evidence of the skill and judgment with which the road is managed by President Ravenel and Superintendent Solomons, and their subordi-

No Joke!

The Wilmington Journal takes the jokes of THE NEWS about the "Noth Kerlina" pines in very good part, but hints that we know less than we think we do about the "benighted regions" with which the Journal is familiar. In such a case, "where "ignorance is bliss" 'cis exceeding folly to be wise, neighbor!

Pardoning the Ku-Klux.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune thinks that the almost daily pardon of some prisoner convicted of Ku-Kluxism, and the notice that has been served on witnesses in North Carolina excasing them from attendance on the Spring term of the Court, lead to the hope and belief that the country has nearly heard the last of "Southern conspiracies against peace "and good order." As there have been no "conspiracies" of such a nature, the correspondent indulges in no rash expectation.

The same correspondent says that "Southern men believe that nothing can do so "much to restore good feeling in certain "portions of the Southern States as Execu-"tive leniency towards the Ku-Klux conspira-"tors." We do ask for such clemency; because the Ku-Klux prisoners were tried and condemned as dark "conspirators," while, in truth, most of them were innocent, and the rest were guilty of crimes which only the State courts had any business with. It suited the North to treat the South as still "contumacions," and the Ku-Klux prisoners were, therefore, hunted down without mercy. As they have served their purpose, we shall be glad to see them pardoned. That will prove that President Grant is disposed to be just, when there is nothing to be gained by a contrary course.

The "good "feeling" which the Tribune man expects will not come until the Northern Republicans are ready to admit that Southerners, and ex-Confederates, can be as honest and patriotic as they. It tires one to hold out the hand too long, even to a quondam foe.

Manufactures.

The advance sheets of the census reports on manufactures contain a vast amount of useful and interesting statistics, showing the progress of industrial pursuits in the United States. These reports are exclusive of the products of the soil, the mines, the fisheries, the railroad and canal business. We note some of the great classes of manufactures in their order of precedence: Iron and its annual products, $628,303,885; cotton, worsted and woollen, $611,495,177; flouring and grist mills, $444,985,143; leather and its products, $345,439,730; lumber, $252,339. 029; sugar and molasses, $119,789,097; liquors, distilled, malt and vinous, $94,123,-014; tobacco, cigars and snuff, $71,762.044. The total manufactured products of the United States for the last census year reach the amazing sum of $4,232,326,442. The annual production of printing paper is $25,000,000, of writing paper $9,000,000; and book-binding stands at $14,000,000. And all this takes no account of the great importations of stationery and books. Agricultural implements make a good showing of $52,066,875, contrasting markedly with ship-building material and repairs, which foot up only $17,910,328. Of jewelry the domestic production is $22,104,032. The patent medicine traffic, which some people thought to be on the decline, still asserts its power over human credulity by the round figures $16,000,000.

The Slave Trade in the East.

The anti-slavery expedition, sent from England to Zanzibar under the direction of Sir Bartle Frere, has entirely falled. A treaty existing between Great Britain and the Sultan of Zanzibar permits the slave trade within certain limits, and it was the purpose of the British envoy to secure the Sultan's assent to a new treaty, which would have bound him to abolish the traffic altogether. After a good deal of equivocating, the Sultan finally rejected all proposals to modify, in any respect, the treaty of 1845, saying that as slavery is permitted by the Koran he could not think of placing himself in opposition to that sacred book; besides which, to abolish the present system would be to destroy a very lucrative traffic, and perhaps lead to insurrection and
