siding a couple of miles from town, was awakened last Monday night by the violent and repeated ringing of a bell, which was suspended from an inverted hoop on his front gate. At first, he was at a loss to distinguish in the dark what caused the ringing, but soon ascertained that it was done by a horse, who had seized the bell in his mouth, and was trying in this way to attract the attention of the inmates of the house. The horse had been ridden to our friend's house, a few nights previous, by a colored man, who on that occasion rang the bell, and, after completing his business with the compant of the house, watered his horse in the yard. It is supposed that thirst prompted the horse to revisit the premises Monday night, and secure attention to his ways hyperises. secure attention to his wants by ringing

A villain arraigned for highway rob-bery put in a plea that he merely borrowed the money from his accuser. "Borrowed the money!" exclaimed the district attorney; "borrowed the money! How did you induce him to lend it to you?" "Well, Tarled moral sussion at first, but finally had to knock him down and hold a pistol to his ear." This reply prejudiced the jury against the prisoner.
