OLD VETERAN'S DAY.

ORANGEBURG SURRENDERS TO TO THE GRAND OLD HEROES.

They Parade Russell Street, Hear an Address From Col. Coward and Enjoyed a Big Dinner.

The city of Orangeburg surrendered unconditionally to the Old Confederate Veterans yesterday. The grand old heroes came in goodly numbers, and we want to congratulate them on their appearance. They looked well, marched well and we hope they will be with us many As soldiers on many a hard fought battlefield they covered their names with imperishable glory. President Roosevelt referred to them in one of his books as Lee's uncomparable veterans. They deserved this high compliment, and we are glad it was paid them by a man whose sympathies were on the other

Marshal Fred S. Dibble formed eleven o'clock and they marched down Russell street from Doyle street to the corner of Broughton street, where they counter-marched back to Middleton street and proceeded to the opera house, where the exercises of the day was to be held. The Old Veterans were escorted by the Tillman Volunteers, under command of Capt. J. H. Claffy, the students of the Orangeburg Collegiate Institute and the students of the Or-Ingeburg High School, under the supervision of Superintendent Thackston and the teachers, in the order named, the Old Veterans marching in the position of honor at the rear The procession was headed by the Orangeburg Military Band, under command of Leader O. K. Wilson. | 000; stock 107,873. Just in front of the band, at the head of the procession, were a squad of policemen under command of Chief A. Fischer. When the procession reached the Opera House the escorting column halted before entering and opened ranks and allowed the Old Veterans to march through and enter the Opera House first. On the stage were a number of Old Veterans, the middling. ladies and gentlemen composing the chair and the members of the press. The meeting was called to order by Prof. Stiles R. Mellichamp, who had been requested to act as chairman. He called on Rev. D. D. Dantzler to open the proceedings with prayer, which he did in a fervent petition to the Throne of Grace. The prayer was followed by a quartette from the Orangeburg Military Band, under Leader O. K. Wilson, rendering "The Vacant Chair" on their instru ments. "The Bonnie Blue" was then sung by the choir and the whole audiente under the leadership of Col. Martimer Glover.

Prof. Mellichamp then welcomed the Old Veterans in a short speech, in which he took occasion to compliment them on their appearance and extended them a hearty and cordial wellome to the city of Orangeburg and her hospitalities. He spoke feelingly of the ever shortening line of the Old Veterans, and veterans who wore the gray as well as with the veterans who wore the blue. He was liberally applauded. The choir then sang "The Old Kentucky Home," in which the large audience joined in.

Prof. Mellichamp then introduced Col. A. Coward in a neat and appropriate little speelh as the orator of the day. He referred to Col. Coward as a gallant and brave officer, who never failed to do his duty on the tented field in the days when the Stars and Bars were carried to We congratulate Mr. Marchant and victory in many a hard fought battle. The large audience of veterans and others endorsed all Prof. Mellichamp said of this gallant and brave soldier by cheering his statements in reference to him to the echo.

As Col. Coward arose and faced his old comrades, he was received with great applause by them. As soon as the applause subsided, he began his excellent address, which abundance of fresh air, especially in was given close attention and frequently applauded by the large au-

He spoke most feelingly and complimentary of the deeds of valor through the skin, bowels and kidand heroism performed by the Confederate soldiers, and related many stirring incidents of battles in which many of the Old Veterans before and what to take when you're sick, him had participated. He paid a beautiful tribute to the gallant Gen. Micah Jenkins, his most intimate friend, who laid down his young lichamp called the attention of the life for his country at the battle of the Wilderness. He also spoke feelingly of Col. T. J. After paying the Old Veterans in general the highest tribute for gallantry and heroism on the battlefield. Col. Coward complimated them very highly on what they have done in building up the waste places of Camp of Veterans, under whose the South and once again making it a land of prosperity and happiness since the war. Feeding Farm Handa.

Every farmer's wife knows what tremendous appetites farm hands usually have; but while they eat well they work well, too.

Here's a good suggestion about feeding farm hands. Give them plenty of Quaker Oats. A big dish of Quaker Oats porridge with sugar and cream or milk is the greatest breakfast in the world for a man who needs vigor and strength for a long day's work. The man that eats Quaker Oats plentifully and often is the man who does good work without excessive fatigue. There is a sustaining quality in Quaker Oats not found in other foods, and for economy it is at the head of the list. To meet needs of those in different climates Quaker Oats is packed in regular size packages and hermetically sealed tins; the latter for hot climates.
