I certainly thought I was jilted;" But come thou with me-to the parson we'll

Say, wilt thou my dear, And she wilted. Then gaily he took her to see her new home, A shanty by no means encharted,

"See, here we can live with no longing to

He said "shan't we my dear," so they shantied.

> From the Journal of Commerce. RAMIE.

The numerous successful experiments of silk, woolen, lace and linen cotton manufactures in several States, and still more extensively in Europe, have created a demand for this new and valuable staple far beyond the present production or means of supply. It is discovered that the ramie grown on the alluvial lands of the lower Mississippi has a very long and exceedingly fine fibre, far superior to that grown in its native country, Java, and that the yield per acre is greater. In any of the more Southern States ramie can be harvested at least three times a year, and each harvest or cutting will produce between nine and twelve hundred pounds, making an average annual crop of about three thousand pounds crude unprepared fibre, worth at present in Europe ten cents specie per pound. In preparing the fibre for manufacturing purposes it loses about one half, increasing it in value to sixty-five cents per pound .-Thus, it appears that ramie, requiring comparatively little, tillage to produce such magnificent results, is the most profitable crop that the planter can cultivate. The fibre, when prepared for the spinner, is beautifully white, soft and glossy, closely resembling floss silk in appearance; it is much stronger than the best flax, and readily receives the most difficult dyes without injury to its strength or lustre.

To meet the manufactures' increasing demands a company of enterprising and practical business men have organized "The Ramie Producing and Supply Company," and proposes to operate near New Orleans on two thousand acres of the choicest alluvial bottom land in that region. With two or three skilled nursery-men to tend to the plants and one of Messrs. J. & F. Howard's steam cultivators, it is confidently expected the Company will have four to five thousand acres of canes of their ewn growth to supply orders next season. They hope to produce in the crade state over six hundred thousand pounds, or about three hundred tons -A conditional contract for the land on very favorable terms were made last April; and all the plants and roots known to be for sale in Texas have been purchased to commence operations with -We have reports of English manufacturess sending an agent to raise, or buy the ramie in California; but from all best adapted to its successful cultivation. However, there is ample room, and the demand for years is sure to exceed the supply.

RAL LEE'S COLLEGE.—The Richmond Enquirer, speaking of George Peabody and his recent donation to the college over which General Lee presides, says:

His latest gift to this great interest is peculiarly gratifying to the Southern people. The South has watched with most appreciative interest the labors of General Lee to establish for her benefit a first class college. Nothing in the grand career of her favroite son has endeared him more to his countrymen than the self-sacrificing zeal in their behalf with which he has prosecuted this object since the war. Mr. Peabody, following the promptings of a highminded liberality, has donated $60,700 to Washington College to be applied by General Lee in carrying out his plans for the extension of that institution .-The generous donor could not have applied the gift in any way in which it would have conduced more to the object in view, nor could he have done an act more greateful to the whole South. Even his princely donations to Southern com mon school education have not awakensuch a feeling as well as the comparative ly small one to Washington College. The former were placed mainly in the hands of men not of our section, strangers to us and to our needs, and consequently it required time for us to be made to realize the high purposes of the giver. The latter has been bestowed upon one of the leading institutions of the South and placed in the hands of General Lee.

To Gop's Kingdom -King Freder ick of Prussia was once traveling in his dominions and passed through a pretty villag", where he was to remain an hour

The villagers were delighted to see their king, and had done their atmost in preparing to receive him. The schoolchildren strewd flowers before him; and one little girl had a pretty verse of 'welcome' to say to him. He listened most kindly, and told her she had performed her task well, pleased her very much. He turned to the schoolmaster and said he would like to ask them a few quesions, and examine them in what they knew. Now there happened to be a dish of oranges on the table close by. The king took up one of these, saying, To what kingdom does this belong, children?

'To the vegetable kingdom,' replied one of the little girls.

'And to what kingdom this?' continued he as he took from his pocket a gold

'And to what kingdom do I belong?' inquired he, expecting, of course, that she would answer in the right order. 'To the animal. But sle pause and col ored very deeply, not knowing what to say. She feared that it would not sound respectful to answer to a king that he belonged to the animal kingdom; she puzzled her little brains for a reply.

Remembering the words in Genesis, where it says that 'God created man in his image, in the image of God created he him,' she quickly looked up and said, 'To God's kingdom, sir.'

The king stooped down, and placed his hand upon her head. A tear stood in his eye . He was moved by her simple words. Solemply and devoutly did he answer, 'God grant that I may be counted worthy of that kingdom.

OFFICE-On Broad street, above J. M. LeGrand's Jewelry Store.

M. BISSELL, DENTIST.

WOULD call the attention of those requiring their Teeth filled to a COMPOSITION, FILLING that he prepares and has accounts our Southern valleys are the used for the past ten years, as it can be recommended in all cases where the teeth are so far decayed as to prevent their being filled with any filling requiring pressure. As it approaches nearer the color of the teeth than Foils, it will be found satisfactory in filling the badly decayed GEORGE PEABODY'S GIFT TO GENE- front teeth, avoiding the unsightly appearance of the foil showing through the thin plate of enamel. Being nearly as hard as the bone of the teeth it will prove serviceable in the masticating surfaces of many teeth. Teeth filled several years since have been found within a few weeks in nearly as good a condition as when first filled.

> Charges for filling with gold, tin. or artificial Dentine from 50 cents to $2, and teeth inserted on GOLD, SILVER or VULCANITE, from $2 to $8.
