THE PRINTER. He stood there alone at that shadowy hour, By the swinging lamp dimly burning; All silent within save the ticking type,

I without save the night watch turning ; And beavily echoed the solemn sound, As slowly he puced o'er the frozen ground. And dark were the mansions so lately that show, be my of festivity gleaming, nd hearts that were beating in sympathy theo; Were now living it o'er in their dreaming; Tet the printer still worked at his lonely post,

As slowly he gathered his mighty host. And there lay the merchant all pillowed in down,

And building bright hopes for the morrow, Nor dreamed he that fate was U.en weaving a wand, That would bring to him fear and sorrow; Yet the printer was there in his shadowy room, And he set in his frame work that rich man's doom

The young wife was sleeping, whom lately had bound The ties death only can sever ; nd dreaming, she started, yet woke with a smile, For she thought they were parted forever; But the printer was clicking the type that would tell, On the morrow the truth of that midnight spell.

And there lay the statesman with feverish brow, nd restless the pillow was pressing, through the shadowy mist of his dream His lottiest hopes now possessing ; Tet the printer worked on 'mid silence and gloom And dug for ambition its lowliest tomb. And slowly that workman went gathering up. His budget of grief and of gladness; A wreath for the noble, a grave for the low, For the happy a full cup of sadness; Strappe stories of wonder to enchant the car, And dark ones of terror to curdle with fear.

Full strange the tales which that dark host shall bear, To palace and cot, on the morrow; To pulace and cot, on the morrow; Oh I welcome, thrice welcome to many a heart, To many a beater of sorrow, It shall go like the wind and wandering air, For life and its changes are impressed there.

THE WIDOW'S WILL-A TRUE TALE.

BY REY. A. M. SCOTT. It was a bitter, night. The snow had been falling in fluery flights during the greater poption of the day, and the cold was so intense that no business of any kind had been prosecuted by the industrious and enterprising citizens of the village. Night had succeeded day.— The snow and sleet were still descending, and the spirit of the storm seemed to howl around the house, and through the fields and orchards and forests, and among the distant mountains. Mr. Rowland had returned from the counthere had been served and be family had gath-ered around the sparkling fire. The children had been put to bed in an adjoining apartment, and the infinit was sleeping in the cradle under the infinities of its mother. Mr. Row-land was reading a newspaper, and as the fitful blast mound this commodians dwelling blast monued round his commodious dwelling, he would make some remarks relative to the severity of the weather. Mrs. R. was parting the flaxen curls upon the head of the sleeping babe, and occasionally she imprinted the warm kiss of maternal affection upon its ruddy check. Suddenly some one rapped at the door. It ras onened, when a little girl of about seven years old was admitted. Her scanty dress was attered and torn, a ragged quilt thrown around puir of miserabl old shoes upon her feet. She was almost frozen. "You are the widow Watkins' little daugh-ter?" said Mrs. Rowland; inquiringly. The little girl answered in the affirmative, and added that her mother was sick, and wished Mr. Rowland to step over and see her, for she thought she would surely die. is Mr. Howland owned the place on which the sick woman resided. She was very indigent, and but poorly able to pay the extravagant rent which the unfeeling owner exacted. The pro-perty was once, her husband's, or rather her own; being a gift from her father on the very day of her wedding. Mr. Watkins was wealthy when a young man, and educated for the bar, and no one seemed more likely to be successful in his profession. He and Mr. Row-land were early associates. The latter, a few years before the period at which we now find him, had commenced the netarious traffic in ar spirits-had grown rich-had indoced Watking to drink-made him drank, and by degrees, p drunkard ; and when the poor be ction was anable to pay his debts, contracted mostly for rum, but partly by neglect-ing his professional duties, he, his former asso-ciate, his pretended, friend, his destroyer, was ciate, his pretended friend, his destroyer, was the first to decry and oppress him. His houses and oxen were sold by the sheriff, next his household and kitchen faculture were seized, and finally, a mortgage was given to Rowland apon the homestead of the drankard, to secure. the ram dealer in the payment of a pitiful bal-ance in his favor. auce in his favor. This commity did not check the prodigal ca-reer of the inclusion. He still quaffed the li-quid poison, and still did the heartless dealer hold out inducements to prevail upon him to sink tower who wretchedness and shame. Mr. Rowland left only anxious only for his rent, there being at that time a small sum due. And perbaps it was owing to this circumstance, that he so readily consistent to accompany the litie girl to the room of her sick mother. He draw on his overcout, tied a woulen comfaster round his neck, drew on his glaves; and taking his ambrelia, act out through the drifting supw and sleet, and went his way to the widow's uncomfortable hume. He found her lying on her miserable bed o He found her lying on her miserable bed of straw, with her head slightly elevated, the on-ly chair helonging to the house her g placed under her pillow. She was pale and ghastly, and evidently pear the hour of dissolution.— Mr. Rowland being seated on a rude wooden stool, she said in a feeble, but decided tone of

"I have sent for you, sir, to pay me a visit, that I may make you the heir of my estate. My estate ? I know you are ready to ask what estate I have to bequeath ? And well you may ask that. I once was happy. This house was once mine; it was my father's gift-my wedding portion. Thad horses, and oxen, cows and sheep, orchards and meadows. "Twas you that induced my poor erring husband to drink. It was you who placed before him the liquid poison, and pressed him to take it. "I was you that took away my horses and cows, and neadows and orchards, and my own home .-Twas you that ruined my peace, destroyed my husband, and in the very noon of life, sent him down to a drunkard's dishonored grave. Twas you that made me a beggar, and cast my poor starving babes upon the charity of a pitiless world. I have nothing left but these ragged quilts; them you do not want-yet I have determined to bequeath you my estate. Here, sir, is my last will and testament; I do bequeath you this vial of tears. They are tears that I have shed-tears that you have caused. Take this vial; wear it about your vile person; and when, hereafter, you present the flowing bowl to the line of a husband and a father, remember that you are inheriting another vial of widow's tours "

An hour more, and the poor widow, the widow of a thousand sorrows, the once favored child of fortune, the once lovely and wealthy bride the okce affectionate wife and devoted young mother, lay cold and senseless in death. and her soul had been summoned to that God who has said, "Vengeance is mine and I will repay."

TALLAPOSSA Co., Ala., Jan. 2, 1852. DEAR Sin :- I send you this to certify to-you that your Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla has performed one of the most wonderful cures on me performed one of the most wonderful cures on the that has ever been effected on man. I have been afficied for forty years with eruptions on my legs and feet; in 1848 they got so bad that I had to go on crutches, and in 1849 I had one leg am putated above the knee. In about nine months after my other leg broke out in large eating and running my other seg processing and stripping sores from my knee to my foot, and discharged a grea deal of offensive matter. My groin also broke out in Ange biles, which discharged much offensive matter and at the same time my left hand broke out in large rmaning sores nearly to my elbow. The misery that I have suffered for the last two years I cannot describe to you. I was in such agony that I never rested day or night.

CAMDEN BAZAAR. W E would respectfully inform our friends in the town and country that we have received or stock of SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, BRING AND SUMMER GOODS, and I could sleep all night, a thing I had not done fo had nearly all healed. My sores got well as if by enchantment. I have now used in all eight bottles of your "Extract of Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla." and I now consider myself well. I entrent all of the afflicted to try this medicine Bonnets, of all descriptions Ribbons, plain and figured, suitable for the season world.—Lay aside all prejudice and just try it, and proclaim its great worth to suffering mankind and en treat them to take it, for it will cure them. My case is well known in a large portion of South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama, and if any should doubt the above cure, I invite them to call on me and I will show them the scars. I can be found in Tallapoosa Co., Alabama, one mile from Stoe's Ferry RENAJATI HUGHES. The Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for females of delicate health, resulting from
