H. A. Lowry has his soda water fountain in full blast... A Race That Was Not Run... Last Thursday morning in the vicinity of Legg & Hutchinson's stables there was considerable activity among those that had sporting blood coursing through their veins... A discussion arose as to the running abilities of certain horses, one of which belongs to the stable and the other to a gentleman boarding his horse at the stable... Each horse soon had his favorite willing to back his judgment by wagering some fifty cents... Bets were freely made against the horse belonging to the stable, and were taken up by a certain young man who had lots of confidence in the horse he was backing...

While the excitement was warm the two owners of the horses got together and arranged to put up a huge joke on the enthusiastic admirer of the stable horse... The rest of the crowd understood this, and on arriving at our town that night, until the place sounded like the pool room of a Saratoga club house...

The arrangement was for the stable horse to be beaten, and as a horse race will draw a crowd when everything else fails, it was not long before everybody in town had heard of it, and was watching to see when the sports were going to the race course... About six o'clock the crowd from the stables started, and were followed by a large crowd from town... They went across Ox Swamp, near the Blackwell place, and there selected the ground... The road was alive with pedestrians and vehicles, it presented the appearance of the road during the race during the races... All kinds of people and professions were on the move to witness this race—merchants, clerks, doctors, lawyers, officials, bankers, butchers, horse jockeys, dandies, beats, loaders, kids, and niggers—all went...

On arriving at the grounds the riders rode their horses over the ground to inspect it, leaving the excited mass of humanity at the other end, where they would have a fine view of the race... But on this road there is a curve and when the riders turned the curve and were out of sight of the crowd, they decided to turn the joke on the crowd by putting spurs to their steeds and riding home, leaving the sports behind to keep their mouths and wide stretched eyes waiting to see the races...

The riders arrived home at least a half hour a head of the disappointed crowd, and some of them felt so badly sold that they took the back streets to keep from being gazed by a crowd that were waiting on the street corner...

Maj. H. H. Lesesne.

Major Henry Hilton Lesesne died at his residence near Manassas, at 5 o'clock this morning, aged fifty-one years... He served as sheriff of this county for fourteen years, having been elected in 1877 to fill an unexpired term... He was one of the most popular men in the county... Major Lesesne was a gallant Confederate soldier, having engaged in the service in the beginning of the war as a lieutenant of the Spott Court Guards... He was promoted from time to time till he became major of the 23d S. C. Volunteers... Major Lesesne had been in bad health for several years, and some months ago he was so prostrated by an attack of paralysis, that he has since been confined to his home... Yesterday he had another severe attack from which he did not rally... He leaves a wife and seven children... The funeral will take place to-morrow morning, 10 o'clock, at Jordan...

Big Fire at Wilsons.

About half past nine o'clock yesterday morning Wilson's planing mills on the Centennial R. R. was destroyed by fire, causing a loss of between thirty and thirty-five thousand dollars... The fire originated in the shaving room by a spark from the engine... Great piles of boards were on the yard, and were consumed by the flames... The heat was so great that forty bars of the steel track on the main line of the railroad were warped and twisted, and about three hundred of the cross-ties burned... The saw mill was not burned... There was no insurance, and Mr. Thomas Wilson, the owner of the mills, who was away from home at the time, is the unfortunate loser of this vast amount of property...

Beautiful Wild Flowers.

We find in the News and Courier of last Saturday the following very complimentary allusion to one of our prettiest young ladies: "Perhaps one of the most noteworthy exhibits in the hall was a collection of wild flowers, exhibited by Miss Mann G. Clark, of Manning, S. C."... The collection, which numbered between thirty and forty varieties of South Carolina wild flowers, was sent down by express on Thursday morning and was beautifully arranged by a committee of ladies... The exhibit was very justly awarded the first prize...

HOW'S THIS!

We offer one hundred dollars reward for any case of catarrh that cannot be cured by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure... F. J. CUREY & Co., Props., Toledo, O... We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Attempted Assassination.

There is an ordinance in this town prohibiting the firing of pistols within the corporate limits, and the council should require the police to see that parties violating this ordinance are arrested and brought before them for punishment... The ordinance was passed for the protection of our citizens, and if it is not enforced there is no telling how soon some valuable life may be destroyed by the promiscuous shooting of firearms on our streets... The stillness of the night was disturbed last Friday evening by the sharp report of a pistol just behind Mr. M. Kalisky as he was passing Legg & Hutchinson's stables while on his way home from his place of business... It was as unexpected that Mr. Kalisky's first impulse was to "climb over the garden wall" that joins the stables, but as he is rather corpulent he was afraid that he would make haste slowly in case there was an assassin lurking behind the trees... He was naturally excited, and added extra power to his pedal extremities, and he got away from that place about as fast as it takes the second hand of a watch to make its circuit... Arriving at his gate he was much fatigued from his active exercise... Never having experienced anything like it before, and feeling perfectly friendly with all mankind, he did not before this dream that he had an enemy... The excitement was so intense that he could not see the light of his own eyes... He thought he was shot and called for a light, at the same time holding on to the wound with a vice-like grip to stop the gory stream... He believed that his life blood was slowly ebbing away... The light was brought and to his utter astonishment not a sign of blood was to be found, and what he imagined was blood, was a splinter in his pants, and huge drops of perspiration as large as "matzo balls"...

A Dangerous Period.

As the season moves swiftly toward the boundary lines that he between winter and spring, it frequently happens that the human system, which has borne the strain of winter, shows signs of relaxation... In all ages this period has been noted as a dangerous one, especially to those who have weak constitutions... A course of the great blood purifier and tonic, S. S. S., will enable the most delicate to face the season's changes with impunity... It is a medicine that not only strengthens the weak and delicate, but is an additional safeguard for those who consider themselves strong... When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria... When she became a Child, she cried for Castoria... When she became a Woman, she clung to Castoria... When she had Children, she gave them Castoria...
