SHECHAD 3

WEDNESDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 21, 1842.

Judge Hugen has been elected Senator in Congress, in the place of Mr. Calhoun.

We understand that the Court of Appeals has refused to grant ELIAS FORD a new trial, and that he has been sentenced to be hung on the 7th of April next.

In the absence of a letter from our Columbia correspondent, we make the following extract from a letter in the Charleston Mercury of the

Mr. DeSaussure this morning made an able Report on the resolution which had been referred to the Committee on Federal Relations, enquiring as to the expediency of repealing the law to prevent the citizens of New York from carrying away slaves and persons bound to service in this State. The Committee take the proper view of this matter, and in recommending that the law be continued in force only throw a proper and defensive basis around our of Africa. He also states that a system of acrights and the safety of Southern institutions. In fact, the provision of the law, authorizing the Governor to suspend the action of its measures, so soon as the Executive should be informed that the State of New York has complied with the requisitions of our sister State Virginia, obviates the necessity of repeal by the Legislature; for the law should be left a record on our statue book as a demonstration of what we will ever be ready to do in protection of our most important part of the Message, comes next. peculiar institutions, both civil and domestic.

Mr. Hunt from the Committee, on Federal Relations, made a lengthy and able report on the Tariff On the Presentment to the Grand Jury to Ker- question. It is a strong, defensive, yet conciliateshaw District, respecting Stock, and payment of ry argument. From its length I decline to make an abstract, for I know that its interest will ensur a republication entire in your columns, and I will The Senate sent to this House for concurrence take measures to send you a copy of the same at an a Resolution for altering a place of Election, and early day, as it has been ordered to be printed, and made the special order of the day on Friday next.

The House then went into Committee of the whole on the District Bills, of the House and the ions, made the following Reports, which were | Senate, Mr. Memminger in the Chair. Upon motion the Committee took up the Bill of the House, the accompanying report of which recommends the adoption of the plan last sent you. M. Quattlebum moved to strike out Lexington and insert it after Edgefield. Mr. Perrin advocated the junction of Abbeville and Edgefield. Mr. Henry said he was On the Petition of William Pardue, praying much inclined to prevent the disseverance of Abbe ville and Edgefield, and thought that Newberry which had so much to complain of by an undue preponderance in the size of the other districts. should have Lexington attached to give her support. Mr. DeSaussure, said he could not consent to the proposition-that Richland and Newberry were both counting the alliance of Lexington-that the new their services; and also the Presentment of the arrangement cast Richland into an alliance with Grand Jury of York, for Fall Term 1842; and the which she had never associated. Said he perceived aid Petitions and Presentment were referred to in the horizon, a storm which might prove as agitating as the one through which we had once passed. an Act entitled "An Act to reduce all Acts and That some of those Districts which the proposition clauses of Acts in relation to the Patrol of this designed to annex, were arrayed against the State State into one Act, and to after and amend the Rights party in those days, and might (with due same;" was read the second time, and ordered to deference to gentlemen representing those districts,) be again the commanding districts-that Lexington and Richland had always been allied, were now allied by natural links, and from the union between eral Orders of the day for a second reading, and these Districts, would continue to be allied in their business transactions.

Mr. Chesnut remonstrated against the arrange ment proposing annexation of Lexington-said he A Bill to exempt the Sheriff from liability for disliked the argument of the gentleman from Richland, which appealed to the prejudices of the House, and asked if the people of South Carolina were to stamp the citizens of Kershaw, because that District differed honestly in opinion from a majority of the per cent. to six per cent., and to alter the law in State, and as the argument was ad cap tandum, he hoped the house would entertain the proposition.

Mr. DeSaussure replied, said he was one of the last to revive those ancient differences, and complimented the District on its patriotism; but said, the time might come when the some principles might be revived, and then his District might be crushed by an king out "J. D. WITHERSTOON," in the Report | which he had made were not characterized by proper generosity.

In regard to the late Tariff, he proposes to Congress the propriety of revising its provisions and adjusting it in such a way as to unfit the interests of all; neither giving exclusive benefits to some nor imposing unnecessary burdens upon the such as the s others. He also suggests the propriety of introducing among its provisions the warehousing system; thus enabling the importer to keep his goods in the public stores without paying the duties until he can find market for them-the method or advancing the cash for duties, on the arrival of the goods, having proved onerous to the importer.

He refers to the reports of the Secretaries of War and Navy, as exhibiting full and satisfactory accounts of the various interests committed to their charge; states that the expenditures for the military services are greatly reduced, and asks for an increased appropriation for the naval service to be appropriated to the purchase of clothing,-(which amount would be reunbursed by its sale again,) to cover arrearages of past years, and to maintain a competent squadron on the coast countability is established in every department of the Government, and great pains are taken to insure industry, fidelity and economy on the part of the public officers.
