of grim humoriast the Florida editor tells of the death of "another distin-guished disizen by means of the mecha-nical power in the jaws of the sportive alligator." He says: "The deceased was a viotim of mis-placed confidence. It does not do to place too much dependence upon the re-spect and affection of alligators. The open-hearted man labely caught one of these playful and plassing creatures and cultivated his acquaintance with loving assiduity. He gave him chunks of beef on his best pitch-fork and threw him hams from his own larder. Growing in intimacy, he antered his premises to pat the back of the animal. A twinkle of the eye, a rumple of the hide, a smile, a smap; a gulp, and our friend departed to return no more. Noi noi indeed! It does not do to retur moon the loving na-ture of a Floride alligator."

The way John Stuart Mill proposed to the young lady who, eventually became his wife, is "strange but true." "I wish I bad yous head, Mr. Mill," said the lady, on an occasion when that gentleman had solved for her a knotty point point.

'And I wish I had your heart," replied Mr. Mill. "Well," said the lady, "since your head and my heart agree so well, I am willing that we should go into partnership.

And so it was.

Two young princes, the sons of Arch-duke Charles of Austria, had a warm dis-pute in the presence of no less a person than that of the august Emperor him-self. Greatly excited, one said to the other: "You are the greatest ass in Vien-na." Highly offended at a quarrel in his presence, the Emperor interrupted them, saying, with indignation, "Come, come, young gentlemen, you forget that I am Extraordinary circumstance it was which happened in Farmington, Me., last week. As a inneral procession was on its way to the cemetery, a house by the roadside was seen to be on fire. Instantly all the mourners slighted and proceeded to extinguish the flames, and this accomplished, they passed again to the order of the day.
