LONDON, June 10.—The Times publishes a despatch from Berlin, giving the probable action of the Congress which will assemble at Brussels next month to consider the subject of international rights in time of war. The Times' correspondent says: The Congress will codify the recognized usages of international law in so far as they affect the actual conduct of war. A new code is to be enacted in the form of an international treaty, which promises to become the first law common to the whole civilized world. The draft of a treaty, which is to be submitted to the Congress, has been prepared. It contains seventy-six clauses, which state in detail the rights and obligations of belligerents from the mutual claims of the belligerent States down to relations of those States to private individuals. They also specify what classes of arms shall be legitimately used in war, and make regulations for the treatment of prisoners.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The Senate to-night passed the moiety bill, after a discussion of three days. As passed, the bill provides that books and papers may be examined under order of court, the defendant or his agent being present, and the owner of the books to have the custody thereof. During the examination they are subject to the order of the court. The penalty for any false invoice is a fine not exceeding $5,000 or less than $50, or imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both, and forfeiture of the package containing the particular item to which such fraudulent invoice may relate. A provision of the bill is that suits or actions commenced on forfeitures incurred previous to May 1, 1874, are not affected by it, so that informers who have instituted proceedings prior to that time will obtain their moiety, but it repeals all moiety acts, and provides that all fines, &c., shall be paid into the national treasury. This bill passed by a vote of 38 to 3, the negative votes being Flanagan, Peas and Howe. Quite a number were opposed to several features of the bill, on the ground that they did relate to the abuse of moiety, or the improper seizure of books and papers, but voted for it as a whole in order to get rid of spies and informers' fees.

How sad it is to have one's bright anticipations quenched in a night, was discovered by a young Englishman the other evening. He determined to attend a masked ball, and with genial discrimination chose to do it in the character of a monkey. The night was fine though cold, and he was of a frugal mind; so, instead of taking a carriage, he set out to walk in costume to the ball, two blocks off. Cheerfully walking along in the habit of his forefathers, he was suddenly descried by two immense dogs, which, not able calmly to endure the sight of a monster of so frightful a mien, immediately bounced after him. The poor young man scurried, and with great presence of mind frantically climbed a high board fence, and there on the sharp edge of the same, in the cool night air, he reposed for two hours while the big dogs beneath sat serenading him and the moon, and the dance went gayly on in that ball-room so near and yet so far.

Louisiana is afflicted beyond all precedent. Drought is visiting those portions of the State that are out of the reach of the floods. So that the country presents the painful anomaly of being dried up where it has not been drowned out. It is evident that the demand for aid is most imperative and heart-rending.

While Vasquez, the bandit, was in jail at Los Angeles, Cal., several young women, worshippers of the blood and thunder heroes of ten cent novels, used to call and leave bouquets for the caged bandit, and the jailor had sense enough to appropriate them to his own use.
