The Republican administration has so many troubles that only a few could be even considered by the Cabinet.

Two Catholic priests out West have refused to banquet with Teddy because of his attempt to use the pope as an advertising agent.

Since France increased her protective tariff the cost of living has greatly increased, and the number of trusts, or combines, is being rapidly augmented.

We nominate Hearst and Watson for President and Vice-President on any kind of an old ticket they choose to trot out.

As Willie Hurst seems to think that his interests are best subserved by his knocking the Democratic party, how would it do for Democrats everywhere to boycott the Hearst newspapers.

The Augusta Herald says nothing but human fingers will ever be a practical cotton picking machine until cotton is grown on which all the bolls will open at the same time.

Jim Tawney, the standpatper Minnesota congressman, has met his fate at the hands of an unknown young lawyer with insurgent proclivities.

Congressman Payne declares that he has no apologies to make for the tariff bill. Several other standpat Congressmen who felt that way about the tariff will be hunting a job after the November election.

In a double-leaded utterance The New York Sun, Roosevelt's ancient enemy, call upon all good Republicans to seize the splendid chance now offered to, whack him hard by voting the Democratic State ticket.

Col. Bryan and Senator Tillman are now even. Sometime ago Bryan favored Tillman for voting with the Republicans for a duty on iron ore, and now Tillman scores Bryan for refusing to vote for the man the Democrats of Nebraska nominated for Governor.

The machine Republicans of New York who are highclass Federal office holders are mostly lined up for Mr. Roosevelt as delegates to the convention, and civil service traditions have been thrown to the winds.

A large number of Republican "lame ducks," standpatpers who had fallen in the primary election, gathered at Washington last week when President Taft was there.

Champ Clark in his speech to the Illinois Democratic convention completely demolished what was left of Uncle Joe and his standpat Republican associates—their extravagance, their protection to the trusts, their pork bills, and other measures of plundering the people.

Republican politicians soon lose all interest in politics if patronage vanishes. All the pretext of patriotism is based on "the old flag and an appropriation," or the equivalent of a good fat office with little or no work.

In a statement given out by him Senator Tillman says: "If my health continues to improve I expect to be a candidate for the United States senate in 1912, otherwise not. All will depend on how I stand the work in Washington when I go there in December."

Mrs. Hearst is reported to have said that her husband needs rest from the worry of attending to the large business cares of his newspapers.

The indications are that Teddy will get one of the worst political drubbings a man ever got when the New York State election comes off.

Taft Changes His Tune.

Pres. Taft has modified his views on some things very much in the last few months. Like many other Republican standpatpers he sees the storm coming and he seeks shelter.

In the same speech the President further arraigns his party by saying that "the evil in corrupt control of a Congress or a Legislature by private interests is manifest and a ways calls for condemnation."

A veto of this tariff bill, which protects the trusts in plundering the people, would have made the Presidents political fortune so sure, that even Teddy Roosevelt would not dare to have treated him as he has.

But bad as President Taft's tariff record is, it is better than Roosevelt's. During the years he was in the presidential office, Roosevelt was the subservient tool of Republican standpatpers.

As a matter of fact, neither Taft or Roosevelt could divorce corporations from the trusts and corporations that put up the money to elect them. Nor can any other Republican who may be elected.

That Ananias Club.

Teddy stands a fair chance of becoming an active member of his own Ananias Club. Mrs. Bellamy Store, the one time "My Dear Maria" of those interesting letters Teddy wrote some years ago, refused to remain a member of the Ananias Club.

Now Up to Teddy.

Using the steamroller in politics has its advantages at the time it is used, but those who are flattened out by it do not bear any love for the man who managed the machine in the future.

ed by the old guard, who were so ruthlessly routed out by Teddy and his cohorts at Saratoga.

WITH THE FUNNY MAN

No Alarm.

At the hotel at Sea-Cliffe where I was putting in a fortnight there was a man that I spotted as mean. Every day I looked for him to break out and say or do something to make the rest of us uncomfortable, and though he kept delaying, I did not change my opinion of him.

"How was it?" someone asked. "Got away with $45,000," replied the man.

"The young man did not actually yawn, but he took no interest. 'Did he get clean away?'"

"Right here among us." The young man lighted a cigarette with a hand that did not tremble, and after a moment the man's head rose up and said:

"If there is a bank employe among us, let him stand up."

"The young man stood up. 'Do you deny your guilt, sir?'"

"I do. I am only the janitor of the bank that was robbed, while it was the cashier that swiped the dough."

Then he sat down, and the meat man said he guessed he'd take a walk down by the bounding billows of the sound.

A Light Dinner.

Cornelius V. Collins, the criminologist and superintendent of New York's state prisons, narrated at a dinner some reminiscences of his interesting work.

"A clever criminal of gluttonous proclivities," he said, "once coughed a complaint in rather neat terms."

"My inspector, entering the man's cell one day, found it hot and stuffy."

"Why have you got your ventilator closed?" he asked.

"The burly and gluttonous prisoner answered plaintively: 'Well, inspector, your honor, the last time I had the ventilator open, I was a swab in, you see, and carried off my dinner while my back was turned.'"

Misinterpreted.

The boss entered his office, his face clouded, his brow wrinkled in angry thought. He called the office boy. Regarding the youth sternly, he said: "Johnny, do you smoke cigars?"

"I do-o-o a l-little, sir," stammered Johnny, paling beneath the tan of the baseball field.

The boss fixed his with his eagle eyes. "Then gimme one," he said. "I left mine on the bureau."—St. Paul Dispatch.

Soft Beams.

"Lady," began the summer tramp at the vine-covered gate, "can't you help a poor victim of an accident?"

"What kind of an accident asked the housewife, suspiciously."

"Why, mum, last night while I was sleeping a dozen beams fell on me."

"Gracious! That was terrible! How did it happen?"

"Why, I was sleeping in a flower bed and they were moonbeams."—Chicago News.

An Accomplished Cook.

Mrs. Nurich was in a jeweler's shop "Here are some new silver spoons we have just got in," said the assistant placing a tray for her inspection.

"Oh, ain't those lovely!" she exclaimed. "I must have some of those. Our cook makes such lovely soups."

In the Side Show.

Wild Man—"Yes, the two midgots are going to be married. He calls her his peach and she calls him the apple of her eye."

Glass Eater—"H'm! I suppose they will soon be a dwarf pair."—Chicago News.

More of Pa's Wisdom.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is a philosopher?

Pa—"A philosopher, my son, is a man who can generate a dozen good and sufficient reasons why other people should be perfectly satisfied with their lot in life."—Chicago News.

Not Well Put.

A soldier in the Philippines was nursed through rice fever. On his recovery he thanked the nurse like this: "Thank you very much, ma'am, for your kindness. I stan't never forget it if ever there was a fallen angel you're one."

An Efficient Milker.

"Mr. Miller is after fudin' out why his cow went dry."

"An' phwat was it?"

"His bye Willie milked the poor creature wid one of them newfangled, dust-suckin' machines!"

The Return to Reason.

"Alabama has gone crazy," says the Nashville American. Let us hope Alabama does not lose the return trip coupon.—Washington Herald.

Dear Madam:-

We wish to call your attention to a silver polish which we are selling. In our long experience of more than forty years in the jewelry business we have never found any polish to equal it.

It comes in the form of a paste, and very slight rubbing removes the tarnish from the silver almost instantly, and the beauty of it is that it never scratches.

We use it extensively in our business and think so highly of it that we will readily refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied purchaser.

Ask for SILVER CREAM? the best silver polish in the world. Price 25 cents.

Respectfully, H. SPAHR & SON.
