We'll dress in real "bifurcate," girls, With glossy beaver hats, And don the most bewitching coats, And Brummel tied crayats; We'll wear superb gitt buttons, girls, Bright extra, rich, plain, treble gilt, Flat surface-that's enough !

Oh! won't we look bewitching, girls, When we are so trimly drest! No mortal man can brave our charins, Thou he may strive his best; Be-whiskered folks may enty, girls, Our many garbs and airs, But let them fret until they tire-Poor tellows ! no one cares.

Perhaps a few may "cut" us, girls, And lay us on the shelves; But what of that ! we'll crook our arms, And act the beaux ourselves! And if they wont say marry, girls, We'll call them no gallants ; But come what will-float, sink, or swim-

We'll never yield our pants.

Good and True.

The Buffalo Courier contains the following scene, supposed to have taken place after Scott had received the news of the nomination of Frank Pierce. It is graphically described, and the genius of the writer will be hereafter invoked for another description of the election of Pierce and King:

A SCENE.

[Gen. Scott and his Aid-de-Camp walking. The General suddenly buttons his coat close around him.] General Scott .- Whence comes this chilling blast?

Aid-de-Camp .- From the Granite Mills, General.

Gen. Scott .- It pierces to the marrow of the bones and deadens hope.

Aid-de-Camp. - Bear up, the South will soon send forth its genial breeze. Gen. Scott .- Ah me! that breeze I fear will never come to me as once twere wont. 'Twas balmy then; when it now comes, 'twill be like the Aid-de-Camp .- Despond not on the eve of the great battle, General. The summer sun of York will soon break forth, and make all cheerful. Gen. Scott .- The sun of York is veiled in vapors from foul sewers breathed, and warms not as if should. Aid-de-Camp .- I'll call your faithfal servitors, General, Seward and Greely and Thad, who'll comfort speak and hope renew. Gen. Scott.-No more. They are the cause of all my woe, and will be, my death.

[Exit both with rueful counter nances.

People have often wondered what becomes of the Free-Soil and Abolition politicians after they leave this world -a world for which they seem to think themselves much too good. The public have now the benefit of a discovery Mr. E. L. Keves, late of the Massachusetts Senate, and at present the conductor of a furious Abolition Journal in Dedham, makes the following disclosure in his paper of the 26th ultimo:

"If there is in the other world any knowledge of what transpires in this, there must be boisterous merriment in the infernal regions at the just retribution which has overtaken Mr. Webster and his friends."
Whether the Free Soilers and Aboliticnists will be fiattered by this indication of the particular part of the other world which they are destined to occupy we do not undertake to say, but they must bear in mind that the gentleman who wrote the above is one of themselves, and therefore well acquainted with the sort of lodgings that would be likely to suit them Boston Courier.

FLUENCY IN CONVERSATION .-Roll an empty barrel down hill, and what a noise it makes. So with an empty carriage over the pavements. So also with an empty head. When it contains but a few scattering ideas everybody can hear them rattle .-You almost see them when that fellow who carries such a head passes by you. Have you not such an individual in your mind's eye? We have. His name may be Dick. or Jim; Bill, or Joe, but he is the same everywhere—he wags the same tongue, shoots forth the same ideas. He thinks he is wise, but every body thinks otherwise. Had he real knowledge, he would, he would talk less and say more. Generally a man of sterling talent talks but very little, yet every word tells. Addison was a person of this description. He was always embarrassed in company. Some of our best living authors—men of genius and talent—have been noticed for their paucity of words in common conversation. Yet men who know scarcely any more than twice two make four, are always rattling off words, and pass for persons of of sterling talent talks but very little, off words, and pass for persons of some consequence. They utter words strong Blue Shirtings, Stripes and Tickings, at without meaning, words that would without meaning, and the would A lot of Muslin Insertings and Edgings, at half incessant talker we always avoid. In his presence we feel about as happy as on the brow of a cataract-only there is some sense to the latter. In an office or store what is more trying than a person with the gift of the gab? what but a straggling musician under your window, or a fiddler in your garret?

How NEAR IS HEAVEN .-- Christians sometimes look far away to Heaven. But that rest is not far off. The clouds that hide the shining world are thin; they are transient, and will soon be observed no more. The journey may end this hour; one step more may place the christian in the world of light. One dark hour may hang upon him, but the morning comes, and no shade behind it; day, bright, peaceful and eternal, succeeds it. A pang may be felt for a moment and then it flies away foreyer. A conflict, sharp and painful. may continue for a night, but victory, eternal victory, and eternal hajpiness ensues!

Dr. Combe, in his valuable writings on the "Physiology of Digestion," observes that "a diminution of the due quantity of the Gastric Juice is a prominent and all-prevailing cause of Dyspepsia;" and he states that "a distinguished professor of medicine in London, who was se-Dyspejsin," and he states that "a distinguished professor of medicine in London, who was severely afflicted with this complaint, finding every thing else to fail, had recourse to the Gastrie Juice, obtained from the stomachs of living animals, which proved completely successfully."

Professor Dunglison, of the Jefferson College Professor Dunglison, of the Jefferson College Philadelphia, in his great work on Human Physiology, devotes more than fifty pages to an examination of this subject. His experiments with Dr. Beaumont, on the Gastric Juice obtained from the living human stomach, and from animals, are well known. "In cases." he says, "digestion occurred as perfectly in the artificial as in the natural digestions."

Dr. John W. Draper, Professor of Chemistry, in the Medical College of the University of New York, in his "Text Book of Chemistry, page 386, says,: "It has been a question whether artificial digestion could be performed—but it is now universally admitted that it may be."

2 HILADELPHIA, May 3, 1852.

J. S. Silver, Esy.:— Dear Sir—We have used your "Plastic Paints" for more than a year, and for painting bridges, depots, &c., &c., we have found it equal to any paint we have used; in fact we now give it a preferance over all others we have tried for such purposes.

Yours respectfully.

we have tried for such purposes.
Yours respectfully,
JOHN TUCKER, President.
we have received from gentlemen of our city, who have used Silver's Mineral Paints.
COLORS.—We have seven different colors, viz: three browns, two chocolates, black and yellow, and by combination, make every variety and shade of color. ty and shade of color.

which, like white lead, acts destructively on the iron. In fact, this paint makes iron doubly valuable for building purposes.

BRICK WORK.—They give to house-walls a much heavier coating than any other paints, and if standing is required, nothing holds so firmly or finishes so well with it.

OLD ROOFS.—Give us a roof never so old and leaky, Silver's Mineral Paints will make it the above the recommendation of the paints.
