Time's Vindication.

In March, 1870, a number of the editors and proprietors of Conservative journals in this State met in Colambia and unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That this conference re-cognizes the legal sight of all the citi-zens of the State, irrespective of color, to the suffrage. Resolved, That this conference recognizes the legal right of all the citizens of the State, irrespective of color or previous condition, to hold officesubject only to personal qualification and fitness.

Resolved, That, in the judgment of this conference, a convention of the people of the State opposed to Radi-calism and in favor of good and honest government should be held in Colum-bia, at some convenient time, for the purpose of nominating a State ticket which, while assuring equal and exact justice to all, will afford some degree of security, prosperity and good government.

This action of the Conservative editors of the State was characterized by the Republican journals as a game of seven up-seven being falsely alleged Aiken has our heartiest sympathies, by them as the number of those who participated in it. But worse than their slanders were the distruct and bitterness of others who did not truly discern the signs of the times, and condemned these resolutions as unwise concessions. Time has vindicated the wisdom of the line of action then initiated, which led to the Union Reform movement in 1870, which prevented an 1874. says: unnecessary and hopeless struggle for political power in 1872, and which has finally culminated in such an approach to each other of the better class of Republicans and the thoughtful Conservstives; as made possible the campaign through which we have passed, conducted simply in the interests of good the public funds. The fruits of this campaign have not yet been fully ascertained, but the probability is, that the character of the Legislature has been materially changed for the better. and certainly the lesson has been taught at last, that the colored people feel that they have the right to separate themselves from the regular organization of their party, and dare to do it for good cause. The attitude of the Conservatives of South Carolina more than four years ago, as a contemporary well auggests, is substantially the same as that now maintained by the Democrats and Conservatives of the whole country, and standing upon which they have recently gained the splendid successes with the praise of which the country is yet ringing.

The spirit of justice, the loyalty to right, the hatred of wrong, the love of not more characteristic of her conservative people than the moderation. good sense and foresight which, in extremity, have moved them to the adoption and advocacy of a policy which has been and is the harbinger of an era of assured peace, tranquillity and wide-spread prosperity. The sensitiveness which discerns danger and trouble is not inconsistent with the courage which meets the one and the skill which averts the other.

the privilege, and yet seeing nothing. His idea is to take it away, reconstruct or remove the stand, take from visitors or remove the stand, take from visitors ning, between the two brothers-in law only the money necessary for entrance, Fallman and Ward. It was agreed on and depend for support upon the all hands that it was shocking bad popular appreciation of the Fair and abooting—a disortedit to Washoe. At last a Pioche man bantered a Comthe interest universally felt in fine stock man, whom he knew to be a good stock and speed running. Men everywhere dislike extras, but everywhere wish to enjoy themselves and bring their families into pleasant reunion with their friends in the State. The whole idea of Colonel Aiken is to popularize the institution, by making it reasonably cheap, by infusing fresh spirit into it, and by bringing its merits home to the business and bosoms of the people. I'here is no doubt that if man can do it, the difficulties under which it labors at prosent will be removed by the zeal, energy, intelligence and foresight of the new President. He will address himself immediately to a plan by which it may be temporarily relieved and saved, and then directly bring its claims before the people, and the various agricultural societics and granges in the State. In this good work, Col.

and we commend in advance the measures which he will institute for the great and useful objects which he has so warmly taken in hand.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE SPARTAN-BURG AND ASHEVILLE RAILROAD. - A letter from Secretary A. C. Kauffman, dated Asheville, N. C. November 8,

If there be one who still disbelieves that the Spartanburg and Asheville Railroad is in process of construction, (though I question if any such can be found,) advice from Spartanburg to Asheville, via the Howard's Gap Road, will speedily remove this "lingering doubt." The long avenues of cleared land through the forest, ready for the ducted simply in the interests of good pick and shovel, the sharp stroke of government and honest expenditure of the axemen still clearing, the graded bed, the blasted rock, the "outs and fills," show that the contractors are in earnest, and that this road is rapidly becoming an entity. Considering the short time the road has been under contract, (only two months.) the difficulty of thoroughly organizing a force of this kind, &c., the amount of work done is really surprising. The railcoad contractor oftentimes finds as much trouble in organizing his corps as the general does in disciplining an army of recruits. Fortunately, this company has, as its chief contractor, Mr. E. Olayton, an experienced hand in railroad work, and whose admirable dis-cipline shows that he understands the management of men. Everything near him beams with activity and life. There are no drones around his hive.

Driving up to Mr. Clayton's quar-ters on Windmill Hill, about fifteen miles from Spartanburg, in company with Col. Thad. Coleman, the efficient Chief Engineer of the company, we found several new log cabins, CODstructed in a very primitive style, and in the smallest of them, the central independence which have brought figure of the group, stands the lodge upon this State the soubrique of the of our venerable friend. I use the stormy petrel in American politics, are term venerable with some caution; for, while Mr. Clayton admits that he is a 2.353. man of large experience, he would 2,369. not, I am sure, submit to the insinua- son, R. G. Howard, W. A. Hayne, A. tion that he is a man of years. (One H. Howard. prominent feature in Mr. Clayton's DARLINGTO connection with this road must not be overlooked. He is laboring to com-plete it not simply as a matter of dollars and cents, but to gratify, as he says, the ambition of his life.) The following brief sketch, hastily made up by Chiof Engineer Coleman, will give some idea of the status of the work: "Messers. Corpening, Fortune 1,475. Lieutenant-Governor-R. H.

coutly, at a saloon on the Divide, some men were discussing the shooting af-fray which occurred during the mornshot with a pistel, to go out in the back yard with him and do some shooting, just to show the "boys" how it was done. In the saloon was a box of eggs, and what the Piocher proposed was that each shoot two oggs off the bare head of the other at the distauce of ten paces, the one missing to treat the crowd. The Comstocker was bound not to be bloffed by a man from the other end of the State; so to the back yard all hands adjourned. Each man used his own six-shooter. The Comstocker first "busted" his egg on the top of the Piocher's head, exploit was loudly applauded by all present. It was then the Piocher's turn to shoot, and an egg was produced to be placed upon the head of the Comstocker, but when he removed his hat there was a great laugh, for the top of his head was as smooth as a billiard ball. For full ten minutes all bands tried in vain to make an egg stand on his head. It couldn't be done. The Procher then taunted the Comstocker with having gone into the arrangement knowing that be way safe. The latter told him to set up his egg and it was all right; he was there. The Piocher went into the saloon, and a moment after came out with a small handful of flour, which he dabbed upon the head of the Comstocker, and then triumphantly planted in it his egg, fell back ten steps, and then knocked it off. The Comstocker then told him to set up his second egg and shoot at it, as he didn't want to have his head chalked twice during the game. This was done, and the wreck of a second egg streamed over the Comstocker's pate. The Piocher now stood out with his last egg on his head. The Comstocker raised his pistol and fired. The Piocher bounded a yard into the air, and the egg bounced whole from his head. "I've lost," said the Comstocker. "Let's all come up and drink. By a slip I've put haif the width of my bullet through the top of his left ear." And so it proved upon measurement.

A singular prison romance has just been disclosed in the Canadian Penitentiary at Kingston, where Elizabeth Jones has for six years been confined for the murder of her consin, seutence having been pronounced on her own confession. Her father was executed for the same orime, notwithstanding the declaration of the girl that she alone had committed the deed, and that he was not guilty-indeed, knew nothing of the murder. She has now admitted-what hus always been generally believed by the public, but by herself strenuously denied-that he father was the murderer, and that she had accused herself of his crime to shield him, and at his desire. She BUGGIES, took no part in the crime, and was not aware of its commission till nor father told her he had done it, and implored her to save him, a task which she de votedly attempted and persisted in after it was hopeless.

If Susan is really possessed of matchless eloquence, how is it that, with the additional advantage of forty-seven leap years, during which her match-less eloquence was licensed to woo and win, she has never been able to induce one single, solitary man to join her in swapping her lounge for a double bedstead?
