POLITICS OF BILL

By Alf Mason
Old man Wilson had it hard during his last public round, The way people criticised Would make any good man frown.

Old Bill Harding he begun, Thought he would make things go, Congress with him, would not shun, Many points to them he'd show.

Now, he finds it different some, The task in his keen judgment Is neither pleasure nor fun, For an early adjustment.

He says Wilson has been wronged, Subject to much unjustness, Perhaps it's fear of the throng Asking for unfilled promises.

Harding we see has some tact, He must nurse the G. O. P., Must have every Democrat To insure proper unity.

CASE OF TOLBERT GETS ATTENTION

Announcement Made That Junior South Carolina Senator Will Oppose Confirmation

The State. Washington, July 5.—The consideration of the nomination of Joseph W. Tolbert to be marshal of the Western district of South Carolina by a subcommittee of the judiciary committee of the senate, of which Senator Samuel M. Shortridge of California is chairman, is scheduled for an unnamed day next week.

Without specifying, Senator Shortridge stated today that certain protests against confirmation of Tolbert had been received by the subcommittee. He also stated that when the matter is under consideration, Senator N. B. Dial of South Carolina would be received for the purpose of making a statement. Senator Dial, as previously reported, will protest against the confirmation of Tolbert.

The senator returned today from South Carolina. He did not make public the ground on which he would base his protest, but it is understood that he will review the history of Republicanism in his state since the inception of the administration of President Harding. It is expected that he will declare that, in his opinion, Tolbert, in consideration of his record, is not an ideal man to be made an important court official in South Carolina.

Senator Dial said today: "It is unpleasant to proceed against any one appointed to office. But certain duties confront a senator when his people send him to Washington and such duties must be regarded, whether they are pleasant or not. I feel that we should be very careful in suffering the confirmation of men appointed to hold office in our state. It is my duty to oppose the confirmation of any appointee I do not regard as satisfactory and it will not suffice, I hold it, that I simply register my protest by a negative vote."

The case is one of the really interesting which pend in Washington. Tolbert is the oldest member of the national Republican committee and is chairman of the state committee. He is spokesman of the Republican party in South Carolina and as such his appointment by the president was natural. His rejection by a Republican senate, after he had recommended appointees for practically all other offices, would be to a certain extent, at least, sensational.

The intention of Senator E. D. Smith regarding the Tolbert case is unknown. The senator is absent at present.

WHAT WORLD NEEDS IS PEANUT SHELLER

Rumored Invention Here Brings Inquiries From Virginia

Greenwood Index-Journal. One thing the world needs now is a peanut sheller. Probably you didn't know that, but the faintest rumor that such an instrument had been invented in Greenwood brought inquiries from the peanut growers exchange of Virginia.

The inquiry followed the recent publication of the following facetious story in the Greenville Piedmont:

"Henry C. Tillman and Samuel C. Hodges, prominent capitalists of Greenwood, were in Greenville yesterday. While no information could be obtained from them as to their mission here it was reported that they are seeking a suitable location for a plant to manufacture high grade nutcrackers for peanuts which would save the consumer much time and effort. The luxurious implement has been invented by E. P. Wideman Greenwood newspaperman, it is said, and has found much favor with many prominent citizens of that city who constantly foregather at the depot to observe who is coming hither and who is going thither."

Yesterday Mr. Hodges received the following letter from Frank Fooseh, a former Greenwood county resident, and now secretary of the peanut growers exchange:

"Is the attached clipping from the Greenville, S. C., Piedmont real business, or a big joke?"

"If it is the real thing I want you to put me on to it as a part of my business is to keep up with what is doing in the peanut world.

"I am mighty glad to say that our organization is still moving forward, and that some day we expect to be a big factor in the peanut game.

"When you people in Greenwood county get to growing peanuts then I am coming down to see you. As a matter of fact I used to grow some very fine peanuts at Coronaca."

Some movie stars shine best by artificial light.

It is worth thinking about, this matter of thought and the force that lies behind it.
