but the doors were not open. A short while after 9 o'clock Mr. Cantwell appeared, but went directly to his desk by those in waiting.

Soon after a notice was posted on the door of the Registration office, stating that the books would be opened at the market hall. Thither the waiting crowd drifted, and found Mr. Williams seated at a table with the registration books stating that a special messenger would leave by the evening train, but I did not know that I had been selected by the Governor as deputy supervisor until the messenger arrived, early this morning. The order of the Governor delivering the books to me was positive, as you see, and there was no trouble in open

Mr. Cantwell later opened the office of Supervisor of Registration in the fire-proof building, and when a reporter entered he was engaged in taking down names of persons who applied for certificates. Not having the necessary documents he promised to forward them as soon as received.

Mr. Cantwell stated he was acting by advice of counsel, and intended to fight the matter to the bitter end. He said that he had qualified about 100 applicants, and that he would go right ahead registering applicants who were entitled to certificates.

Opinion is divided as to the stability of Mr. Cantwell's position. His bold move is the most fruitful topic of conversation around town. During the day

Challenge Accepted. ABBEVILLE, S. C., June 3 .- Col. Terrell and Governor Tillman spoke here to-day. The former advocated the subtreasury plan, and Governor Tillman replied to him in opposition to the measure in strong and forcible lan-guage. He challenge Col. Terrell to meet him at the State Alliance to discuss it with him. Col. Terrell accepted the challenge. The sub-treasurer was given a rather black eye here by the Governor's strong opposition to it. There is no mistaking his stand in regard to this matter. He also spoke against the third party movement, and told the people that their only safety was in the Democratic party which already saved them. He also contended that Alliancemen had the right to discuss the sub treasury o .tside of Alliance meetings, and that public discussion was the only way to arrive at the Kalnoky finally became convinced of the truth of this, and remained behind when the company left Chicago. Ten days ago he weakened and made a flyng trip to Louisville in one last effort to conquer the pretty actress. While there he seems to have met one of his numerous rivals, though not the successful one. The meeting took place Monday norning in Jackson park. At 9:10 o'clock the adversaries were facing each other, sword in hand and bared to their shirts. A moment later the word was given, and like a flash the Southerner commenced. After some sharp fight ing the Southerner succeeded in inflict ing a slight wound in the right leg of the baron. A little later the baron made a clever lunge, which pricked the skin on the right shoulder of his adversary. The latter, however, parried admirably, and at this moment, to the horror of the seconds, the baron appeared to slip and literally to fall on the point of his adversary's sword, which entered his neck. A stream of blood gushed from the wound. The seconds at once stopped the combat. Baron Kalnoky was assisted to an adjoining knoll and his wound was hastily dressed. After as-certaining that the result would not necessarily be fatal, the Southerner and his friends left the field. Every effort to identify this man has failed. With the exception of Kalnoky he appears to have been unknown to all concerned His appearance, however, leads to the belief that he is a son of a prominent citizen of Atlanta, Ga., who is famous in the South as authority on the code duello, and who, though quite young, has taken an active part in several affairs of honor. He is known to have boarded a Cin cinnati train on the "Big Four," which left Hyde Park station at 9:45 o'clock, two hours after the termination of the combat. Baron Kalnoky's exact whereabouts is kept a secret, but, unless .he was able to go east to-night, he is still at the residence of his attending physician, or of friends in Hyde Park. The manager of the Richelieu, while deeply regretting the affair and the annoyance that it should have become known, is assured that the young Austrian has not in any immediate danger. From conversations with him, however, he fears that the baron's misplay was not a mere accident, but that, finding himself facing one his equal in swordsmanship, he took that means of may follow the failure of this morning by a successful attempt upon his own
