A FREE AND EASY WATERING PLACE.

Berek is on the French coast, a short distance from Boulogne. The fishermen set the fashion, and the wealthiest visitors easily follow it. A single thin garment, falling from the neck to a little below the knee, and a pair of gayly worked slippers, constitute the entire costume at Berek. Stockings are unknown, or, at least, if any lady appears with stockings she is recognized as a new-comer. It may require twenty-four hours for her prudery to wear off; at the end of that time she will appear in as scanty a dress as the rest. About half of them, indeed, dispense even with the slippers, and one sees groups playing croquet, the gentlemen clad in snowy linen and wearing red or blue caps, and the ladies in hats and short, bright colored skirts, but neither encumbered by shoes or stockings. Oftentimes, however, the wind blows the dry sand for miles over the beach, and to prevent this from getting into the eyes, glasses or spectacles with wire-gauze frames are worn, which on young and fair faces have a droll effect.

LARGE NEWSPAPERS.

The St. Louis Globe and Democrat says of large newspapers: The immense newspapers known as "blanket sheets" are out of date—as antiquated as silver shoe buckles and with burning in New England. For years past they have been falling into disfavor, but just after the war, when greenbacks were plenty and shoddy show was in order, they flourished for a time. Their race was soon run, however, when the country fairly settled in business. While whole columns full of startling head lines of terrible battles and great victories were eagerly bought and read by anxious people all over the country, the handbill newspapers were in demand; but now live men cannot afford to waste hours in pouring over whole columns of conjectures and suppositions and personal arguments to find an idea or a bit of news that might be condensed into a few lines. It is a loss of time and patience.

A Scotch peddler completely cowed an irascible Welshman, who insisted on fighting him in an inn kitchen, by going down on his knees and imploring pardon for having killed "two men already, and being about to kill another."

Jennie June says the days of the $50 bonnets are numbered. Not much longer will there be found idiots among women who will pay that amount for an article which the first shower spoils, and of which the fashion changes every month.

Tribute of Respect.

At the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Elmwood Cemetery Company, a committee consisting of John McKenzie, F. W. McMaster and R. L. Bryan were appointed to draft resolutions expressing the regret and sympathy of the Board on the death of their late fellow member, EDWARD HOPE. The committee submitted the following report:

Whereas, death has entered our Board of Directors and taken from our counsels Edward Hope, who, during life, took an active part in the business of this corporation; and, whereas, he was highly esteemed for his courtesy, distinguished for his public spirit, always ready with fruitful suggestions, valued for his business qualifications; it is eminently fit that this Board place on record their appreciation of these services, the unselfish counsels and the cordial spirit and upright bearing of their late associate. Heavy and severe as his loss is to them, they feel that it is but slight in comparison with that sustained by the community at large. Edward Hope was a good citizen, who freely gave his time and money for the public good. He was liberal-hearted to a fault and too generous for his own sake. The Board feel, therefore, that in giving expression to their own sense of bereavement, they represent even more the public, by whom their late associate was known as a good citizen, an honest man, a wise adviser and a steadfast friend. They propose the following resolutions to be passed in his honor: Resolved, That the Board of Directors of the Elmwood Cemetery Company have met with a great loss in the demise of our late associate, Edward Hope. Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with the bereaved brother, relatives and friends in the loss they have sustained by the death of so good a man and brother. Resolved, That, as a token of our respect and regard, a page in our record book be dedicated to his memory.

On motion, the report and resolutions were unanimously adopted. JOHN MCKENZIE, F. W. McMASTER, R. L. BRYAN, Committee.
