KOSSUTII'S ADDRESS TO HIS

COUNTRY. The following is the farewell address of Kossuth to his country, written at Orsova: Farewell, my beloved country! Farewell, land of the Magyar! Farewell, thou land of sorrow! I shall never more behold he summit of thy mountains. I shall nevor again give the name of my country to that therished soil where I drank from my mother's bosom the milk of justice and liberty. Pardon, oh! pardon him who is henceforth condemned to wander far from thee, because he combatted for thy happiness. Pardon one who can only call free that spot of thy soil where he now kneels with a few of the faithful children of conquered Hungary My last looks are fixed on my country, and I see thee overwhelmed with anguish. Thy plains are covered with blood, the retiness of which pitiless destruction will change to black, the emblem of mourning for the victories thy sons have gained over the sacrilegious enemies of thy sacred soil.

How many grateful hearts have sent their prayers to the throne of the Almighty! How many tears have gushed from their very depth to implore pity! How much blood has been shed to testify that the Magyar idolizes his country, and that he knows how to die for it. And yet, land of my love, thou art in slavery! From thy very bosom will be forged the chain to bind all that is sacred, and aid all that is sacrilegious. O Almighty Creator, if thou lovest thy people to whom thou didst give victory under our heroic ancestor, Arpad, I implore thee not to sink them into degradation. I speak to thee, my country, thus from the abyss of my despair, and whilst yet lingering on the threshhold of thy soil. Pardon me that a great number of thy sons have shed their blood for thee on my account. I pleaded for thee, I hoped for thee, even in the dark moment when on thy brow was written the withering word Despair." I lifted my voice in thy behalf when men said, "Be thou a slave!" I girt the sword about my loins, and I grasped the bloody plume, even when they said, "Thou art no longer a nation on the soil of the Ma-

Time has written thy destiny on the pages of thy story in yellow and black letters-Death. The Colossus of the North has set seal to the sentence. But the glowing iron of the Ecast shall melt that seal.

For thee, my country, that hast shed so much blood, there is no pity: for does not the tyrant eat his bread on the hills formed of the bones of thy children? The ingrate whom thou hast fattened with thy abundance, he rose against thee, the traitor to his mother, and destroyed thee utterly. Thou hast endured all; thou hast not cursed thine existence, for in thy bosom, and far above all sorrow, hope has built her nest. Magyars! turn not aside your looks from

Thou hast been betrayed; thou hast been sold, my country; thy death-sentence has been written, beloved of my heart, by him whose virtue, whose love for thee I never dared to doubt. Yes! in the fervor of my boldest thoughts. I should have almost as soon doubted the existence of the Onipotent, as have believed that he could ever be a traitor to his country. Thou hast been betrayed by him in whose hands I had but a little space before deposited the power, of our great country, which he swore to defend even to the last drop of his heart's blood,-He hath done treason to his mother; for the glitter of gold hath been for him more seductive than that of the blood shed to save his country. CODFISH ARISTOCRACY. We are very pristocratic here in our goodly city of Cincinnati. Exclusiveness is fashionable-coteries are formed, who fancy they comprise all the taste, fashion and talent existing. If a daring intruder presumes to enter the charmed circle, he meets with a rebuff which tells him that he is looked on as an inferior, no matter what his personal worth and merits may be. It serves the fool right. What business has he or any one to suppose that sterling character and cultivated intellect could constitute a claim to be received into fashionable society? Fashionable-faugh! The children of cobblers and tinkers putting on airs, apeing the manners of foreign aristocrats, and claiming to give tone and character to society! Fashionable-quotha! Why, they smell of leather and solder!

A gentleman passenger on a steamboat from New Orleans to Cincinnation the trip up, was introduced to a young lady on board by a gentleman relation of hers. We give brief description of the two. The young lady was charmingly lovely, and aimiable in manners; the gent was witty, sentimental and amusing, his manner noble, his figure manly-such an one as would catch a lady's Thrown together in each other's society and mutually attracted, it is not to be wondered that they grew quite familiar. They had tete-a tetes on the guards, promenaded, the decks arm in arm, the gentleman whispering soft nonsense in the lady's ear. The passengers pronounced it a case of love at first sight, the ladies were more respectful to one whom they thought was soon to be a matron, and chambermaids (as chambermaids always do) waiting upon no one else but the bride. Miserable prophets—it was not fated to be a match-

The boat at length arrived at her place of destination, the association of the two loving ones was at an end, and they were obliged to separate. Whispered adieus, with a soft entreaty from him, was answered by her thrusting a card into his hand, and thus they parted, she to her father's marble halls, and he to the East, whither business imperatively called him. The hope of secng her on his return filled his heart with

She made an astounding discovery shorty after her return home. A friend of her's with tears for you, for the soilion which my who sported mustachios and a gnatee, quizzed her unmercifully for losing her heart to a mechanic who was going to Washington to get a patent for a new plough. This was very provoking to her. She protested that she thought he was a gentleman, or she never would have accepted his attentions. Six weeks flew by, and the young mechanic was on his return home. His heart bounded with joy as he approached Cincinnati. Visions of grace, beauty and loveliness floated through his brain. Oh, what pleasure to meet La Belle of the Queen City. Her charms had made a deep impression on his susceptible heart. His foot touched the wharf, and away he flew to the mansion of his beloved. He was ushered in, and his name announced. The young lady floated into the room, O, how lovely! But what is the matter? She does not know him, bestows no glance of recognition upon the face lit up with pleasure on seeing her

You do not recollect me, said he timidiy, and mortified to think the impression-if one he had made-was so evanescent.

'I do not, sir,' replied she in a cold tone abandoned him, as he has abandoned his and with an air of hauteur such as a tragedy queen affects. He reminded her of their previous acquaintance on board the steamer.

·O, yes, yes-a steamboat acquaintance!

Good morning sir,' and with this answer she left the room. Her old papa had heard the name of his risiter when announced, but thought his presence would be mal apropos at their first neeting, so the good-natured old gent remained in his room. He knew the real po sition and standing of his visiter, and hugged himself at the prospect of Julia marrying the Hon. Mr. -, M. C., rich and distin-

HOW MANY MILES A PRINTER'S HAND Travels.-Although a printer may be setting all day, yet in his own way he is a great traveller, or at least his hand is, as we shall prove. A good printer will set 8000 ems a day, or about 24,000 letters. The distance travelled over by his hand will average about one foot per letter, going to the boxes in which they are contained, and of course returning, making two feet every letter he sets. This would make a distance each day of 48,000 feet, or a little more than 9 miles; and in the course of a year, leaving out the Sundays, that member travels about 3000
