HOME. A BALLAD FOR EVERY BODY. BY MARTIN F. TUPPER. I foraged all over this beautiful earth, To pick its best nosegay of innocent mirth-Tied up with the bands of its wisdom and worth-And lo! its chief treasure,

Its innermost pleasure

Was always at home.

I went to the valace and there my fair Queen On the arm of her husband did lovingly lean, And all the dear babes in their beauty were seen, In spite of the splendor, So happy and tender, For they were at Home!

I turn'd to the cottage, and there my poor hind Lay sick of a fever.-all meekly resign'd, For, Oh! the good wife was so tender and kind, In spite of all matters, An angel in tatters, And she was at Home!

I ask'd a fond mother, just come from the post, With a letter she kissed, from a far away coast, What heart-thrilling news had rejoiced her most, And gladness for mourning, Her boy was returning To love her-at Home! I spoke to the soldiers, and sailors at sea,

Where best in the world would they all of them be? And hark! how they earnestly shouted to me, With iron hearts throbbing, And choking and sobsing, O land us at Home!

I came to the desk where old Commerce grew gray, And ask'd him what help'd him this many a day, In his old smoky room with his ledger to stay? And it was the beauty, The comfort and duty, That cheered him at Home!

I came to the court, where the sages of law Were wrangling and jangling at quibble and flaw, O wondrous to me was the strife that I saw!

But all that fierce riot, Was calmed by the quiet
