"LET US BE FRIENDS." Let us be friends together, Faithful and true, 'Midst life's tempestuous weather, Sunshine breaks through, For a friendly voice, pleasant and warm, Cheers me in sadness, Fills me with gladness, When darkens the storm.

Speak to me friendly words When we meet, Soft as the notes of birds; Pure and as sweet; Then shall your own heart be blest With peace divine, And mine-in tranquil joy shall rest.

Shall we be friends together While life last, Soon its tempestuous weather, With me, will be past, If friends are but near me, With kind words to cheer me, Oh! nought shall deter me. From death and the grave.

From the Fairfield Herald.

For he will go with me,

Who is able to save.

Mr. Editor: Looking upon disunion as a "fixed fact"-that this rotten and corrupt concern cannot much longer hold together, I venture to predict that the following blessings will result to the South therefrom:

A more extended, purer and rational liberty, with greater harmony and good will among the members of the Southern Confederacy, than has ever existed between them under the present Union.

Free trade, with greater prosperity to all the various interests, agricultural, mechanical, commercial and manufacturing-cotton never less than 10 cents per pound, oftener 20,

Greater strength and greater security to our domestic institutions, with an entire stoppage of border thieving and kidnapping, on the part

Greater extension of education, religion and morality.

More railroads, and internal improvements

Negroes and land increased in value from 50 to 100 per cent.

Pauperism unknown in the land, and If these predictions do not prove true, it is useless to attempt to reason from cause to ef-PROPHET.

PHILOSOPHY OF EATING.

Useing but two or three kinds of food, besides bread and butter, at a single meal, and never eat anything between meals. You should eat at regular hours, and but three times a day, with two intervals of not less than five hours each, nor more than six.

Cold water retards digestion, and so does any liquid, if much is taken during; or soon after a meal; half a glass at a meal is enough. From an hour and a half after a meal, until within half an hour of the next one, you may drink as much water as you desire; it is best, however, to drink but a swallow or two at a time, with an interval of half a minute or more; otherwise you may take more than quires before you know it, just as in eating fast. If too much fluid is taken during meals, it dilutes the gastric juice, thus weakening its power of digestion, and retaining the food longer in the stomach than is natural; it also causes acid stomach, heartbearn, fulness, belchings, and bad blood, producing, according to circumstauces, a dryness, or rawness, or scalding sensation in the throat, as do indigestions from other causes, whether from quality or quantity

All errors as to diet arise from quantity or quality, and I propose one safe rule to each. applicable to all persons, and under all circum-

As to quality, the general rule is to eat that which you like best, and which you find by close observation and experience is followed by no uncomfortable feeling about the head, hands, feet or stomach.

As to quantity, take as much at one meal as will allow you to become decidedly hungry by the next meal; this can only be determined by consecutive observations; but remember, never swallow an atom of food unless you are hungry; never "force" a particle of food on yourself; the brute creation cannot be induced to eat or drink, if slightly ill or excited, guided only by their poor blind insticts, and were we, who are so much higher than they, by the "reason" that is within us, ought to feel ashamed to act less wisely; and yet nine-tenths of all our ailments, acute and chronic, enter here; and nine-tenths of them all might be cured thus, if taken in reasonable time, and if properly persevered in.

The finer all food is cut with a knife, before put into the mouth the sooner and easier it is digested, on the same principle that a large piece of ice placed in a vessel of water will require a much longer time to melt, than if it were first divided into many small pieces. The gastric juice dissolves solid food from without inwards, as water dissolves ice from without inwards; hence, food, especially all kinds of meat, should be cut up in pieces not larger than a pea, before it is placed it in the mouth, taking in as many of these pieces as is convenient. This precaution would not be needed were persons to eat slowly, and masticate their food properly, but our national habits are otherwise, nor is there much hope of a speedy change in this respect. After Eating .- An hour for dinner, and half the time for other meals, do not lie down, do not sit to sew, or maintain any stooping posilift or perform any labor, bodily or mental; a quality.

leisure stroll in the open air is best; cheerful conversation is next best; or reading a newspaper; these require no mental effort. While walking, keep your hands behind you, and your chin, on or above a horizontal line, and endeavor to feel in a good and cheerful humor with yourself and all the world .- Dr. Hall, of Cincinnati, on Throat and Lungs.
