It had three distinct runs upon it, and an institution which can stand up under such a clamor by the depositors as was set up when the investigation was begun, must have a remarkably sound management and a strong foundation. The Commissioners saythat heart-rending appeals from the depositors are constantly being made, many of whom cannot understand where their money has gone. Moreover, the Commissioners stand with resignations in hand; but their resignations cannot be accepted, according to the Attorney-General. The only way they can retire from their Commissionerships is through a chancery court. The Commissioners are anxious to be rolived; but they hold offices, which, unlike most other governmental positions, there is a difficulty in abandoning.

Lowpos, April 12.—In the House of Commons, to-day, Disraeli stated that there had been great misapprehension and exaggeration in the Frussian-Belgium matter. The Prussian Belgium was not a menace. It was only a remonstrance; and as no rejoinder had been made to Belgium's answer, he believed the question was concluded. Germany had showed her cordiality for England by communicating to her the correspondence. In conclusion, Mr. Disraeli declared that were Belgium's neutrality really threatened, her Majesty's Government was prepared to do its duty to the sovereign, and would into fear to meet Parliament.
