NEW YORK, June 7.—A despatch from Pottsville says: It is the general belief among the coal operators and other well-informed citizens that the miners' strike will end within a fortnight at farthest, and probably not outlast the present week. The final surrender of men will not be simultaneous, but one colliery after another will find enough ready to abandon the Union to begin operations. To protect them, the assistance of troops will be needed until the strike is definitely abandoned. The loss to Schuylkill County alone, from five months' suspension of all mining operations, is estimated at $10,000,000, of which sum the men lose $5,000,000 in wages. If they should carry their point, they could not make up this loss by the difference between the old and the proposed new wages in four years.

The negro worked upon an adjoining place, and came to the house early in the night, when no one was at home but the two sisters and their little brother, who tried unsuccessfully to kill the negro with an axe. The negro locked the doors and threatened the lives of the girls with a pistol, committed the double crime and took to the woods. Jordan Jones, the negro arrested, was carried back for identification.

WILKESBARRE, June 9.—A secret meeting of miners was held here yesterday, and to-day it has leaked out that they discussed the question whether they should continue to fight both Mr. Parrish and Mr. Gowan, and a strong feeling was manifested in favor of going to work for Parrish and sending aid to the Schuylkill men that they might continue the fight against Gowan, but the leaders were opposed to it. To-day Mr. Parrish had bills posted, announcing that work would be resumed in the Diamond shaft, near Wilkesbarre, to-morrow, and all who desired to go in should let him know. Fifteen men only have applied. The posters created considerable excitement among the miners, and they threaten to prevent the resumption of work by force, if persuasion fails. Parrish is in earnest, and will have the men protected to work.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The grand jury of the United States Circuit Court, to-day, found indictments against Horace B. Clafin, of the well-known dry goods house of H. B. Clafin & Co., and Wm. H. Talcott, silk dealer of that firm, for complicity in the recent silk smuggling frauds. There are three indictments against Talcott, charging him with receiving and concealing smuggled silks; three indictments found against H. B. Clafin & Co., the first of which contains four counts, charging them with concealing six cases of smuggled silk goods, valued at $30,000, on the 21st of April, 1873; the second indictment contains sixteen counts and charges them with various times during the years 1872 and 1873 receiving and concealing quantities of valuable silks; the third indictment contains twenty-eight counts, charging them with having received and sold large quantities of silks, well knowing them to have been imported into the United States contrary to law. NEW YORK, June 10.—Capt. Cooper, of the steamer State of Georgia, which arrived here this morning, makes the following statement: June 5, 11.30 A. M., numerous icebergs and large quantities of floe ice in sight, discovered a ship's boat, with sails set on boat's bow. I made immediately for her, and she proved to be boat No. 1 of the steamer Vicksburg, of Liverpool, belonging to the Dominion line, and commanded by Capt. Bennet. There were five men in her, and in a very much exhausted state; their feet and legs very much swollen, so much so that their boots had to be cut from their feet. I at once took on board and put the men into hospital. They are still suffering from their exposure to wet and cold, but are recovering as fast as could be expected. Their names are James Crowley, of London, boatswain's mate; Thomas O'Brien, of Liverpool, seaman; Patrick Grogan, John Williams and Jonas Williams. The men state that they left Quebec on the 27th May, with a crew of sixty, and eight cabin and twenty steerage passengers. Passed quantities of icebergs and floes, and, on June 1, in attempting to steer South, to avoid them, struck a berg, which broke the propeller and stove a hole in the vessel. The captain was perfectly cool, and issued his orders promptly. After it was found that the propeller was sinking, boat No. 1 was lowered, but it upset and the chronometer, provisions, etc., were lost. She was finally righted, and, although partially filled with water, the five men succeeded in keeping her afloat. Boat No. 2 was launched successfully and about thirty persons got in her. The propeller shortly afterwards went down. The captain and another person was seen floating on a bale of hay; but could render no assistance. Kept company with No. 2 for a while, but finally lost sight of her. They think that the captain and over forty persons lost their lives; no ladies saved.

CONCORD, N. H., June 10.—Governor Cheney was inaugurated to-day.

CAUSELESS DEPRESSION.—This expression is often used, but is manifestly absurd. Gloom and melancholy are not spontaneous. They are unnatural mental conditions and usually have corresponding causes. If there is no apparent reason for despondency, it is a symptom of physical disease. In nine cases out of ten, the stomach, the liver and the bowels are responsible for the cloud which rests upon the brain. In all such cases immediate and permanent relief may be obtained by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. If the digestive organs are weak an invigorant is necessary; if the liver is disordered an alternative is required; if the bowels are constipated or irregular a gentle aperient is needed. In that famous vegetable remedy these three medicinal properties are combined with several others of a scarcely less important character, and hence it speedily cures every species of hypochondria arising from material causes, by removing the cause themselves.

In the summer, when disorders of the stomach and bowels, bilious complaints and all diseases which affect assimilating and secretive organs are especially prevalent, the importance of having this invaluable tonic, alternative and corrective in every dwelling, and within the reach of all who travel by land or water, cannot be over-estimated. As it is a staple article throughout the country, it would be next to impossible to find a settlement, near or remote, unprovided with a stock of this famous vegetable restorative. June 11 1873

A PLEA FOR THE DIET.—A New York journal is discussing the question whether offensive smells are unhealthy. It holds that where the most repelling odors prevail in that city the children seem to be in the most salubrious condition. There are more healthy, ragged, dirty, and rosy-cheeked little ones in the most unclean localities of New York than in the select regions of French nurses, frills and baby coaches. Twenty doctors are employed in this last region to one in the locality of offensive and repulsive odors. Here is comfort for those who are compelled to snuff the eau de coogne of the very filthy streets. As the most health-giving waters at the celebrated springs are generally the most disagreeable to the taste, why may it not be that habitual whiffs at the streets, whose smells are somewhat akin to the flavor of fashionable medicinal waters, should produce health and longevity?

The Wisconsin Grangers have gone back on the regularly-constituted life insurance companies, as they think they detect a swindle about them, and have organized a company of their own. The features of the insurance company, or society, are in many respects similar to those of the Odd Fellows' Life Insurance Company, being on the co-operative plan. Any member of a Grange, in good health and under sixty years of age, is eligible to membership in the company. The fees of membership, when admitted, are: Less than 35 years of age, $3; from 35 to 45 years of age, inclusive, $5; from 45 to 50 years of age, $8; from 50 to 55 years of age, $12; from 55 to 60 years of age, $15. $2,000 is the limit of insurance allowed. At the death of a member an assessment of $1 per member is made.

In the Dallas (Texas) Daily Herald, of May 25, we find the following:

Mrs. Pickens, widow of Gov. Pickens, of South Carolina, who represented the United States as Minister to the Court of Russia during Buchanan's administration, arrived in Marshall last week. She was formerly Miss Lucy Holcombe, a daughter of the late Col. Beverly Holcombe, of Lynchburg, Virginia. She is on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Greer, and is accompanied by her niece, Miss Markoleta Greer and Miss Lulu Smith, of Marshall, both of whom have been spending several months with her in South Carolina. Times have changed sadly, but this distinguished lady, who has graced the Court of the Russian Czar, and moved queen of the elegant circles in the gubernatorial mansion of the Palmetto State in its proudest days, should certainly receive a warm welcome on her return to the home of her girlhood, where long years ago she reigned favorite and belle.

The Rev. Olympia Brown, who is the pastor of a church at Bridgeport, Connecticut, has a husband, and you would naturally suppose that his name is Brown, but it isn't; or if it is Brown, he is afraid to say so, and calls himself Willis. When Sister Brown and Brother Willis get to the gates of Paradise and attempt to go in as wife and husband, it is to be feared that it will take more time for them to explain things to the satisfaction of St. Peter than the hurry of business will permit him to grant them.

A poet says: "I saw my love in dreams last night pass up the moon-lit lands. And round me, as I nearer stepped, I felt her soft arms steal and fold, while close against my heart she crept, just as of old." That's a pretty nice sort of a dream—much more pleasant than to dream about seven-headed monsters with forked tails and flaming eyes chasing the dreamer over a precipice two miles high. But still the poet must have eaten a late lunch which didn't agree with him.

A London despatch states that agents for English emigrants will visit this country shortly to examine locations in the Mississippi valley for settlement, which fact should lead to some extraordinary efforts to keep them out of the hands of the agents of the grass-hopper plagued trans-Mississippi States, who invariably come forward with their plausible stories.

Last winter the country near Port Jervis was drowned out by ice-gorges, and now, to make things equal, we suppose, the same tract of country is suffering from the ravages of fires, which sweep through the woods and destroy all before them. Drowning and burning constitute a double load of afflictions, to which the grass-hopper in his worst estate is no comparison.

A noticeable fact about recent suicides is that nearly all the operators are described as "of high standing in the community," "persons of great moral worth," "men of industrious habits," etc. The dead-bents and beggars live and rejoice and increase, while the truly good retire to their bed-rooms and fire the shot that is heard around the next world.

A Broad street, Newark, physician was called upon, last week, to attend a seamstress who felt indisposed. He inquired as to her health, and she responded, very appropriately: "Well, it's about seie, seie, Doctor, but seems worse to-day, and I have frequent stitches in the side." The doctor hemmed, as he felt her pulse, said she would wend soon, and left a prescription.

The Beecher scandal case has reached its 106th day. The Herald calls it "the centennial trial." Men begin to measure their hopes by its duration. An old man says: "I hope to live until it is ended." In the annals of law proceedings it presents instances of the prolixity of legal gab hardly excelled except in the Tichborne case.

Madrid despatches state that the discontent in that city with the existing Government is daily increasing. The Alfonsist monarchy is tottering, and the general belief among leading politicians is that another crisis in the Government is approaching. Capitalists are refusing to make further advances of money to the Government.

"You bring my bosom," said a despairing Baltimore lover to a coquettish girl whom he had long sought in marriage. His burst of grief decided her, and, putting out her hand, she softly murmured, "Well! ring my finger, if you will be happier for it; I will vex you no longer."

A new cotton mill, of 10,000 spindles, is to be established at Vauluse, on Horse Creek, two and a half miles above the Graniteville Factory. The enterprise is supported by Wm. E. Jackson and other prominent merchants of Augusta, and promises to be highly profitable.

How soon some women change their minds respecting their husbands? Mrs. Spinn was forever telling her husband that he wasn't worth the salt in his bread; but when he got killed in a railway collision, she sued the company for $5,000.
