THE OBSERVER AND THE CHAUTAUQUA BOOKLET.

In a reply, published in another column, to the letter of the editor of The Herald and News, the Observer goes into a history of its trade and industrial edition, refers to the trade and industrial edition of The Herald and News this year, and expresses its continued conviction that the little paragraph in The Herald and News in regard to the Chautauqua booklet was a slur at the Observer.

We regret that the Chautauqua has been brought into a controversy between the two newspapers of Newberry. A controversy of this kind can do nobody any good.

We shall have only a few more words to say, and they shall not be controversial.

The Observer says the statement of the editor of The Herald and News was not satisfactory, and charges that it lacked frankness. It stated the whole case, as the editor of The Herald and News saw it, and if it does not satisfy the Observer, we can not help it. As to the president of the Chautauqua association, who, the Observer thinks did exactly right, we have already said all we have to say in this connection. Different persons have different views of what is "exactly right."

In speaking of the Observer's trade and industrial edition of last Chautauqua week, the Observer says that "some person tried to make it appear that the Observer solicited advertising for itself under the claim that it was getting out some sort of advertisement for the Chautauqua," but "concluded to let it pass, because I did not wish to enter into a newspaper controversy." If by characterizing the controversy into which he would have entered, had he entered a controversy, as a "newspaper" controversy, the editor of the Observer means to charge The Herald and News with having inspired the report—which we hope the editor of the Observer does not mean—the charge is absolutely unfounded in fact. We desire to state, and to state emphatically, that any reports that may have gained circulation in regard to the Observer's trade edition of last Chautauqua week, did not emanate from The Herald and News, and The Herald and News had nothing to do with them.

As to The Herald and News edition, it is issued today, and has no more bearing upon a Chautauqua, either in point of time or in any other manner, than has the chirping of a sparrow upon a presidential election.

The editor of the Observer proceeds to draw what he calls a logical and inevitable inference from the little paragraph in The Herald and News, to which the Observer takes exception. That there was no slur at the Observer, either in intention or in fact, in that paragraph, we tried to make clear, publicly, and we have nothing to add to what we have already said in regard thereto.

Says the editor of the Observer: "And that is his explanation. I must say that it comes with poor grace from one to whom I have shown so many courtesies and favors."

Whatever courtesies and favors have been shown The Herald and News or the editor of The Herald and News, or any member of The Herald and News family, by the editor of the Observer, have been appreciated to the fullest, and sincere thanks are hereby again and publicly extended.

We do not know whether or not The Herald and News has ever been able to extend to the Observer what the Observer would call courtesies or favors; certainly if it has, they have been extended willingly and gladly; but The Herald and News has not sought to keep a record of them, and would not seek to call them to mind or to charge them up in the columns of The Herald and News.

FOR A HOSPITAL.

The chamber of commerce has actively and heartily joined with the physicians of Newberry in a definite plan for the building of a hospital, and the prospects for success are very encouraging. Newberry ought to have a hospital, and can very easily have one, and we hope to see the people of the city and the county all lend their aid and support and build it.

The matter has been agitated by the chamber of commerce for some time, but no definite action had been taken. The physicians have been working quietly but steadily, and have already brought about gratifying results, the report showing that they already have more than $4,000 pledged. This is a handsome nucleus around which to gather the remainder of the $15,000 in subscriptions which it is proposed to secure.

The movement is one that should appeal to everybody in the county. It may not pay any money dividends, but that is not the purpose of the enterprise. It is an investment which will pay dividends of incalculably more value than money. It will pay dividends which can not be reckoned in dollars and cents, and it will be an asset to the community which can hardly be overestimated.

There is no need to urge the benefits of a hospital. All of us realize them. What the entire community wants to do now is to lend its support and help build one.

Mr. I. H. Hunt, the chairman of the committee appointed from the chamber of commerce to confer with the physicians' committee, very strongly urged the necessity for a hospital in his annual report as president of the chamber of commerce, in March, 1911.

In that connection, he said, among other things:

"The establishment of a hospital in Newberry town and county has been discussed to some extent by the people of the community and advocated in public print. This is one of the most important and far-reaching propositions that demand the attention of our organization. From a purely commercial and selfish viewpoint such an institution is an index of a growing, prosperous, and liberal-minded community and will add to the many advantages that Newberry now has to offer the home-seeker.

"The business side of this proposition is the least important and should be given serious consideration only so far as it is necessary to raise funds to establish and maintain the institution. The reward of such an investment will not be one of financial gain, but will be seen and felt in the prolonging of life, the restoration of health and the happiness of those of our people upon whose bodies the hand of affliction has been laid. A hospital established in the city of Newberry will save the lives of many people who require medical assistance that can only be given them in a well-equipped institution of this kind. The physicians of Newberry are men of science and skill and rank high in their profession. They are able and capable and will fight to the last breath, but with all that there are certain cases, and many cases, in which delicate surgical operations are to be performed and watchful nursing required that leave them helpless without the operating equipment of a well established hospital and the trained nursing that is required after an operation. The men of Newberry county should remember the women and children and pay this small tribute to those who are not responsible for their affliction and not able to help themselves. There are cases where hospital service is absolutely necessary and where the people are not financially able to bear the heavy expenses of going to Columbia, Philadelphia or New York or any other place away from home. There are other cases where families have burdened themselves with debt that their sick might receive the best hospital service that science affords. The expense of city hospital service away from home is excessive and in many cases prohibitive. A hospital right here at home would bring the expense of such service to the minimum and place it within reach of all who need its help. Another great advantage would be in that Newberry would have the service of trained nurses who could answer emergency calls at all hours of the day and night."

That is a very strong presentation of a very vital matter.

We believe Newberry is going ahead and build this hospital.

Filling up holes and using the split log drag will work wonders with the roads now.

This is a mighty good time to clean up premises and to use whitewash and lime freely.

Holding the same opinion of the Columbia State and its methods that we have heretofore had occasion to express, we shall not bandy words with it in reply to its recent contemptible fling directed at The Herald and News.

A clean town this summer will go a long way towards the prevention of fevers and other forms of disease which too frequently come with the summer months. If every citizen would do his duty by his own premises—his duty to himself and his duty to others—and the town would keep the streets and drains clean, we would have a clean town.

The merchants of Newberry in the past have united in an early closing agreement during the hot summer months in order to give their clerks time for recreation in the afternoons, and we doubt not they will make the same arrangement this year. We are sure that none of the merchants will lose anything by early closing, particularly if most of them are in the agreement. And the buying public always appreciates this care of the hard-working and courteous clerks of Newberry.

The approach to the steel bridge over Duncan's creek at Whitmire was washed away in the flood and high waters of four weeks ago, and nothing has been done toward replacing it. It is a very great inconvenience to the people of that section, and should have the immediate attention of the supervisor. The farmers living on the Newberry side of the creek are anxious to haul their fertilizer and the ford is scarcely passable and the bridge should be replaced at once.

We understand that the supervisor was in Whitmire this week. The people of Whitmire and of No. 4 township on this side of the creek have been very patient and it does seem that the time has come when this bridge should be repaired.

The second quarterly conference will be held in the Methodist church Thursday, beginning at 11 o'clock.

The special meeting conducted by Rev. J. Andrew Smith, of Charlotte, N. C., closed this evening. The meeting lasted nine days. Large crowds greeted Mr. Smith both morning and evening and listened earnestly to his words. Whitmire paid liberally to further the good cause represented by him. Miss Nan Brook Scott made a splendid and faithful organist. The solos sung during the week by Rev. G. F. Wright and Mrs. Jno. R. Rosebore were especially beautiful. The choir sang well and added much to the attractiveness of the services. Mr. Smith gave us many beautiful sermons that will linger long in the hearts and minds of the people of Whitmire. Two of the sermons were especially appropriate and should be preached everywhere, "The Ideal Mother" (this is the Christian mother), and "The Ideal Christian Home." How glad we were to have Mr. Smith repeat the very thought we had expressed in The Herald and News a few weeks ago, that parents can not shirk their duty towards their children and put it off to the school or the Sunday school. By beginning in the home all the evils of school, of church, of society and of State may be corrected.

The Maid's Mistake.

National Monthly.

In the employ of a certain Southern school for girls is a colored maid, who from her queer mumbling speech and habitual grin is known by the girls as Crazy Mary. Into the reception room of this college one busy school day a business-like publisher stepped. Handing the maid his card, he informed her that he would like to speak with Miss Harrington, the editor of the school magazine, on some "important business."

The maid duly impressed, took the card and went in search of the young lady. Failing to find Miss Harrington in the halls, however, she proceeded to the young ladies' sleeping apartments. As she neared the room of the young lady in question, Miss Brock, her roommate, stepped out, closing the door behind her.

With her most ingratiating manner and habitual grin, Crazy Mary approached and in her slow, halting speech, said to Miss Brock: "C'ud—yu—tell—me—wher—'—Mis—'—Ha—'—ing—'—c'ud be—'—foun'?"

"Well, she can't come right now, as she is in her pedagogy," announced Miss Brock again, meaning to convey the impression that Miss Harrington, who was a student in the normal department, was at that moment in the pedagogy class-room.

The slow-witted maid listened in silence, then turned and went slowly back to the parlor.

The gentleman, who was now growing impatient, arose as she entered: "Well?" he said.

"She—can'—com'—right—now—suh,—sh'—is—in—her—peticcoats," said the obedient maid with her unconventional grin.

THIS STORE WON'T GUARANTEE CALOMEL

But We Have a Liver Medicine That We Do Guarantee With Money-Back Offer.

The next time you think you need a dose of calomel, don't take it. Even if you have taken it often before, this might be the very dose that would sallowate you. Its use is sometimes followed by dangerous after-effects. If you are constipated or bilious or if your liver has gotten lazy and inactive two or three doses of Dodson's Liver-Tone, pleasant tasted vegetable liquid will "make you feel like new."

We would not recommend Dodson's Liver-Tone in place of calomel if we were not willing to fully guarantee it. So anybody who buys a bottle of Dodson's Liver-Tone at W. G. Mayes' drug store and does not find it a perfect substitute for calomel may come into the store and day and get his or her money back.

It has absolutely no bad after effects and is harmless for children as well as grown-ups.

Many Newberry people who have chronic appendicitis, which is not very painful, have doctored for years for gas on the stomach, sour stomach or constipation. W. G. Mayes states if these people will try simple buckhorn bark, glycerine, etc., as compounded in Adler-I-ka, the German appendicitis remedy, they will be surprised at the QUICK benefit.
