WEDNESDAY, OCT. 23, 1895.

The Constitutional convention is now on the knotty- problem - the suffrage - and how long they are going to solve it we do not know.

The plan reported by the commityet the dissatisfied ones do not offer of a county, and the more taxable a better plan.

Senator Irby took the report of the committee on suffrage as an excuse to marshal his forces for his reelection in 1896, and his speech may have the desired effect. But to have that effect he will have to submit a better plan and bring convincing proof that Tillman and his committee are in league with our enemies to break up white supremacy.

We do not see how our representatives can make a Constitutional constitution whereby they will disfranchise negroes and not disfranchise white men without calling in the aid of our property-owning and educated

Heretofcre we have been opposed to woman suffrage because we believed the time had not arrived for them to take a hand in the affairs the women are allowed to vote, or by a proxy of their own selection, the problem that has given us so much annoyance will be solved. ing aside the thought. Woman suffrage is coming, and why not? Do they not own property? Have they not ber the day and date. the intelligence of the average citizen? Are they not more entitled to have a voice in the affairs of this government than an unlettered foreigner, who has no other ambition here beyond making a fortune and returning to the land of his

We take the woman of to-day, who is educated, and by hard work with the needle, pen, in the school room, the counting room, hospital, asylum, farm, store and hundreds of other avocations, she has accumulated property. She is in the race of progress with her male competitors, and in her fields of labor she has employees who are dependent upon her success for their support.

Is it right for such superior intellectuality to be forced through and by the forms of law to quietly submit to have her rulers selected for her by those who are not as competent to make the selection as herself? She STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA. is taxed, and yet a ragged negro, who has no more intelligence than a raceoon, and with nothing but the clothes on his back, can have more rights under our laws than she.

If we wanted to build a cotton The Bank of Manning, Plaintiff, factory or any other commercial industry, where thousands of dollars are involved, there would be no hesitancy in allowing a woman to subscribe her money to the stock, nor would there be any question in allowing her to hold a position to handle the finances of the institution when it is established. Yet we do when it comes to a vote to select men to make the laws whereby our property is to be taxed to support the government raise our hands in holy horror and say the women must keep out.

South Carolina is now in a position to set the pace for the United States in the way of doing justice to one class of her citizens that have been held back through nothing less than pure narrow-mindedness.

Throw down the barriers and give our educated and property-owning women the right to vote, and the problem of white supremacy is solved forever and ever.

Rumor has it that J. E. Ellerbe of Marion is itching for Jno. L. McLaurin to commit political suicide, so that he can get into his congressional shoes, and one of the nice little schemes on foot, we are told, is to induce Mc Laurin to run for governor and leave the stath district field open for other cattle to graze upon. We have no idea what McLaurin expects to do in a political way, but the people of the sixth district will not willingly give him up even to take a seat in the United States Senate; they feel that the district is very scarce of such timber as is found in Mc-Laurin's make-up, and they need him to battle for them where fighting is most needed. As far as the governorship is concerned, we can safely say without authority, that McLaurin would not consent to run even if the balance of the State should demand it, because as long as the people in his district claim his services his duty is first to them. When we speak of the people we do not mean Co. a few fly-blowing politicians, who would destroy McLaurin if the people can be fooled.

Do not let the manipulations of the speculators in cotton frighten you into sacrificing what you have on hand. The recent slumps in our judgment are only the tricks of the trade. Cotton is short, and it must be had, and as soon as the article is out of the hands of the growers the speculators will raise the price, and ar $1.50 the consumers will pay dearly for donths...... 75 the manufactured goods. Already 50 cotton goods have advanced at a fearful rate, and the claim for the raise with the manufacturers is the scarcity of the raw material.
