Attend the True Event."

VOLUME XI—NUMBER 667

HON. REVERDY JOHNSON ON THE THIRD TERM.—A pungent and conclusive letter from Hon. Reverdy Johnson to the New York Herald, commenting upon Gen. Grant's third term letter, has been published. While Mr. Johnson concedes that a constitutional prohibition against a third term does not exist, he maintains that this is no proof that the usage of prohibition is not and should not be considered as conclusive. He holds that long and uninterrupted usage in a Government like ours cannot safely be disregarded. He illustrates his position by an allusion to the present condition of the veto power in England, which, by an ancient law of the realm, the crown possesses, and which Mr. Justice Blackstone says "is a most important and, indeed, indispensable part of the royal prerogative." Yet this power, says Mr. Johnson, has not been exercised since 1692; and has so fallen into disuse that its exercise by the crown would produce a fearful ferment in the kingdom. Thus is shown in that representative and law-abiding country the conclusive force and effect of usage. The tradition against a third term is and ought to be as much a precedent here as the tradition against the veto power in England. Every Chief Magistrate of the United States since the days of Washington has recognized the force of his example, and not one of them ever dreamed of a third term. Mr. Johnson does not think it probable that President Grant will be renominated or re-elected a third term. There are many who believe that if the agitation of the question should lead to a one-term amendment to the Constitution it would not have been an unmixed evil.

Three English steamers are at Galveston, loading with cattle for England. This is a new outlet, and may become one of immense importance to the South. When Georgia and South Carolina were British colonies, cattle and beef were sent from Savannah and Charleston to London. In recent times, King Cotton has ruined the stock raising business temporarily in the best climate on the continent for that industry—a mistake that will be remedied some of these days.

The German infantry force of 1,200,000 men will be called out to practice with the new Mauser rifle. The artillery is to have the improved Krupp gun. When this vast army pulls trigger in earnest, there will be rivers of some kind of blood. The whole army, both infantry and artillery, will have their new weapons in 1877, about the time Prince Bismarck will probably think it necessary to cross over into France.
