From the Charleston Evening News.

Aurora Borealis, The Aurora Boroulis is not less a mysle-by that a boulty. There are various theo-ries in regard to this phantamenta. Some contrast that the clouds are of vacanic orlrentrial that the clot is are at vicanic arti-gan. Others, again say that they are con-pared of solutio in tathe particles; and again, that the lighterine caused by the re-diction of the sub's rays upon the ico-ficilla of the polar sea. I. But, as Dr. Lard-ner, from whom we have duited above, being the modes operadd, are principle of agains, of this strange phenomenon "must in the present state of science, test upon mere conjucture."

There are some points however, upon which men of science are generally agreed. Which then of kelence are greater, age.

I.e That the phonomonon takes place within the limits of the earth's atmosphere; whigh is proved by the fact that with apparent places of the aurora, in relation to Pellettial objects is not fixed, and that its changes t andergo na motion, in reference to the zenith or horizin, such as would be produced by the directl rotation of the

2. That it is of electrical origin, as is shown by its strict similarity to the appearance presented by the passaira of artificial electricity through rarrified air.

3. That all is dependent by some law upon the magnetic influence of the earth, as as included by the fact that who rays at columns of light are all parallel to the dipping spedie, and that the bows, corones, had other visible forms which the phenomeand other visible forms which the phenomena affect, are always symmetrically placed with respect to the magnetic meridian. It That the converging appearance of the columns of light is decoptive, and increby the result of perspective,—the columns being, cally, parallel to each wher and to the magnetic meridian.

5. That the height above the earth, at which the phenomenon takes place, is subject to variation, and has been differently estimated at from fifty to three hundred miles; and that the testimany of some observers in regard to audible sounds accompanying the auroral displays under any circumstances, is somewhat apocryphid.

6. That "the aurora Borealis is com-6. That "the aurora Borealis is com posed of real clouds," though "what the nature of the matter is, composing such clouds, must in the present state of science, rest upon mere conjecture.

A variety of theories upon this subject have, as our readers are aware, been framed by different writers,—such as, that the clouds are of volcanic origin.

Charleston Market.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER OTH Cotton - Received the past week by Collon—Received the past week by railroad, 6,705 oales; by water and wagons, 521 bales; togethor, 7,236 bales; (corresponding week last year, 9,484 bales. Experied in the same, time to foreign ports, 4,078 bales, coastwise, 4,671 bales; making the total expirits of the week 6,079 bales; and, I taving on band a stock at 15,655 bales, inclusive of 1,203 bales on shipboard not cleared, against a stock of 22,846 bales

same time last year.

The total receipts since our last report amount to 47,182 bales (against 45,997 bales some time last year.) making a grand total since the 1st September to the latest dates, of 207,*21 bales, against 258,373 bales, the same time last year, and 260,967 bales the year previous.

Our last weekly review having been published one day after its customary time, the present report, consequently, comprises the transactions of only five days.

The Upland market, on Friday, the 31st ult, closed with a good demand at the reduction of 1-8, to which holders had submitted to on the Wednesday provious. consequent of the Europa's accounts, the sales of the day having amounted to near 1800 bales: Fair quality at 8 1.8.

The inquiry on Saturday, the first day of the week now under review, although less active, still continued to a fair extent, bity is taking about 1150 bales, at unchanged prices. On Monday, after the opening of the market, with but an easy demand, the Franklin's advices, three days later than the Europa, were received towards men. The reported continuation of a depressed and drouping market at Liverpool, caused a hearly total cessation operations in ours for the remainder of the day; the sales having amounted to only 540 bales.

On Thiesday buyers demanded 1.8 reduction, which holders, in order to effect sales were compelled to grant; and with guile an active inquiry, unet freely by the latter—upwards of 1700 bales changed hands. On Wednesday, the demand continued to a fair extent—but, as generally reported to us, at firmer prices, and more in favor of holders, the transactions footing 1471 bales. Yesterday the transactions reached about 1000 bales-the market again exhibiting rather an unsettled character, and prices comparatively ircharacter, and prices comparatively in-regulars—without however, any duotable chauge since the previous Wednesday. The total transactions from Saturday last have amounted to 5,900 bales, at the following particulars: 80 bales at 8 1-1 70 t at 1-8, 1121 at 8, 537 at 7 7-8, 1019 at 7 3-4, 870 at 7 5-8, 121, at 7 9-16, 901 at 7 1-2: 109 at 7 3-8, 14 at 7 5-16, 69 at 7 -8, 11 at 7, 42 at 6 7-4, 23 at 6 6.8, 44 at 6 1.2, 41 at 6 1.4, 19 at 6. The following quotations: Liverpool classification will afford an index of the market for the two last days; inferior 6 a 6 1-2 ordinary 6 5 8 a 6'3-4, low to good midding 7 a 73-8; unidding fair 7,3-4, fair to strictly fair 8 a 8 1-8, good fair 8 1-4.—Courier.

WE, the undersigned, take this method of recommending Dr. James G. Hicks to the public as a man well worthy of patronage in his projectsion as a Cancer Doctor. From general opinion and our own observations We have been accustomed to think Cancers were for the most part incurable, after having attained any greatinge or size, but we have seen and known Cancers cured by him in a very short time, which seemed to dely all human skill, even the sight of which drew from beholders remarks of fear and despair, hence we gladly embrace this mode of recommending him to the community, thinking we thereby shall confer a favor on many and assist the cause of humanity.
