We Reap What We Sow.

For pleasure or pain, for weal or for woe, 'Tis the law of our being—we reap what we

We may try to evade them-may do what But our acts, like our shadows, will follow us still. The world is a wonderful chemist, be sure, And detects in a moment the base or the pure;

We may beast of our claims to genius or birth,
But the world takes a man for just what he's worth.

We start in the race for fortune or fame, And then when we fall the world bears the blame; But nine times in ten, is plain to be seen, There's a "sorew somewhere loose" in the human machine.

Are you wearied and worn in this hard earthly strife? Do you yearn for affection to sweeten your life?

We are proud of our mansions of mortar and stone, In its garden are flowers from every zone, But the beautiful graces that blossom within, Grow shriveled and die in the Upas of sin.

youth; But at last it shines out as a "hand on the wall,"
For the world has its debt and credit of all.

The report of the Secretary of the ceipts being, exclusive of loans, $289,-478,759.06. After deducting unavailable balances with the depositaries, the total available cash was, including the British Government avails, and the excess of certificates and legal tenders, &c., $453,365,668.59. After the total expenditures, a net surplus was left at the end of the year of $2,344,882 30. During the months of July, August and September, bonds to the extent of $12,936,450 were purchased for the sinking fund account.

Some remarkable acquisitions have lately been made by the Berlin Mu-seum. They consist of a collection of beautiful little terra cotta figures from the excavations now in progress at Tanagra, in Bœotia. It appears that these treasures were first brought to light a few months ago by a mere chance, which disclosed the existence of a series of subterraneau grottoes containing funeral urns and stone cofcontaining funeral urns and stone cof-fins. Many of the latter, on being opened, were found to be the recepta-cles of various ebjects, formerly be-longing to the deceased, and reverently laid beside his remains. They are for the most part—anch of them, at least, as have withstood the injuries of time were beset by a mania for dyeing their hair red, and that the fashionable wear of the day was pink over light blue. One lady has twisted her hair into the shape of a towering pyramid, on the very top of which is perched, quite in the modern style, a broad conical hat, not European, however, but Chinese in form. Some of the ladies hold a fan, others a flower or a fruit in one hand, others are sitting, the hands folded under the peplos, and one foot daintily peeping out from the edge of the skirt. Another is entirely disrobed and standing evidently as a model for the artist, whose work is literally as perfect as if he had just finished it on the very morning of your visit to the Museum. A sitting boy with fair hair and blue eyes is also a charming work and in perfect preservation. Two of the groups are carricatures, representing the one a gentleman under the hair-dresser's hands, and the other a pastry cook making cakes.

A New Enterprise.—For me no-thing is more interesting than to see a man in the first intense strain of a new Remember this great truth has often been enterprise; it may be a new cider-mill; Remember this great truth has eften been proved, we must make ourselves lovable would we be loved.

Though life mayappear as a desolate track Yet the bread that we cast on the waters come back,

This law was enacted by Heaven above, That like attracts like and love begets love. We are proud of our mansions of mortar regard to the accomplishment of his regard to the accomplishment of his own supreme design. During a certain time, the stars in their courses within,
Grow shriveled and die in the Upas of sin.
We make ourselves heroes and martyrs for all its weight against his tottering We make ourselves heroes and martyrs for gold

Till health becomes broken and youth becomes old;
Ahl did we the same for the beautiful love, Our lives might be music for angels above. We reap what we sow—oh, wonderful truth!
A truth hard to learn in the day of our youth;
But at last it shines out as a "hand on the content on the laboration of his when he sees another and younger personnel." when he sees another and younger per-son starting his cider-mill, with the old, outworn enthusiasm, he looks on with the same half-sympathetic, half-[Scribner's for December.
