LIEUT. JAMES WILLIS CANTEY. Whenever men fall in the performance of heroic actions, bravely upholding the flag of their country, and vindicating from dishonor the national escutcheon, instinct summons to the solemn duty of perpetuating their names and commemorating their patriotism. They who have rallied as the "cross of fire" swept past, and with strong hands and loyal hearts, have borne their country's "nailed colors" where the battle-god played fiercest, and the battle-tide pressed hardest, have found a nation's heart their Mansoleum, and a nation's tears, their funeral tribute. Past time may claim sterner and more monumental marble, mountains carved into barbaric monuments of scathed sway, and brazen statues constructed from battles' spoliated trophies; but prouder far is America's Republican memorial. The laurel wreathed with cypress, the nation's heart bowed down at the heart-stone of the afflicted and desolate. From the starry throng of those, who in Mexico, lost their lives upon the bloody and brilliant fields of war, we may be allowed to select the youthful hero, whose name heads our article. True to the memories of his manhood and race, he was among the first to respond to the tapping drum and bugle blast, and enrol himself in the volunteer band, whose meteoric exploits have conspired to renew the Palmetto Star, and won for her a fresh diploma of renown. Loyal in heart, faithful in friendship, generous in sentiment, manly in feeling, and brave in spirit, he was watched as he moved from among us with the endearing solicitude and yearning sympathy of friends. Having just emerged from the portals of the College, crowned with the unbought and loyal love of his class and friends, he had a glorious career to run. As he rallied around old Kershaw's banner, erected over the grave of De Kalb, elastic in spirits and resplendent in manhood, we knew the warrior gage was his, that his step would be where honor was, and only anticipated that the bloody tide of battle might roll past, and not engulf him in its sanguinary torrent. Exemplary in discipline, devoted to his duties, punctilious in honor, his warrior friends point to him as the model of a man and soldier. Worn down by fatigue, was ted by disease, and exhausted by his unintermitted duties when the bugle summoned him to the tented field, he was fitter for the hospital than the fierce shock of battle. But to rest upon his shield, when the banner of his foe flaunted in his face, was more than his proud spirit could brook. Like the princely eagle that swoops from his lofty cry to hear away the struggling, shrieking prey, he tore down with impetuous gallantry upon the resisting enemy, and threw his life into the scale of battle to redress the palpitations of the balance. Covered with honor at Contreras and Churubusco, it was left for Chapultepec to rear its colossal pile, the memorial of his gallantry and death. In command of his company, through the sickness of the Captain, he led them with unquailing and heroic bravery across the plain to the storming of the bastioned fortress, and while the regiment was blasted by the sirocco of battle, he was conspicuous in advance, with only victory in his eye, and marking with his sword a bright pathway of glory. Cut down in that terrific passage of battle, he lived long enough to see our flag floating from the grim heights of Chapultepec, and died as soldiers love to die, amid the rapture of strife, with his own banner waving above him, and wild shouts of triumph ringing round him. The sodded turf that shrouds him, never pressed a nobler form. When the tidings of our unparalleled success came, followed by the blighting tale of our losses, his renown was among the richest of our legacies, his death among the heaviest of our disasters. Though the battle was fought in a stranger land—lighted up by a stranger sun, Carolina, vitiated with the pulsations of the strife, like a land-locked bay, shut out from the tempest's rage, but which feels, in the undulations of its shattered waters, the commotions of the storm-beaten waves that roll so fiercely without, she rocked upon the billows of the fight, and hung upon the varying events of the day. Never can she forget her Palmetto Regiment, for, in the language of one of her noblest orators, "they have made her, not the daughter of the Scipios, but the mother of the Gracchi," and never can she let die the names of these chieftains, whose starworn hands bore her banner to battle and to victory. "Would he sacrifice that names like these should perish, but humanity is rescued from the misfortune, for they cannot die." In the eloquent and beautiful language of the author of "My Dreams,"

"Who dares to say they died!
The great who sunk to rest,
What though his might stern death hath tried
Who dare to say that these have died!"

When history adjudges her virtus and perpetua, lustrous will be their resurrection on the chronicle of time and bright in the enrolment will be Canzey's name. True, in every exigency of intercourse, he was a man to be loved, and a soldier without reproach.

A CLASSMATE.

CHARLESTON MARKETS.

WEEK ENDING FRIDAY EVENING, FEB. 4.
COTTON.—Received the past week by Rail road 7652 bales, by water and wagons, 5534 bales, together 13,186 bales, (corresponding week last year, 12,805 bales.) Exported in the same time to foreign ports 6318 bales, coastwise 1235 bales, making the total exports of the week 7553 bales; and leaving on hand a stock of 42,180 bales, inclusive of 5534 bales on shipboard not cleared, against a stock of 61,922 bales same time last year.

The receipts of Uplands have been gradually increasing for the last three weeks, both at this, as well as most other ports, and the deficiency of some what over 100,000 bales, received less, previous to that time, than at the same period last year, has now been reduced to about 80,000 bales. We must make mention, however, that among our own arrivals a much larger proportion of stained Cottons are received, than is usual at this season of the year, and which generally has been considered, heretofore, as a strong indication of a short crop. Our last report left the Upland market, after a very active demand during the week then passed, on the day of its close, in rather a depressed state, the transactions on that day, although of a fair amount, being entered into by buyers with less animation than during the previous part of the week, and indicating, altogether, a downward tendency of prices.

On Saturday the market opened and remained very quiet buyers looked about seemingly expecting to be met by holders with some concessions, which, however, not being granted, the sales reached but 400 bales, without change in prices. Since then the general state of the market has been of an unsettled and contrary character, and we might add without any fixed rates, for holders, in some instances, realized former prices; they could only effect sales in others by making concessions of some description, reported to have equalled, in some cases, a decline of 1.8 a 1.4 cent. Buyers, at the same time, were equally unable to operate to any extent at a marked decline, particularly for the better qualities; and while, therefore, we retain in our quotations below the outside figures of our former, we give the lowest inside as the criterion of sales when offered by holders.

The daily transactions have been as follows: on Saturday 395 bales, on Monday 798, on Tuesday 1421, on Wednesday 953, on Thursday 711, and yesterday 51 bales. Early in the morning of that day telegraphic advices of the Acadia's arrival, and brief statements of the markets at Liverpool were received, and as usual, being considered very imperfect and not of a very reliable character, the market came almost to a dead stand, the amount taken being for immediate shipment. The following are the particulars of the week's sales, in all amounting to 4339 bales: 140 bales at 7-8, 959 at 7 3/4, 188 at 7 13-16, 865 at 7 3/4, 865 at 7 5 8, 176 at 7 9-16, 766 at 7 1-2, 22 at 7 3-8, 97 at 7 1-4, 357 at 7 192 at 6 7-8, 77 at 6 3 4, 25 at 6 5-8, 359 at 6 1-2, 90 at 6 1-4.

COFFEE.—The sale of 6500 bags Rio, advertised at auction as per our last, came off on Thursday last, and was well attended. About 5000 bags sold at the lower figure—the bulk averaging 7 5-8.

MOLASSES.—The receipts of the week have been heavy, amounting to rising of 700 bls. New Orleans. Sales of different parcels, in all some 500 bls., previous receipts in store including, have been made in 25 1-2 a 26 1-2 according to terms and quantity.

SALT.—There have been no arrivals, and the article is again quite scarce—holders from stores asking $1, 75 a $2 for Liverpool sack.

At a regular meeting of the Camden Debating Club, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:—
The members of this Club are again called upon to mourn over the loss of one of their members, in the death of GEO. W. GILMAN, whose life was a sacrifice to his country, in maintaining the honor of the Palmetto Flag on the plains of Mexico. Although not permitted to share the battles in which our gallant Regiment bore so conspicuous a part, being arrested by disease incident to camp life, he evinced the same ardent patriotism that influenced his comrades in obeying the call made upon his native State by the General Government. We lament that he has been cut down in the morning of his life, and never again permitted to mingle with us.

Be it Resolved, That we deeply regret at the dispensation of an allwise Providence that has deprived our Club of a worthy member.
Resolved, That a blank page be dedicated on our book of record, to perpetuate the memory of our late fellow member GEO. W. GILMAN.
Resolved, That a copy be forwarded to the family of the deceased and that they be published in the Camden Journal.

J. A. YOUNG, Vice President.

HOGAN & THOMPSON,
WHOLESALE
Booksellers, Stationers, and Publishers,
No. 30 North Fourth Street, Philadelphia.

Announce to their friends, and to merchants generally, that their stock of Books and Stationery for the coming business seasons of 1848 will be larger and better assorted than at any former period. It will embrace every article in the trade which is required for the sales of the country merchant.
In consequence of the change in their terms of selling, they are enabled to offer SCHOOL AND MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS, BLANK BOOKS, PAPERS, &c. at prices so greatly reduced from former rates, as to make it to the interest of all who deal in these articles to purchase from their stock.
Hitherto the system of crediting small amounts has involved an expense in their collection, and as H. & T. now sell only for CASH, or such negotiable notes as are sure to be paid in bank at their maturity, the saving to those who choose to deal in this manner will be a very considerable percentage on their purchases.

Few dealers in the country buy more than $200 worth of stationery in a season, many not over one-half, and a large portion not more than one-fourth of that amount. There is not a dealer, therefore, who visits Philadelphia who would be inconvenienced by paying these small sums in Cash, and as each can save money by doing so, H. & T. believe they are offering an inducement which will gladly be embraced by those who make their purchases in Philadelphia. Those who enter into such an arrangement will be enabled to sell at prices much below their former rate at home, and will consequently reap a larger aggregate profit from the increased amount of their sales.

Having a PRINTING OFFICE for copperplate and type work, and an extensive BINDERY, H. & T. are prepared to fill orders from Banks and Public Offices, when forwarded through merchants, at extremely low prices.
