Court convened in Florence last Monday. Judge Watts is the pre- get men so 'set' on to move" suggested the siding judge.

The Constitutional convention is now in session, and we hope that the Conservative vote polled on election day, members of it will not follow the example set by the last congress, but will go to work and transact the business for which they were elected.

There will be a large gathering of commissioned officers at the military convention in Columbia next Monday. General Watts is determined to make the military of the State what it should be, and we glory in This was the only conversation I held on his grit.

We propose to keep our readers posted on the proceedings of the Constitutional convention. Parents and teachers, it would be a good idea to require your children to follow the work of the convention and keep themselves posted. There will be a great deal learned.

Our readers will overlook the crowded condition of THE TIMES this week. The new advertisements had to be gotten up, and this left us but little space for other matter, but made to give our readers to by the people among whom he lives. But more reading matter than hereto-liby the people among whom he lives. But I have yet to learn where I have been un-

The last Congress fritted away its time at that business and brought disgrace the Democratic party and stagnation to the business of the country. We hope South Carolina will set the pace to transacting its business for the best interests of all the people in the quickest and most business-like way.

In another column we publish a communication from Major Henry B. Richardson, in which he replies to our criticism of last week. His reply is written in a polite and genteel manner, and we take pleasure in publishing it. Major Richardson makes a good fight to have such a weak cause, and now, that we understand each other, we hope what has been made public will do good in the future. There is one thing in the Major's letter which we will have to reply to, and that is he regarded his card to us as private. We certainly did not so regard it, and had we the regarded his card to us we would not and voluminous criticism at your hands, I with the buildings thereon, levied upon have made it public for any consideration. Our card to him was about a public matter written in a public. way-a postal card-and his reply came to us in a similar manner. If we have taken advantage of the Major in the slightest degree we can assure him that it was not our intention to do so; we simply made public what we regarded a bad position for white men to take. We said the Richardson - Manning family made up the largest part of the Fulton club; of course we included those related to them, but, if our memory serves us right, we are not so much mistaken about the membership of the Fulton club after all, and we refer him to the names on the poll-list in the very last Democratic primary election the Fulton will find about thirteen votes cast, a ANTISEPTIC majority being of the Richardson-Manning family.

But I had hoped-notwithstanding your connection with a newspaper and undoubted right to print anything you saw fit-that you would have respected the difference between what was meant as a private communication and one intended for ublication.

If the words I used "it would be hard to ides to you that they would not support the ticket under any circumstances, your conclusion was wrong as is shown by the and just here let me say that the charge that I and my relatives voted "after considerable hesitation and talk from friends and neighbors" is utterly false, for my friends and neighbors were aware of my intention some time before the election, and I also mentioned the fact to a prominent Reformer of this section just after reaching the polls, who told me that he, like myself, would not have attended the election but for the ticket brought out in opposition the subject with anyone before voting, except some members of my own faction, who, I am sure, used no influence to purme directed, bearing date June 6, 1895, suade me one way or the other.

It is almost needless for me to notice that portion of the article referring to the claims of the nominees to our support on individual merit as any unprejudiced the following described real estate: reader of my letter published by you, will see and understand that what opposition there might have been was purely of a political and not from any personal reason. You have called notice to the honors the people have bestowed on me and members Mrs. B. W. We now suggest that the will, leaving the best manner to accommon Pleas, in the above stated action, to convention get down to business and plish this, to their judgment. I felt I me directed, bearing date March 1st, 1895, mittee without violating my pledge, or I bidder for cash, at Clarendon court house should have issued a call myself. I mention this to show that in the latest service required of me by the people of Clarendon | the 7th day of October, 1895, being sale I discharged the duty to the best of my day, the following described real estate:

I was somewhat surprised you should comment on the words, "political prefer-ment" and "plums of office" in my letter, seeing it was but a quotation from the headlines in your article of the paper of County, I will sell at public outery, at the the 21st August, and though not literal Court House in Manning, on salesday in were words to the same effect. So far from objecting to it, I am a staunch believer in the good it can effect, and I only wish enough such work were done—fairly and without influencing motives—when I feel sure a great good would be done our country and the public worth of a man would be commensurate with their private lives at home. In conclusion I wish to add, in justice to

Mr. J. M. Richardson, that he was entirely ignorant of our correspondence and the cause which prompted your article in the Times of August 21st. His letter was written without my knowledge also, and I learned of it after the lapse of some days. Had Mr. Richardton been acquainted with the facts, it is most likely his letter would not have been sent to you.
