FOR PRESIDENT.

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, OF OHIO.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

WILLIAM A. WHEELER, OF NEW YORK.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1876.

The Cotton Traffic Again.

A good plan to catch the cotton thieves, who make it a practice to visit cotton fields in the night, pick what they can, and carry it to the nearest store and there sell it for rot-gut whiskey and copers, and molasses, pressed into refuse tobacco leaves, would be for every planter, who has hands working on his place, to give to the shop keepers their names, the terms upon which they are employed, etc. By these means, the bosses of country stores would know the standing of all the men in their neighborhood, and whether, when any of them offered them cotton for sale, it was theirs or not. It is not likely that a man who has no crop of his own would be found selling any other than stolen seed cotton.

Disfranchised.

The Democratic platform proposes to recognize and accept all the amendments to the Federal Constitution. The political freedom of all men is commented upon and acknowledged in that instrument. It calls for all honest men, of whatever political faith, to take sides with the Democrats, in their struggle to obtain possession of the government. It is not even required that a man shall change his politics to become a member of the Democratic party.

Now let us see how the Democrats propose to deal with Republicans,-- those, for instance, who will go over to them.

At the meeting of the Democratic club of this Precinct, held at Engine Hall, on Monday night last, a resolution was passed unanimously and with "vociferous cheering," declaring it to be the intention of the Democracy to nominate for office "none but straight outs," and that "no man be placed upon the ticket who had held office under the Radical government as a Republican."

As the only accessions of note to the Democracy from the Republican party, are generally of that class of ex-officials who are politically dead with us, the resolution of the Orange Democratic club does not cause much sorrow in our midst. Was it not, though, a thrust under the ribs to those honest Republicans who changed their political membership from the broad and Catholic organization of the Republican party to the prescriptive roll of the Democracy? We offer Democrats better terms than these. They can join our party as many as have a mind to, and we assure them that we shall pass no resolutions placing them at a disadvantage in our ranks.

The disfranchising resolution passed by the Orange Democratic club on the 27th of August, A. D. 1876, will be duly considered by Republicans. It will revive and strengthen many a weak-kneed fellow in our party-- meantime, the gauge of battle has been arranged, by the Democrats, and the leaders of our party will govern themselves accordingly.

Senator Patterson has been invited to stump the State of Maine. He will probably accept the invitation.

Men vs. Money.

"At this time South Carolina has not a single Democratic Congressman, not one representative of the sixty thousand whites who possess the bulk of the property." --News and Courier. And what of it? Is it property or men who should vote and rule, according to the principles of free government? If fifty colored men own the land in an entire county, and rent it to five thousand tenants, which have the best right to elect the county's representatives to the Legislature, the fifty landlords or their five thousand tenants? Mr. Vanderbilt's property is estimated to be worth from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000, and neither sum is far greater than the entire taxable property in one Congressional district. But if Mr. Vanderbilt ever supposed that he should be permitted to send several representatives of Congress, he was too sensible to express his opinion. How ridiculous would the property-owners of Charleston appear if they were to announce publicly that in future they would deny the right of men who do not own property to vote as they pleased. Neither Federal nor State constitutions recognize any distinction between rich and poor men at the polls and it is the height of folly for the Charleston News and Courier to arrogate the property owners of South Carolina any political superiority over those who do not. The rule of a class of men elected to power on account of their wealth, solely, has always been marked by its selfishness rather than by its statesmanship. Washington, Hamilton, Adams, and Franklin, without a dollar in their purses, were of far greater worth and honor to the State than a legion of rich men, whose highest aim, like that of the crowd at Athens, is to buy cheap and sell dear.

Shifted Again.

Speaking of the coming election for Governor, the News and Courier of Monday last, said editorially: "The most prominent as well as the most available candidate, of course, is Governor Chamberlain.

The Shifter supports Hampton but bets on Chamberlain. A company of United States soldiers has been stationed at Blackville, the most quiet county in the State since the war; but we suppose that if any attempt at intimidation is made here, the United States marshal will not be slow in ordering a number of "the boys in blue" to Orangeburg. Wallace is in for free speech and we opine will see to it that that law is observed in this State. We recommend men of both parties to moderation and prudence.

A while back the Columbia Union-Herald, the nursing of the South Carolina Treasurer, exclaimed that the Centennial Liar had brook loose again, whereupon a brother quill driver hinted that he was not aware of the fact that the Union-Herald man had temporarily suspended. In these parts we never noticed any suspension either. The needles have been turned out daily with undeviating exactitude.

Gov. Chamberlain has issued a proclamation announcing his intention to appoint three Commissioners of election in each county of the State; and in order that each political party shall be fairly represented, he proposes to appoint on each board two Republicans and one Democrat. And in all cases he will endeavor to appoint fair minded and just men.

One thing we are obliged to notice, viz: that our friends in the convention, sopped up every office, themselves--didn't leave a crumb of an office for an outsider! We don't think this exactly fair, because being invited to the dinner it don't look right for our hosts to eat all up, and leave their guests the privilege of washing the dishes. Now if there is a man in the world who wants an office it is the senior editor of this paper--and expected it, too. No one as yet has invited him to run as an independent candidate, but we will meet any committee on that subject with open arms. The county offices are still open to competition--We would like the office of coroner, until after the election, if we can do no better. --Marshall Planter.

The above is from the pen of C. W. Dudley, a man fond of writing, and especially of himself. He belongs to the school politicians and is not likely to be honored, even with the office of coroner. Before the late Democratic Convention his paper was a strong advocate of the nomination of Chamberlain by the Democrats.

To the Editor of News and Times:

There are those, in every community who deserve credit, for the parts they are enabled to play, by, indomitable energy, perseverance and patience. Such an one should not go unnoticed, either by a generous public, or private individual. When one has been weighed in the balances and not found wanting, shall we not be ready at any time to endorse him?

Such an one has just left us--Charlie M. Hurum, the teacher of our Brass Band is gone. But he has left his works to show for themselves, and we cannot fail to appreciate the same. Having been selected as teacher of the Band, composed of young gentlemen of the town and vicinity, he has in the short period of three months, carried the Band to a degree of proficiency which has been indeed a surprise to the people of the Town and to all who have had the pleasure of listening to their really charming music.

They have, under the lead of Mr. Hurum, gone far ahead of other bands which have been in existence, for years, and we cannot feel otherwise than that Charlie Hurum deserves our heartiest commendation. TRELLO.

[COMMUNICATED.]

How fortunate Mr. Editor, is Orangeburg in the happy possession of a full supply of Church Bells, and in the judicious use made of them? How grandly they sound out at early morn to inform our little ones, that the Sabbath School will commence at some hour in the day, and then interrupt the sweet prattle of the school to announce the approaching Church service at the same definite hour and later on, as the sun's rays fall more and more aslant they peal out the tidings that at some hour during the approaching night services may be again expected.

How completely has the old fogy idea been exploded, that bells were intended to be rung to indicate the exact hour at which worship commenced. That is a folly of the past. Now one can use their own discretion and guess at the proper time. Still we think the present system might be improved, strange as it may seem, to say so, but would it that bell should ring every sixtyn, should be at his post at sunrise and then burst out in one grand, melodious peal, which lasting one hour or more might indicate by its length the number of services to be expected during the day, the time when is of no consequence, to avoid working on Sunday, this might even be done on Saturday night. A Financier Arrested

Ex-Governor Robert K. Scott, of South Carolina, a few days ago applied to Judge Donohue for orders of arrest in two suits against Hardy Solomon, late president of the South Carolina bank of Columbia. He charges in one action that about June 14, 1875, Solomon borrowed $5,000, and gave him as a collateral a certificate of deposit in the bank of which he was president. The complaint charges that Solomon fraudulently managed the bank so as to render the certificates worthless; that he disposed of $100,000 stock he had in the bank to the corporation, then as president closed the bank and had a receiver appointed, and that in consequence of such action, wilfully taken, the defendant was enabled to secrete his money where his creditors could not reach it.

The papers in the second action charge that on the 15th of December, 1875, Solomon secured the loan of $58,500 consolidated South Carolina bonds of the value of $12,350, to be returned in forty days, it being distinctly agreed that the title to said bonds should remain in the plaintiff, but that the defendant could hypothecate them. The charge is made that he converted the bonds to his own use for the purpose of secreting his money from his creditors. Mr. Solomon was arrested yesterday by City Marshal P. J. Hambury on his return from Saratoga to this city. The defendant was admitted to bail in $20,000. E. B. Wesley, owner of the Westminister hotel, and John H. Crook qualifying as sureties.--New York Herald.

A white rifle company from this County attended the recent political meeting at Gadsden No. disturbance.

Death of Gen. Wagner.

General JOHN A. WAGNER died on Sunday at Wallhalla, S. C. He was born in Sievern, in the Kingdom of Hanover, in 1816. He emigrated to this country in 1831, and shortly afterwards settled in Charleston. General WAGNER was a prominent and useful citizen, and his death at this time is a great loss to our State. Our Charleston contemporaries pay deserved tributes to his private worth and public enterprise. In 1848 he founded the present thriving and prosperous town of Wallhalla. He was the founder and President of the German Fire Insurance Company of Charleston; he organized the German Fire Engine Company; he organized the congregation of the German Lutheran Church of Charleston, and several Masonic Lodges. He was prominently identified with the several societies of his fellow-countrymen. During the war, he entered the service of the State as Captain of Artillery and was promoted Major, Lieutenant-Colonel. After the war he was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1865, and an influential member of the State Legislature. He was elected Mayor of Charleston in 1871 by a handsome majority. Gen. WAGNER was elected a delegate to the St. Louis Convention, and was recently honored by the Democracy as an elector at large for Tilden and Hendricks, being elected to the last position by the unanimous voice of the Convention. For a number of years he edited the Zeitung, and "his active brain, from early manhood up, was ever at work devising ways and means for calling into being institutions that had for their object the good of his fellow-countrymen, and of the city and State of his adoption." His monuments in Charleston and South Carolina are many. In the language of the News and Courier, "Gen. WAGNER had strong convictions, and was not unfrequently very tenacious in supporting and carrying them out. In this way he often antagonized prejudices and alienated those who had been his supporters; yet it has been the fortune of few men in public life to have won and kept to the last so large a following of warm steadfast personal friends. There was about him a magnetism that seemed to start him as an Agamemnon--a king of men. In him Charleston has lost one of her most active and useful citizens, and South Carolina a faithful and devoted son."

A Card.
