JOHN GOLDMAN STABBED.

A Difficulty at the Mollohon Cotton Mill Results in a Serious Affair.

John Goldman, a section hand at the Mollohon cotton mill, was cut with a knife and dangerously wounded Saturday by Robert Seymour, another of the employees. Goldman is a young man about twenty-two years of age, and unmarried. Seymour is aged about fifty-five years, and has a family. Goldman was cut twice in the back and his wounds are very serious. It is thought that his recovery is doubtful, and he has given out an ante-mortem statement.

The difficulty occurred in the spinning room of the Mollohon mill. Goldman says that Seymour walked in and reached around a young lady who was between him and Goldman and cut Goldman in the back, just above the kidney's and inflicted another wound in Goldman's left elbow. It is difficult to learn the exact cause of the difficulty. Seymour says that Goldman had mistreated his (Seymour's) little boy, who was working in the mill, and had hit him. It is stated to your correspondent that Goldman's friends claim that Seymour's son was not doing his work correctly, and that Goldman, who was section hand, told him to take his hat and coat and leave, that is all there was in regard to the matter.

Seymour was arrested and was lodged in jail on a warrant issued by Magistrate Cannon G. Blease on an affidavit made before Magistrate Blease by Special Officer S. J. Glenn. He is spending tonight in the county jail.

Goldman is resting well today and it is thought he will recover. He has the attendance of a trained nurse and many friends.

Blair-Alewine

On the afternoon of the 3rd of this month the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. S. Blair of Silver Street was beautifully decorated, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter, Nora, to Mr. Joe Alewine, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Alewine. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John J. Long, brother-in-law of the bride.

After the ceremony all (for there were many relatives and friends present) retired to the dining room and there helped themselves to a sumptuous meal prepared for the occasion.

Many valuable presents were given as a token of the esteem in which they were held.

On the following day quite a crowd assembled at the home of the groom's parents, there to partake of the many good things prepared in honor of the event.

Bicycle Thief Captured.

Olando Brooks of the colored hue is an "artist in delivering the goods." Several days ago he advertised in The Herald and News that he was the happy possessor of two bicycles, one lady's and one man's; and that for a certain consideration he would part with each of these choice riding apparatuses.

The ad brought many inquiries, but Olando of the Shakespeare creation did not have the goods to give up. However, Saturday morning he was ready to fulfill his moral obligations in the half part for on Friday night he quietly pushed a lady's bicycle out of Dr. Van Smith's yard and increased his stock in store.

Olando Brooks was tried before his Honor, pled guilty and was fined the sum of one quarter a hundred dollars.

City Treasury Gets Increase.

The Herald and News told a little story Friday about one Joe Berry (white) and one Cornelia Wright (colored) being run in for storing and selling liquor. These parties were tried Friday and Berry was fined $25.00 for storing and $50.00 for selling. Cornelia Wright got off with ten and twenty-five. They were represented by Fred H. Dominick, Esq., who gave notice of appeal. Later Madam Wright forked over.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Letter from Mississippi Asking About Obediah Jones.

Sheriff M. M. Buford has received the following letter which is self explanatory:

Dear Sir:—In conjunction with the historian of the archives of the states of Mississippi and Alabama. I am trying to write up the life of Judge Obediah Jones, who in early manhood was in South Carolina, and we have traced him to Newberry county. The captain in Marshall's brigade in 1865 says they camped in a woods lot two miles from Newberry court house and at a spring in this woods lot he looked up and saw on a sugar tree the name, Obediah Jones, with the date on it which he has forgotten and he was surprised and gave an exclamation. An old man standing there observed it and said, "what do you know of him?" and from that conversation many courtesies were shown the company. The owner of this lot was John Hare, an old man. We wish to locate the son and daughter of this John Hare. The daughter was married, the son lost one limb in the army of Virginia. We wish to get the address of any of their descendants or the address of anybody in Newberry county, who might have heard or known anything of this Obediah Jones. He was a lawyer and in partnership with Judge Knight in the years between 1795 and 1800; he moved to Oglethorpe county, Georgia; he held many prominent positions and was worthy the government preserving his picture in the library of congress.

Any little research about that period may disclose something of interest.

Is there a record of a man in that county by the name of Judge Knight?

I would like the address of some of his descendants. I hope on account of the historical interest and being a South Carolina son, you will give me your assistance.

Very respectfully, Mrs. Frederick C. Jones, Beulah, Miss.

The Place of Biblical Criticism.

Zion's Herald. Biblical criticism, which is now the bogey to so many, when properly defined, is simply a thorough study of the Bible, unbiased investigation into its facts. That study will, and should, go on without fear or favor. Only very timid or very ignorant souls will get frightened about it, and imagine that dire disaster impends because there has to be an alteration in some purely human dogmas to which they have become accustomed. They will yet see, we trust, that the gains from the movement are going to be very far greater than the losses; that we are to have as the result a very much stronger and better book than before; more human and hence more divine, more natural and hence more supernatural. A return on the part of the great body of educated men who have passed through our higher institutions of learning to the old methods and way of looking at the Bible is absolutely impossible. One might as well ask them to go back to Ptolemaic system of astronomy. They are extremely unwise who attempt to force out of the church this body of educated young men. This attempt must be resisted. There is room in the church for both parties if they will but consent to live and let live, think and let think. Why not? Let neither try to oust the other. Christ, we believe, will defend the one attacked, as in the case of Mary and Martha.

L. J. FULMER.

The Confederate soldier is fast passing away. Not many more years before the fellows who wore the galant gray will have passed over the river and be resting and waiting for the sons and daughters of the lost cause. The Herald and News will print from time to time short sketches of the old soldiers who are now living in Newberry county.

Mr. L. J. Fulmer was born in Lexington county, September 7, 1830. He spent all of his early life upon the farm receiving such education as boys of that day usually got. At the age of 31 he entered the army and then served continuously for four years. Mr. Fulmer was a member of the 15th South Carolina company, I, under Col. Dessasaur and Captain Koon.

The subject of our sketch saw his first service at Hilton Head. After that he went through the severe struggles of the Second Manassas, Boonesborough, Sharpsburg, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Chickamauga, Knoxville, Means Station and the Wilderness. In this last battle he was wounded and was left in the hospital for 60 days. After the return to service he was in the battle of Cedar Creek and finally at Greensboro under Johnson when the news of Lee's surrender was given to the world.

Mr. Fulmer is now 75 years old and is a resident of this city.

TRYING TO GROW COTTON

Efforts to Produce Cotton in Africa and Elsewhere Have Met With Some Degree of Success.

During the last few years efforts have been made in different parts of the world to grow cotton in competition with that grown in this country says a Washington special to the Greenville News. The last report along this line is from South Africa, where the effort has recently been made to grow the product successfully. Last year a small experimental plantation was established on a portion of land in the middle belt. Four varieties were planted: Egyptian, Brazillian, Sea Island and Upland Big Boll. The seed of the latter were received there late, consequently the plants suffered in a severe hurricane that year, blossomed in the early winter and consequently the test was not a fair one. Both the Egyptian and Brazillian varieties grew well. The average number of bolls per tree was 40, but in quality and size Brazilian was the better of the two. NOTICE FINAL SETTLEMENT. Notice is hereby given that the undersigned will on the 15th of February, 1906, make a final settlement on the estate of Mr. W. W. Kinard, deceased, and will immediately thereafter apply to the Probate Judge for Newberry County for Letters Dismissory as Administrator of said estate.

W. W. Kinard, Administrator.

Newberry, S. C., Jan. 8, 1906. Cotton seed was distributed generally throughout the country by the British Cotton Grower's Association, and the Transvaal Agricultural department. The year's growth in various parts of Swaziland proves that the climate and soil are congenial and that the plant will do well in most parts of the country, and once cheap transportation is available there will be every encouragement for the establishment of a cotton plantation on a commercial scale.

Curious as it may seem, Great Britain sent to the United States last year cotton goods aggregating nearly $15,000,000. Its exports of cotton goods to all parts of the world went up to $403,919 including yarns worth $43,579,988.

Of imports into Great Britain, cotton leads with $196,819,878, followed by oxen and bulls, $34,826,610, and bacon, $30,216,143. In short, foods and the raw materials of commerce make up about three-fourths of all the commodities that go into Great Britain from the United States.
