I would not die in Summer, When trees are filled with fruit-And every sportsman has a gun, The little birds to shoot. The girls then wear the bloomer dress, And half distract the men : It is the time swear it out-I would not perish then.

I would not die in Autumn, When new-mown hay swells sweet And little pigs are rooting round For something nice to eat.
'Tis then the huntsman's wild halloo, And oysters gin to fatten up-

I would not perish then.

I would not die in Winter, For one might freeze to death, When blustering boreas sweeps around And takes away one's breath, When sleigh-bells jingle—horses snort And buckwheat cakes are tall In fact, this is a right good world-

MISCELLANEOUS.

I would not die at all!

From the U. S. Journal. The Four Master Spirits.

Happening to cast my eyes over the portraits in a gallery of paintings, remarked that they were so arranged as to give four personages-Alexander, Hannibal, Cesar and Bonapartethe most conspicuous places. I had seen the name before; but never did a similar train of recollections arise in my bosom, as when my mind now hastily glanced over the several histories. Alexander, having climbed the dizzy heights of ambition, and with his temples bound with the chaplets dipped in the blood of countless nations, looked down upon a conquered world, and wept that there was not another to conquer, set a city on fire, and died in a disgraceful scene of debauch. Hannibal, after having, to the consternation of Rome, passed the Alps—and having put to flight the armies of this 'mistress of the world,' and stripped three bushels of gold rings from the fingers of her slaughtered knights; and made her very foundation quake -returned to his country, to be defamed, to be driven in exile, and to die at last by poison administered by his own hand, unlamented and unwept in a foreign clime.

Cæsar, after having taken eight hundred cities, and dyed his garments in the blood of his fellow men-after having pursued to death the only rival he had on earth-was assassinated by those he considered his nearest friends and at the very point in which he had gained the highest object of his ambi-

Bonaparte, whose mandates kings and priests obeyed, after having filled the earth with the terror of his nameafter having deluged Europe with tears and blood, and clothed the world in aackcloth—closed his days in lonely world, yet where he could sometimes see his country's banner waving over the deep, but which would not; or could ber, and warranted to give satisfaction. Or dere from a distance promptly attended to.

He may be found at the stand formerly occupied by A Conway, and more recently by D. W. Price. not, bring him aid.

Thus those four men, who from the peculiar situations of their portraits seemed to stand as representatives of all those whom the world calls 'great' -those four who made the earth tremble to its centre-severally died-one by intoxication, the second by suicide. the third by assassination, and the last in lonely exile.

How vain is the greatness of this now living would not rather die the customers util Fall. Prompt payment is death of the humble, righteous man, required. than that of Alexander, or Hannibal, or Cesar, or Napoleon?

ELECTRICITY EXTRAORDINARY-During the past week,' says the Edgefield Advertiser of Thursday, 'we have been visited with an enormous quantity of rain, accompanied by very severe lightning, &c. In one instance, three points were stricken by the same pas-sage of electricity. These points were at intervals of two hundred yards in a direct line. Mrs. Addison's dwelling house (one of the points) was considerably injured at one of the corners. A shop on Mrs. Laborde's premises was the second point, and by this bolt we regret to state that a negro woman belonging to Mrs. B. was kiled-a young lady in the same room was very considerably shocked. The third point was a tree in Gen. Bonham's yard, and here also a negro was knocked down, but not seriously injured.'

"The most striking illustration of the saying, that the pith of a lady's letter is in the postscript, which we have ever heard of, was that of a young lady, who, having gone out to India and writing home to her friends, concluded in these few words: 'You will see by my signature that I am marri-

OREAT OURE FOR DYSPEPSIA!

THE TRUE DIGESTIVE FLUID OR, GASTRIC JUICE.

Prepared from RENNET, or the fourth Stomac of the Ox, after directions of Baron Liebig, the of the Ox, after directions of Baron Liebig, the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. Houdton, M. D., Philadelphia, Pa.

This is a truly wonderful remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Constipation, and Debility, Curing after Nature's own method, by Natures's own Agent, the Gastrie, Juice. s of Baron Liebiy, the Gastric Juice.

1 1 Half a tenspoonful of Pepsin, infused water, will digest or dissolve, Five Pounds Reast Beef, in about two hours, out of the Stomuch.

Pepsin is the chief element, or Great Digest. ing Principle of the Gastric Juice—the Solvent of the Food, the Purifying, Preserving, and Stimulating Agent of the Stomach and Intes-tines. It is extracted from the Digestive Stomach of the Ox, thus forming an artificial Diges-tive Fluid. precisely like the natural Gastric Juice in its Chemical powers, and furnishing a Complete and Perfect Substitute for it. By the compete and Period Substitute for it. By the aid of this preparation, the pains and evils of Indigestion and Dyspepsia are remove), just as they would be by a healthy Stomach. It is do ing wonders for Dyspeptics, curing cases of Debility, Emaciation, Nervous Deeline, and Dyspeptic Consumption, supposed to be on the verge of the grave. The Scientific Evidence upon which is believed to be on the Constitution of the grave.

is based, is in the highest degree Curi

the grave.

Baron Liebig in his celebrated work on Animal Chemistry, says: "An artificial Digestive Fluid, analogous to the Gastrie Juice, may be readily prepared from the nucous membrane of the stomnoh of the Calf, in which various artithe stomach of the Calf, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs, will be softened, changed and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach.

Dr. Combe, in his valuable writings on the 'Physiology of Digestion,'' observes that "a diminution of the due quantity of the Gastric Juice is a prominent and all-prevailing cause of Dyspepsia;'' and he states that "a distinguished professor of medicine in London, who was severely afflicted with this complaint, finding every thing else to fail, had recourse to the Gastric Juice, obtained from the stomachs of living animals, which proved completely successfully."

Professor Dunglison, of the Jefferson College Professor Dunglison, of the Jefferson College Philadelphia, in his great work on Human Phy-siology, devotes more than fifty pages to an ex-amination of this subject. His experiments with Dr. Beaumont, on the Gastric Juice ob-tained from the living human stomach, and from animals, are well known. "In case," he says, "digestion occurred as perfectly in the

he says, "digestion occurred as perfectly in the artificial as in the natural digestions."

Dr. John W. Draper, Professor of Chemistry, in the Medical College of the University of New York, in his "Text Book of Chemistry," page 386, says.: "It has been a question whether artificial digestion could be performed—but it is now universally admitted that it may be."

Dr. Carpenter's standard work on Physiology, which is in the library of every physician, and is used as a Text Book in all the Colleges, is full of evidence similar to the above, respecting the remarkable Digestive power of Pepsin, and the fact that it may be readily separated from the stomach of the calf or Ox, and used for a brief period and then forgotten after they have done their guilty race of mischief, by lave done their guilty race of mischief, because done their guilty race of mischief, by lave done their guilty race of mischief, because of the faculty itself."
