

snarled at Mr. Clay in a very offensive manner. The old orator did not show feelings of action or thought in reply. He brought forward a certain letter, written by a citizen of Missouri, last autumn, and published in the papers at that time, showing that Mr. Benton was, at one time, in his opposition to the admission of California, as a State, denouncing it as a cowardly act of submission to the Wilnot proviso party, &c. Mr. Benton was pelted with rage, and in excited tones and manner, branded the letter as a calumny, and holding Mr. Clay responsible for it, he repelled his remarks with scorn and contempt. Violent words were used. Mr. Webster interfered in behalf of the dignity of the Senate, and reproached the Vice President for allowing, unrebuked, such a controversy. Mr. Hale made fun of the whole thing, alluding to the frequent allusion on himself which he said every one seemed to enjoy; and thus diverted the attention of the Senate from the contemplation of this severe passage at arms. The Senate was quieted, but did not adjourn, without the yeas and nays. The Senators gathered into squalls, and went off, finding relief, it may be hoped, in hearty obstructions.

In the House, the conflict was renewed on the California bill. It is not thought there was any disposition, on the part of the House, to take any question, but, if there had been, it would not have been obtained. Amendments were offered and very fierce and eloquent five minute speeches were made on them, chiefly by Southern members. At length, Mr. Stanton, of Kentucky, a Democrat, and an opponent of the Clay scheme, rose before the House, and the line of thirty-six, thirty, his ultimatum, offered an amendment to the effect that South of the line of thirty-six, thirty, slavery should not be interfered with. A vote was taken on this, in Committee, and it was voted down, by about twenty majority, seventy-one members not voting. This caused some inflammatory remarks on the part of the Southern members, and which were answered by violent harangues on the part of the North.

Mr. James Thompson, of Pennsylvania, denounced the motion as a trap, declaring that it was not understood, and that it was sprung upon the Committee for the purpose of mischief. Some strong personal attacks took place between Mr. Toombs and Mr. Winthrop, and between Mr. Toombs and Mr. E. D. Baker, of Illinois. The House broke up in a very bad temper, and during the evening, subsequently, I did not find the members at all composed. These are only the beginning of such scenes. But, when things come to the worst, they must mend. The darkest time is just before day; and, with the aid of this philosophy, we must hope for a better state of things.

UNROLLING OF THE MUMMY.—Mr. Gliddon was honored with a much larger attention on Wednesday, the second day of the mummy opening, at Boston. The swathing bandages were carefully unrolled an operation that occupied half an hour, and resulted in the discovery of papyrus or cork of the dead, such as was usually depicted on the monuments of Egypt, and a scarabaeus or winged beetle, seen in Prof. Agassiz pronounced a very perfect specimen. The papyrus, antedating the period of the sojourn of the Israelites in Egypt, was not in a state to unroll so as to prevent its crumbling in the operation. It must first be carefully moistened. After the bandages had been taken from the great mummy, it was displayed to the audience. But the mode of embalming this specimen had been peculiar—being by dipping the body in boiling bitumen, so that the face looked as if carved out of an aromatic coal. Some of the learned medical gentlemen on the platform disputed the sex of the mummy, and for a moment doubt was thrown upon the accuracy of Mr. Gliddon's reading of the hieroglyphical inscription. But this doubt was dispelled by one of the most distinguished of our anatomical professors, who very satisfactorily showed that the position of the hand had led to the erroneous supposition invalidating Mr. Gliddon's statement. The Transcript says:

"During the operation of unfolding the bandages, a fine resinous dust was raised, which many of the audience were sneezing. The mummy having been swathed, was placed, together with the articles found on the person, in a glass case, for the inspection of the curious."

Neighbor Wilkin's Hint.
A man having purchased a worn out farm and invested all his money in his real estate, tried hard by his labor to make it produce a crop. After a laborious summer's work he signally failed. His crops of corn, oats, and buckwheat, were scarcely worth harvesting. Winter came on, and with it discouragement and despondency. He met his neighbor, and in the language of scripture, inquired, "What shall I do?" His neighbor in reply, in true Yankee style, answered this question by asking another. Neighbor Wilkins, have you ever kept a third man on your farm?" "Always." "How can you gain the greatest amount of labor in a season from his efforts?" "I have a horse that gives him a plentiful supply of food for a full stomach for a laborer is a jewel; feed him the day early, and keep steady at it." "You have answered truly; manage your farm as you do your hired man. Feed it with nourishment for vegetation; feed it full and keep it fed. Clear out the barn yard; dig up the muck from the swamps; and sow on all the ashes you can get; cart manure from the drainage of the streets; and when you begin upon a field, feed it, feed it full and keep it fed. Then go to the next lot, and feed in the same style. Such fields recollect the kindness of the owner, and they pay him for it more than fifty fold. Then plough and dig and the reward is sure." Neighbor Wilkins opened his eyes in astonishment at his own ignorance, and said, "I see! I see! A poor starved field cannot work much. A poor starved field cannot bear much." Common sense might have taught him, but it had not. "Thousands, like him, 'scratch grass' for naught all their days.

Neighbor Wilkins saw where he missed it. The next year he planted four acres of corn, after he had coated the field with all the fertilizing material he could gather during one short winter. He told me that "he had scraped all creation." November told a true story. "Two hundred and sixty bushels of corn" made him laugh. His wife made puddings without grumbling, and his children eat with pleasure. Thus, friend Wilkins went from field to field, and fed it as he went. In its turn it fed him, his family, his cattle. His barren farm became productive; his naked fields became clothed with herbage. He became rich. His farm was rich. Peace dwelt in his household, plenty filled his granaries, and fortune smiled upon him.

Are you an unfortunate farmer, cursed with poor land and stunted crops! Look at Mr. Wilkins, and in the language of the Bible, "Go thou and do likewise."—Dollar Newspaper.

Stanzas to L.—
(ORIGINAL.)
I.
A thousand mingling voices say,
With gladness in each note, "tis May,"
The west winds o'er the roses play,
In wild delight,
And lead the warblers, all so gay,
A song by night.

II.
How sweet, their liquid breathings swell,
Now gay, now plaintive from the dell!
They chant a sun-set brief farewell,
To yon green vale,
Where on thine youthful ear, first fell,
Love's whispered tale.

III.
Now comes to mind the days, gone by;
When Love first taught my soul to sigh,
While gazing on that soft wild eye,
Which gazed on me,
Ere Hope's green bough began to die,
And droop, for thee.

IV.
E'en though our hearts have known the blight,
Of winter's chill and murky night,
The past, no memory, throws a light
Of buried flame;
And turns Hope's rusty chain as bright,
As thy lov'd name.

V.
And though it brings my bosom pain,
Oh! let me wake my love again,
With some sweet, half-forgotten strain,
Once sang for thee!
And though it will be all in vain,
'Tis sweet to me.

VI.
And if I chance to drop a tear,
For moments still so sweet, so dear,
'Twill soften down the gloom, I wear
Lost one, for thee;
And hilt the waves of dark despair
On grief's wild sea.

THE COW PEAS.—An exchange paper says: "It is found that the Cow Peas answers every purpose in Southern culture that the clover does for the North; as food for the human family it is pre-eminently better than corn, and the vine and leaf fully equal to clover, and as a fertilizer for the earth it is not surpassed by any plant in cultivation."

Married, on Wednesday Evening the 12th inst. by the Rev. E. L. King, Mr. O. P. McRoy formerly of Darlington District to Miss MARY VAUGHAN, of this District.

Obituary.
Died, in Conwayboro, No. Ca., on the 8th instant, JAMES ELLIOTT CHANDLER, in the 76th year of his age, who was the Rev. JAMES H. and Z. A. CHANDLER, of the South Carolina Conference. In his affliction, which was somewhat protracted, he gave evidence of patient resignation, and a religious trust in the Saviour of sinners, and expressing himself with the utmost confidence of going to Heaven after death. He attached himself to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, something near two years ago, at a protracted meeting, held at St. Luke's Church, Sumterville Circuit, by the Rev. H. ZIMMERMAN. He delighted in singing Church and singing the songs of Zion, one of his favorite hymns was
I love thy kingdom Lord,
The house of thine abode &c.

He had an extraordinary mind for one of his age; his collection of names and incidents were surprising. But he is gone. A mysterious Providence has cut him down in the midst of bright hopes. But to him, death is gain.

PROSPECTUS OF 'The Southern Press'
An Association of six-and-thirty Members of Congress, Senators and Representatives, have constituted the undersigned a committee to superintend the establishment of a Southern Press at Washington City, to be devoted to the exposition and defence of Southern Rights and Institutions—this sentiment of course, in relation to Political Affairs generally, without reference to the old party lines of Whig and Democrat. Arrangements are now in progress, promptly to ensure the issue of such a paper under the title of "The Southern Press."

The paper will be published weekly, and a WEEKLY issue—the latter to contain substantially the same matter as the former, and intended to reach those points of the country whose mail facilities are limited.
A DAILY issue will be added hereafter, should it be deemed advisable or necessary by the press and people of the Southern States.

The paper will not be exclusively political—but will embrace on its broad sheet the General News of the day, Domestic and Foreign, and will be taken to give full and correct Reports of the Proceedings and Debates in both Houses of Congress, as well as the action of the local Legislatures on the Southern question.

A limited number only of Advertisements will be received—the main object being to furnish a large amount of reading matter.
The paper will be printed on a sheet equal in size to those of the other Washington papers, and the material will be procured especially for the purpose.

It is earnestly hoped that every true friend to the South will aid in procuring subscribers, and forward the names, with the amount subscribed, to some Southern Representative at Washington.
Postmasters are authorized by law to remit subscribers free of postage.

Terms:
For Tri-weekly during the session of Congress, and semi-weekly during the recess, the price will be, per annum $5.00
Weekly paper $2.50
A year's subscription must be paid in advance, and the cash accompany the name sent.
All persons procuring ten names shall be entitled to receive a copy gratis for one year.
A. P. BUTLER,
JACKSON MORTON,
R. TOOMBS,
J. THOMPSON.

Editors, and papers friendly to the enterprise, will please publish this Prospectus, which will entitle them to an exchange with the newspaper. All who comply with this request will send a copy of the paper containing it to the Committee at Washington.
