What about that wagon yard? It should be arranged before the fall season begins.

The open square in rear of the old court house should be made a park planted in trees and grass and some fountains arranged.

Maj. Caldwell made some good suggestions as to the old court house. Did the officers and members of the library association see what he said?

Cole Blease won't get as many votes for governor as he did when he ran for lieutenant governor some years ago.

We trust, as we believe, that the forecast made as to Mr. Blease's vote will prove as incorrect as the statement made as to his vote in Newberry.

Newberry is looking upward. The thing to do is to keep her looking that way. You may think your influence small, and your wealth may be little, but you can do your part.

New Laws For New Crimes. "I am fined for failure to provide good drinking water on my passenger trains," a Rhode Islander might say.

In this State a jail sentence follows a neglect to provide spittoons for every two seats in our cars.

A man in Virginia says: "I killed a partridge on the second day of February, for which I must serve time in jail."

In Tennessee a man must pay a fine or serve three years' imprisonment for killing fish with dynamite.

In Wisconsin a baker must serve three weeks in jail for sleeping in his bakery.

In California nurses are punished by fine or imprisonment should they fail in proper instances, to notify the physician of certain phases of illness in their patients.

To water a bicycle path in the State of Ohio is an offense punishable by heavy fine and sometimes imprisonment.—Harper's Weekly.

Home is What We Make It. A man may own a handsome and well furnished residence and yet may not possess a home—that is, a home in its best and purest sense, where domestic felicity reigns supreme.

So understood, there is not sweeter word in the language than "home" and one has well said: "Few words lie nearer the heart than the word 'home.'" To those of us who are trained in good homes, how deep, how heartfelt is the pity we feel for those who were deprived of that moral and social stimulus that is the comitant of the happy home!

"Where is your home?" a little boy was asked by an acquaintance. "Where mother is," the little fellow replied, as he looked drowsily across at her.

The little boy's philosophy would be endorsed by many of maturer age. Undoubtedly the mother of a family, the mistress of the house, has much to do with the "tone" or quality of home life. The author of "The Chronicles of the Schoenberg-Cotta Family" says: "Of our mother I cannot think of anything to say. She is just the mother—our own dear, patient, loving little mother; unlike everyone else in the world, and yet it seems as if there was nothing to say about her by which one could make anyone understand what she is."

In other words, the "dear, patient, loving little mothers" are sweetly indescribable, their fragrant lives being often compressed into that single yet significant sentence, "She makes home happy."

Just how she does it would puzzle her to tell in detail, and perhaps she wouldn't if she could; but aside from "personality" or the individual expression of loving devotion which prompts in a thousand ways, we may safely give a few recipes for adding to the good cheer of the home.

Here are several which we cordially recommend:

- 1. Recipe for securing love: Love. 2. Recipe for educating your children: Educate yourself. 3. Recipe for having friends: Be one.

4. Recipe for perpetual ignorance: Be satisfied with your opinions and contented with your attainments.

5. Recipe for having a beautiful home: Be beautiful yourself.

6. Recipe for good temper: Keep sweet.

7. Recipe for lessening annoying experiences: Don't serve them up at me!

8. Recipe for curing the "gadding" habit: Make home the most attractive place on earth.—Frank J. Mallett, in "Mothers."

Absolute Obesity. There is a member of the faculty of George Washington university who, to use the words of a colleague, "is as rotund physically as he is profound metaphysically."

One day the professor chanced to come upon his children, of whom he has a number, all of whom were to his astonishment engaged in an earnest discussion of the meaning of the word "absolute."

"Dad," queried one of the youngsters, "can a man be absolutely good?"

"No," replied the father.

"Dad," put in another youngster, "can a man be absolutely bad?"

"No."

"Papa," ventured the third child, a girl, "can a man be absolutely fat?"

Whereupon father fled incontinently.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Anticipative Burial. The ship doctor of an English liner notified the death watch steward, an Irishman, that a man had died in stateroom 45. The usual instructions to bury the body were given. Some hours later the doctor pecked into the room and found that the body was still there. He called the Irishman's attention to the matter and the latter replied: "I thought you said room 40 I went to that room and noticed wan of them in a bunk. 'Are ye dead?' says I. 'No,' says he, 'but I'm pretty near dead.' 'So I buried him.'—Wasp.

Headache Helps. When I feel a headache coming on, says a writer in the April Designer. I look around for the cause. Usually I loosen my hair. It is not generally known that hair done up tightly and pinned close to the head will cause headache. Try letting the hair fall loose, or braid or pin it loosely in a different style. Sometimes it is my collar which is too tight, and when I take it off my headache disappears. Again it is caused by tight or uncomfortable shoes, or by high-heeled shoes, which may feel comfortable but which will cause the trouble.
