ing Sherman's Raid.

Gen. Joseph Wheeler, the famous Confederate cavalry leader and a brigadier general of the United States army since the war with Spain, died at 5.35 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. Sterling Smith, in Brooklyn. The veteran of two wars was 69 years old, but in spite of his age, there was hope until Thursday of his recovery from the attack of pneumonia, which caused the

It has not yet been announced where the body will be buried, but probably it will be in Arlington cometery, near Washington. Announce ment for the plans for the funeral will be made tomorrow. Gen. Wheeler was taken ill six days ago at his sister's home, where he has been living recently. He contracted a severe cold which developed into pleurisy and pneumonia. From the first his age told against him but the family did not give up hope until Wednesday night, when the disease was found to have affected both lungs.

Gen. Wheeler's immediate relatives were all with him. His daughters, Mrs. W. J. Harris and the Misses Anne, Lucille and Carrie Wheeler, nad been summoned from the South and arrived early in the week. His son, Maj. Jos. Wheeler, Jr., U. S. A., now stationed at West Point, was also present, as well as Gen. Wheeler's sister, Mrs. Sterling Smith, and her

The family were summoned to the bedside of the patient at midnight Wednesday night, when the doctor's in consultation concluded that the end was but a matter of hours. The general was then awake and conscious and his mind was apparently active. He seemed to know that death was approaching and though too weak to speak, he succeeded in giving signs of recognition and encouragement to his children.

Later the general sank into a peaceful alumber, and at the request of the doctors the family quietly withdrew from the sick man's bedside.

Gen. Wheeler was never again more than semi-conscious. He lingered until this evening and passed away

GEN. WHEELER'S CAREER.

Joseph Wheeler, soldier, born in Augusta, Ga., Sept. 10, 1836. He was graduated at the United States Military academy in 1859 and assigned to the dragoons. After a year's service at the cavalry school for practice at Carlisle, Pa., he received the full rank of second lieutenant, but on April 22, 1861, resigned and entered the Confederate army. He was made colonel of the Nineteenth Alabama infantry on Sept. 4, 1861, and served principally in the West.

At Sniloh he commanded a brigade and covered the Confederate retreat from the field. In July, 1862, he was transferred to a cavalry command and engaged in raiding Western Tennessee During the Kentucky campaign of that year he had charge of Gen. Brax ton Bregg's cavalry and fought at Green River and Perryville. He com manded the rear guard of the Confederate army when it retreated into Tennessee and on October 30, 1862, was promoted to brigadier general. At Murfreesboro he was in charge of the cavalry, and thereafter he was contin uously active in contesting Gen. Wil liam S. Rosecrans' advance, also at tacking his flanks, raiding in the rear and destroying his trains. On January 19, 1863, he received his commission as major general and opposed the Union advance at Chattanooga. He commanded the cavalry at Chickamauga and after the battle crossed crans' line of communications, defeat ing the force that was sent against him and destroying over 1,200 wagons with stores. On this raid he succeeded in damaging federal property to the value of $3,00J,000, but, after losing 600 men, was driven back to nothern Alabama. Subsequently he took part in the siege of Knoxville and covered Bragg's retreat from Lincoln Ridge and Lookout Mountain. During the winter and spring he coninually harassed the Union troops, and, on the advance of Gen. William T. Sherman's army toward Atlanta, he opposed every movement and fought almost daily, often with his men dismounted. July 27-30 he flught the raiding force of Gen. Geo. Stoneman, General Kenner Gerard and Gen. Eiward M. McCook, and captured many prisoners, including Gen. Stoneman and all the artillery and transportation. On Aug. 9, 1864, he was sent by Gen. John D. Hood to capture the national supplies, burn bridges and break up railways in the rear of Gen. Sherman's army. Passing through northern Georgia, he went into eastern Tennessee as far as the Kentucky line, and thence through middle Tennessee back into northern Alabama. During this raid, which lasted one month, he was continuously engaged and ruined much property. He was unsuccessful in destroying Sherman's communications, and was finally iriven back by the national cavalry. When convinced of the impossibility of arresting Sherman's advance, Wheeler was sent in front of the army to prevent the Union troops from raiding and foraging. He then engaged in the defense of Savannah, and for his lefense of Alken received the thanks Gen. Joe Wheeler Has Joined of the legislature of South Carolina. to the rank of lieutenant general on If he goes to prison I'll have no means Gen. Wheeler received his promotion Feb. 28, 1865, and continued in charge of the cavalry under Gen. Joseph E. Johnston until the surrender in April, 1865. The death of Gen. James E. B. Stuart, on May 11, 1864, made him senior cavalry general of the Confederate army. After the war, he studied law, which profession and the occupation of cotton planting he followed until 1880, when he was elected to congress as a Democrat, and took his sear on Dec. 5, 1881; but his place was successfully contested by Wm. M. Lowe, and he was unseated, June 3, He was reelected to the same congress on the death of Mr. Lowe, a Orangeburg.

Many citizens of forangeburg have good reason to be thankful for burdens lifted from aching backs, which they bore patiently for years. Scores tell about their experience publicly. Here's a case of it:

A. S. Chaney, mill hand in the Cotton Mill, says: "My back and kidneys troubled me for a number of years. A troubled me for a number of years. A dull heavy pain existed in the small of my back, taking all ambition out of me and preventing me from getting any rest or sleep at night. At times it was so severe as to make me lay off from work for days at a time which means dollars and cents. I consulted a doctor and he told me after a thorough examination that I had diabetes. I could not well afford the extensive treatment he thought necessary and I tried the best recommended remedies I kne v of, but not receiving any benefit from any of them I was actually discouraged. Some one told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a together too serious, so Wilson was box at the J. G. Wannamaker Mfg. sent to the state prison for from Co. I did not expect them to do me any more good than any other remedies I had tried and could hardly believe my own feeling when my back stopped aching. In a short time the kidne, secretions occame normal and regular; I rested well at nights and my work became a pleasure to me. For what Doan's Kidney Pills did for me I can and will recommend them to others.' For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United
