Wednesday, August 15, 1894.

Kolb of Alabama has been again beaten, and he is disgusting the country with his kicks. The election returns say that Oates has been elected governor and the cry of fraud by the Kolbites will not change the result.

John Gary Evans is now enjoying his victory while we are floundering about in the soup. Clarendon is disappointed but she defies any county in the State to make a better showing for the Reform nominee in the brimary on the 28 inst.

The political canvassers have finished their work of attending the State campaign meetings and the people no doubt are glad that everything passed off without the shedding of a drop of blood. At some of the places there was excitement and it looked fortunately the worst that came was a lot of foolish words from some of the candidates themselves.

that did not vote last Saturday. They forget that hundreds of them had no choice, believing that either of the candidates would be satisfactory to them. We spoke to one who failed to turn out and he said he was busy, and was satisfied with any of the Reformers selected, but said he, let the opposition come out and we will show them whether or not there is any staying away from the polls.

County Campaign Meeting.

The county campaigners came to Manning last Thursday and for several hours entertained quite a large audience in the court house. All the candidates present were called upon, they came forward and announced their candidacy with suitable re-marks. The candidates for the senate came first.

Dr. I. M. Woods lead off with a review of his record as a legislator, and then expressed his views upon emanated from a newspaper office. Its the question of a constitutional conthe question of a constitutional convention and the dispensary.

He was followed by Senator Ragin who defended the Reform administration and entered into an elaborate showing of the State's finances. He showed how much money had been spent for the carrying out of the pledges of the faction, and made it lear that the State taxes would have been greatly reduced had it not been for the disastrous storm of last August in which the State suffered great

Then came the various candidates for the office of supervisor: Messrs. Holladay, Geddings, Felder, Turbe-ville and Hudgins. These gentlemen showed considerable earnestness in wanting to serve the people and were not bashful in letting the people know that they wanted votes, and as as if there would be trouble sure, but only one of the number can be elected we are unable to foretell who the fortunate one will be.

The aspirants for legislative honors came next. Hon. J. W. Kennedy, who is a candidate for re-election. The opposition are laying great dy, who is a candidate for re-election, stress upon the number of Reformers made a pretty defense of the Reform administration. His speech was attentively listened at, and at its conclusion provoked applause.

Captain W. C. Davis was the next speaker. As his name was called the audience broke out with applause which showed that he was in the minister. In this same connection, house of his friends. THE FREEMAN'S ARTICLE. We received a communication last Monday from Rev. Henry M. Mood. The article was written with a pencil on a piece of paper having print on one side, and bore evidence of having preparation—there being interlinea-tions and traces of erasures. We immediately mailed him a copy of The Freeman of July 27th, containing our second squib in regard to Mr. Nettles. Not hearing anything further from him we published his comments as above, It is with great reluctance that we engage in controversy with a minister of the gospel on religious subjects, therefore, what we say will be brief. Mr. Mood errs in assuming that the Senior Editor (the Baptist) is in any way responsible for the severe thrust given Mr. Nettles. He was on his farm at Stateburg and had no knowledge what ever of the article prior to its appearance in print. The Local Editor (the Presbyterian) is solely responsible.

Nothing was further from our intention than an attack upon that great body of devout Christians-the Methodists, and Mr. Mood's attempt to make it appear that it was a case of Baptist and Presbyterian vs. Methodist, and thereby create denominational antagonism, is unworthy of him and will have no weight with thinking people. We simply "spoke our natural feeling of pain at seeing the good old Methodist Church inraded by unworthy men."

No attack whatever was made by us upon Mr. Nettles from a business standpoint and we do not understand Mr. Mood's allusion to financial matters. This is the arrow which is to pierce the heart of the hated victim. I am glad to be able to say that Mr. Nettles is a total abstinence man, and is above suspicion as far as his habits go along this line; that he has never hobnobbed with saloon-keepers, or been on the side of the liquor sellers of the State; that it is but natural that his outspoken course on this exciting subject should make him violent ene mies with the whole liquor fraternity, and those who sympathize with them. In the legislature he brought for ward a prohibition bill, I think the first ever offered to that body.
