

Plant Less Cotton.—Our farmers are every day engaged in hauling away a quantity of beans to plant a good crop of cotton, and for this they are giving great heed. This is a most absurd, nonsensical and unwise course, and if persisted in, will lead to utter bankruptcy and poverty. A farmer stands a very poor chance of success, unless he raises enough on his place to feed himself and family and hands. The price of cotton is uncertain, and cannot be "counted on" for the settlement of debts, and every one who depends upon it will be subject to reflection from his factors for negligence and for delay. It is a perfect piece of arrant folly, and a most wonderful lack of common sense to plant too largely in cotton. If the majority of our citizens do so, the roads will be hot with deputy sheriffs, riding around through the country, enforcing liens. And then what little is left will go to pay the lawyers and others—those good servants of the people, who would rather see "justice done," even if they "got no pay." Plant something to eat, gentlemen, and do not depend upon the North and West for your ordinary rations. The old style of scratching the hills with a plow and doing nothing has passed. Cotton must go by the board, if the past is a true index of the future. Otherwise we shall all starve.—Abbeville Medium.

Bishop Cox, of New York, says the natives of Hayti have a cannibal feast once a year, and that they fatten children for the horrid banquet, as we do Christmas geese and turkeys.
