Attend the True Event."

COLUMBIA, S. C., TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 20, 1875.

VOLUME XI—NUMBER 102.

The symptoms of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general constive, and sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility and low spirits. Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times, very few of them; but the Liver is generally the organ most involved.

THE PARKER CASE—CONCLUSION OF MR. C. D. MELTON'S REMARKS.—Dunn says that in October, 1871, $8,000 was the entire interest on the public debt; the defendant says it was over $600,000 above the coupons which had been presented for payment; they may say that the defendant must clear this up, but we say that he must do so; this is the issue. If the defendant shows that the accrued interest was largely in excess of the interest paid in 1871, they must show that it was not; they can't move one step unless they prove this; for, without proving this, they can't show a single one is not now there if it ever was there; that Owens funded some, and that some are in the treasury as vouchers which were dead when they came there, has nothing to do with the proof; the defendant is charged with having taken out good, uncanceled coupons and not the invalid, dead coupons; this was dragged in to confuse the jury; nobody could understand a case covered with complex facts and intricate figures; but he thought he could show that every coupon which should be there is there now. The Treasurer, at the end of every fiscal year, October 31, makes out a general interest account of all the outstanding indebtedness of the State, paid and unpaid; the Comptroller-General makes out a general interest account at the beginning of the year, which he submits to the Legislature for an appropriation to pay past deficiencies which appear on the Treasurer's account for the close of the preceding year, and the interest for the current year; but he cannot calculate at the beginning of a year the interest on bonds which the Legislature may afterward issue during that year; whereas the Treasurer, at the end of the year, knows of all these bonds and makes out his account accordingly. Now, whom did Major Rion charge with having cooked these books, was it Mr. Walker, Mr. Tappan or Mr. Gary? Who ever heard a word against the character of these gentlemen? Hereupon, Col. Rion said that Randal, in New York, was the one alluded to. Here Mr. Melton said, when did Randal have the books; did not these very accounts run back to '68 and beyond that? The books are in the handwriting of these three gentlemen, the items, dates, &c., all given; nothing to excite suspicion of any cooking in them; the entries were made long before there could have existed any occasion for falsification; but by these very books, which they say are cooked, they agree with us as to the first three fiscal years; they say the interest is correct for these three years; the books for '68 commence with the unbalanced accounts of the unconstructed government up to '68; the interest in 1868, was $168,000; 1869 is correct—so is 1870; still we find no traces of cooking; the defendant claims that the interest due in 1870, is $519,447.50, but Mr. Dunn says that this is too much, because he claims we have charged interest on bonds for the payment of the public debt which were not then sold; this is based on Dennis' own assumption, that these bonds were then unsold and unissued; Dunn has tried to cook the books; he has made the plaintiff's counsel say that the accrued interest was no greater than the interest paid; his first correction is $30,000 interest on bonds which he says were not sold till September, 1869, while the defendants charge interest until October, 1868; plaintiff says this is too much, and for their only reason refer us to Kimpton's books; there is an entry below a previous entry made in September, 1869. Some of these bonds were sold, although the date of the sale is blank; they say Kimpton's account makes it appear that these bonds were sold in September, 1869; now if Kimpton ever intends to repeat anything he always does so unmistakably; in this same account October is repeated, written out in full, and December is repeated in writing three times; if this entry was meant to show that the sale of these South Carolina bonds had been made in September, he would either have written ditto under the last entry, which was in September, or would have made some mark to designate that he meant it; as it is, it is blank and shows nothing. Now, this is Dennis' whole reason for saying that the defendant's interest account is wrong—because Kimpton reports that he sold the bonds on a blank day, and happens to insert it under September, 1869. It is impossible to tell from this when they were sold, and the jury has no other information on the subject; if any were sold prior to April, 1868, the defendant's account is correct; Kimpton has studiously avoided giving the dates of the sale of any of these bonds; the Financial Board could never get him to give them any information as to the sales of South Carolina bonds; by an Act of the Legislature, March, 1869, Kimpton was authorized to use any of the bonds of the State for hypothecation for loans, and made him independent of the Financial Board; he was not even required to report to it, but made his reports to the Comptroller-General of the State; and hence the board has never been able to get the date of the sale of these bonds; Gov. Scott said that Kimpton made no report of the date of these sales, because Kimpton did not deem it expedient to do so; and Parker knowing by his report that the bonds had been sold, but not knowing the date of the sale, in making up his interest account, had to provide for the pay-
