Evarts announced that the defence had rested. Beach rose and said that it was due to his side to state that they made no objection to the other side producing Mrs. Tilton on this suit, and would waive all objections, and interpose no barrier to it, although she was an incompetent witness under the statute. Then they consented, on their part, that the other side could use Mrs. Tilton as a witness, if they desired to do so.

Evarts said it had never been a serious question with them whether Mrs. Tilton would be a witness, as they knew the law was against it. Judge Neilson said there was no question about the admissibility of the other side to offer this lady as a witness. It would be a very trying position for her to be placed in, and on the whole he was glad that the lady was not offered as a witness.

Judge Wm. D. Kelly, of Pennsylvania, returned from a six weeks' tour in the South to-day, and bears most emphatic testimony against the Southern policy of his own party in the late Congress.

When asked to-night what he thought of the political condition of the South, he used these words: "The vote I most regret, during my fourteen years of service in Congress, is that which I cast last winter in favor of the 'iron bill'."

He further said, that "so far as his observation went, during his extended tour, there was no more necessity for the use of Federal military force than there is in Pennsylvania or Ohio." He talked with Confederate soldiers, with Northern men, negroes, carpet-baggers and travelers, and he was surprised at the good feeling existing on all sides.

He said he should have been taken little stock in the Southern outrages, and particularly if they are reported as occurring in the sections he visited. He gave an example of the feeling in the South by relating what he himself saw in Augusta, being himself unknown. He happened to be in that city on the day chosen for decorating the graves of the Confederate dead. He remained and observed closely the proceedings. A long procession marched through the city, with engines, &c., it being treated as a general holiday. Judge Kelly observed the significant fact that the whole city, men and women, were gathered for the purpose of paying tribute to the memory of the dead Confederate soldiers. The principal music on the occasion was furnished by the band belonging to a regular United States Infantry regiment.

There were no taunts, no insults, no complaints, no appearance of ill feeling anywhere visible. While absent, Judge Kelly spent from two days to a week in each of the following cities, stopping frequently at places of less consequence, viz: Richmond, Charleston, Columbia, Savannah, Atlanta, Augusta and Aiken. The most of his time was spent in Florida. He says, so far as he saw, and he went with his eyes and ears open, there was no feeling of fear or distrust on the part of the colored people, and he could not, for the life of him, see what use there was for force bills. He was very glad to have made the trip, for it has enabled him to understand the condition of the South better than he has ever understood it before. He said it was not the Ku Klux that was ruining the South; nor was their unhappy condition to be attributed to the hatred by the Southern people of the people of the North; nor was any political question involved. He thinks the whole trouble in the South arises from financial and industry causes, and he believes that the South will not improve and advance until the Forty-fourth Congress repeals the financial legislation of the Forty-third. Until the industries of the country is revived, and we are forced to live within our income, the South will grow worse instead of better. As matters are going now, the Judge thinks, not only that the South and South-west will be involved in ruin, but the country itself will be hopelessly ruined. The treasury, he thinks, is already empty. Work is stopping in the navy yards, on public works, buildings, &c., for the money is run out; the receipts are not equal to the expenditures, and a day of settlement is not far off. He was asked how long the treasury would hold out, and he answered that unless there is an improvement in the customs and internal revenue receipts, the treasury will be empty by September next. Judge Kelly called on Secretary Bristow, and had a long talk on financial matters, but he did not succeed in obtaining any new information from the Secretary. The Judge asked him how soon he was to begin to buy currency again. The Secretary did not seem to like that way of stating it, but Judge Kelly thought that he had used the right term. He did not think the Secretary was selling gold, but was buying currency, which is necessary for daily use. He told the Secretary that the South, the West and the whole country would never recover while an effort was being made to bring about specie payments by contracting the currency.

THE CYCLONE.—Lieut. Harry Calvert, who was sent out by the United States Signal Service to explore the track of the terrible tornado which recently devastated portions of Georgia and South Carolina, and to obtain all information connected therewith, passed through Augusta, on Wednesday last. He reports that there were two distinct cyclones, both starting in Harris County, Georgia. One swept along in an almost direct line from that County, passed over Camak, near Thomson, through Columbia County, and crossed the Savannah River at or near Fury's Ferry. The other was that which destroyed so much property in Richmond County, and passed over into South Carolina at the lower edge of the County. Lieut. Calvert has come over to South Carolina to follow in the track of the two cyclones through this State.

Ex-Gov. English, of Connecticut, who has just returned from his tour of the South, says of the people of Texas that "they have seemingly forgotten that there ever was a war, and from every spot and expression, I glean the information that they welcome anybody who will come here to better their condition, regardless of any political association. It is a very rare thing for them to refer to a man's politics; not half so much as we in New England do."

Cortina, who is said by the Mexican authorities to be such an honest man, while Mayor of Matamoros and Governor of the State of Tamaulipas, keeps 500 desperadoes near his residence, armed to the teeth, and only the other day threatened to make a raid on Brownsville to kill certain parties who are obnoxious to him. Our Government is aware of this; but then it is only Southern territory which is threatened.

THE BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

The members of the Baptist denomination in the South have proposed to place their general theological seminary at Louisville, Ky. A public meeting was recently held at Louisville to express concurrence in the selection. Ministers of other denominations took part in the proceedings. The Baptists of Kentucky intend to raise $300,000 of the desired $500,000 for the endowment of the seminary. The citizens of Louisville are to give $50,000 of the amount. Their contributions are to be used for the formation of a library, which will be open to members of other denominations in the city.

A gentleman who has resided for some time in the State of Tamaulipas, Mexico, where the border raiders come from, stated to a reporter of the New Orleans Times recently, that Cortina and Canales, the Greaser-buffers, in his opinion, have been aided and abetted by parties at Washington, who furnish them with money for their marauding expeditions into Texas. Both of these leaders, he says, have been in correspondence with United States citizens, and he knows that they have had a sudden accession of funds. He thinks there is an attempt made to originate a war between the republics by parties who expect to derive profit from the operations.

Accounts from the frontier along the Rio Grande, above Brownsville, represent that the Mexican raiders are very active. They have committed several murders of American citizens, and there has been one sharp skirmish at Lajuna. The people are talking war, and the prospect is that fighting will be general if the Government of the United States or Mexico does not interfere.
