

- Governor: W. H. ELLERBE. Lieutenant Governor: MILES B. McSWENEY. Secretary of State: D. H. TOMPKINS. Attorney General: W. A. BARBER. Comptroller General: JAMES NORTON. Treasurer: W. H. TIMMERMAN. Superintendent of Education: W. D. MAYFIELD. Adjutant and Inspector General: J. GARY WATTS. Congress: JOHN L. McLAURIN. Solicitor: JOHN S. WILSON.

It was a happy thought that struck some one in Columbia last week when they suggested Colonel Miles B. McSweney, of Hampton, for Lieutenant Governor. A better selection could not be made throughout the entire State.

The great convention so long the subject of many surmises and predictions has come and gone and still the world moves along. There was nothing to show any disintegration of the Reform cause, but there was great evidence of a growth of that cause. The financial issue in national affairs has given a great many of the conservative people of the Conservative faction an opportunity to link their political fortunes with ours, and today more true conservatives are allied with the Reformers than Reformers have gone out afflicted with sore-head from being defeated for office.

In last week's issue of the Marion Star there appears an editorial which purports to be a defense of the Alliance when it is really a stab at Congressman McLaurin. We read "Seneca's" letter which the Star takes umbrage at, and for the life of us we can not see where "Seneca" made an attack upon the Alliance. He made an attack upon what he says is an attempt to use the Alliance in promoting the political interests of individuals against a man who was put forward by the Alliance and who stood manfully by its principles. Suppose Seneca did attack the Alliance, is that good reason for the Star to attack McLaurin? What has McLaurin got to do with the views of any man who rushes into print to air his views? Seneca may be one of McLaurin's enemies for ought we know, and wrote the article for the purpose of bringing out an attack from the Star. There is one thing certain that McLaurin is worrying himself not half as much as others are about his Congressional race, and if the people of Marion do not appreciate his services it is the only county in the district that does not. The resolutions adopted by the Marion county Alliance did create a little suspicion, but we have been assured the resolutions were not intended as construed by McLaurin's friends; that being the case we can go into the coming fight side by side with Marion and help crown W. H. Ellerbe with gubernatorial honors.

The State Convention paid Clarendon a most graceful compliment by selecting one of her citizens a delegate at large to the National Convention. The delegates at large are Senator B. R. Tillman, Gov. J. Gary Evans, General W. H. Ellerbe and Capt. D. J. Bradham. The people of Clarendon will no doubt appreciate the compliment. A delegate at large is an honor worthy of being sought after and in most cases it is the prize which ambitious men strive to secure; but in this instance the members of the convention wanted the very best and strongest material from the silver ranks to bear the siver standard from South Carolina. Capt. Bradham is proud of the great honor conferred upon him and his people are also proud to know that one whom they have trusted and honored, is honored and trusted by the people of the State.

The Marion Star concludes an editorial as follows: "The people remember the 'Dear Appelt' letter, and when the time comes for them to vote he will find out whether it is a matter of 'personal spite' or not." Yes, they remember the letter referred to and, they know that when said letter was written there was great provocation for it, and they further remember the manly spirit shown in that letter, when others were cringing with fear to express their views on the mode of enforcing the dispensary law McLaurin came out like a man and dared to differ with Governor Tillman and others. His manliness has won for him Tillman's high regard and when Tillman was attacked in Washington McLaurin's voice was the first and only one heard in his defense. If we remember right, McLaurin was not the only one who differed with Tillman on the mode of enforcing the dispensary law, and a perusal of some of the speeches in the last campaign will show the Star the wisdom of sweeping before its own door first, if it considers it an offense to differ with Tillman on anything. McLaurin may have made some mistakes in some of his letters. He may have been indiscreet or impolitic, but what he said he believed at the time and he had the manhood to express himself just as Ellerbe had the manhood to disclaim responsibility in certain matters connected with the dispensary. But McLaurin is not running for a State office in this year, the issue is, has McLaurin been faithful to the trust reposed in him and has he done his duty. If he has done what the people expected of him, are they willing to cast him aside for a man untried and with no experience when one of great experience is needed so much at this time. We do not believe the people of Marion or the sixth district want to swap horses in the middle of the stream.

SANDY GROVE SIFTINGS. Sandy Grove, May 22.—"Good news! Good rains! Good morning! Have any tobacco plants? Where can I find some?" This is the usual greeting in Sandy Grove just now. One night some weeks ago some one robbed Mr. R. E. Smiley's plant bed. Several are through transplanting; others are not. You may bet there have been millions of plants set within the last three days in this section. Other crops are very well considering the long dry spell. Look out for General Green, now boys; he is coming in full force. The fish will get a rest since the rains. We learn that William Cade, the murderer of Sanders, near Cade's Depot some time ago, was sentenced for life. We also learned that Mr. Robert Cade, father of the murderer, dropped dead of heart disease at the front of the court house steps last Tuesday, the morning on which his son's trial began. Rev. C. L. Bradshaw's little infant child died this week of that prevalent disease, dysentery. Well, when we get our crop raised and harvested, our tobacco marketed, and Tillman elected President, won't we be happy though. SAM TATTLER.

RESPOND TO THIS CALL. Citizens of Manning: What are you going to do about the cemetery? It is sad to think about the condition of our cemetery, all grown up in weeds and briars, and many of the graves entirely obliterated. To say the least of it it is a shame that such a state of affairs should exist in our town. There are some lots that are well kept, and to those owning them I extend a hearty commendation, but the greater part of the cemetery is in a most deplorable condition and should be attended to at once. City Fathers, arouse yourselves and let us have a cemetery kept in such condition as will do credit to our town. Let us elect a Cemetery Board and make such laws as will further the interest of all concerned. We need more land, for I frequently have applications for lots and there is none to sell. If we could manage to buy a piece of land on the south side of our present grounds and sell off the lots, then apply the money to the cemetery, it would not be long before we would have a place in which to bury our dead that would be a credit to our town and community instead of a reproach as it now is. I did not intend to say as much as I have said but having made several attempts to get a meeting of the citizens and failed, I take this method of presenting this matter before the public with the hope of getting it attended to at once. My business calls me to the cemetery more than any one man in town, and I am ready and willing to render any assistance to put the same in proper shape and keep it so. Trusting that the above will not be read by men with ears dull of hearing and hearts dull of feeling, I am yours for the good of the town and community. W. C. CHANDLER, Funeral Director of Manning, S. C. May 27, 1896. Ripans Tablets: one gives relief. Ripans Tablets cure indigestion.

"UNCLE REMUS" ON BEN.

Joel Chandler Harris, the Cracker Humorist, Writes of Tillman—Heard Him Speak in Atlanta and Was Delighted—Analyses the Unique Character of the Young South Carolina Senator. What is the truth about Tillman? I have asked myself the question hundreds of times, and I presume that a great many other people who care more for ideas and principles than they do for politicians have asked themselves the same question. Why? Because, on the one hand, we have heard a lot of newspaper editors, correspondents and reporters denouncing the South Carolinian as a Populist and an anarchist, and describing him as a blackguard and a buffoon; while, on the other hand, we have seen the Democratic voters of South Carolina standing almost as a unit in his support. Naturally, therefore, the question arose in my mind, what is the truth about Tillman? If he is not what various newspapers describe him to be, what profit do they find in a monstrous perversion of the truth? But if the newspapers are correct, what is the secret of the man's hold on the people of South Carolina. Here was a mystery, indeed. I remembered a fact that a great many people seem to have forgotten—that, from the foundation of the republic down to the present hour, there has never arisen a genuine Democrat—a man of the people—of any degree of prominence who has been denounced by the so-called "conservatives" as a communist and an anarchist. In his day and time, Jefferson was an "anarchist" and a "communist," and his doctrines were denounced as dangerous. Andrew Jackson was a "dirty blackguard." Tombs was an "anarchist." Stephens was a "demagogue." And even poor Mr. Tilden was said to be in favor of "promoting dangerous doctrines." I remembered these things but they failed to solve the Tillman mystery, for the very newspapers that denounced him as a "blackguard" and a "buffoon" were loud in their pretensions of Democracy. Then came Tillman's promotion to the United States Senate, and, at the first opportunity, he made a speech before that body. Practically, the speech was suppressed by many of the newspapers both North and South, East and West. But the Washington correspondent described it as "unparliamentary," "coarse" and "undignified." I made haste to get hold of a copy of the speech, and read it through in the Record from beginning to end. To my utter bewilderment I found not a paragraph, nor a sentence, nor phrase, nor a word, nor an allusion to public matters that the condition of affairs did not call for and the occasion demand. I found marks of indignation in it, but from the first word to the last the sentiments expressed on public matters were those of a Democrat. Hundred of speeches full of invective and more "undignified" had been delivered in both houses of Congress. But this only deepened the mystery. Perhaps Tillman had delivered a "coarse" speech and afterwards revised for publication. Consequently, when Mr. Tillman was announced to make a speech in the tabernacle, I resolved to make one of the audience and see and hear for myself. What I saw was a trim, vigorous man, full of energy and fire, standing before a vast assemblage of men apparently as much in earnest as he was. Behind him on the platform there was the flutter of fans in feminine hands. Before him stretched a sea of faces, many of them, perhaps the majority, belonging to middle-aged men. In the seats to the right of the platform were gathered an audience of younger men—as if though the cohesion of youth had brought them together. A more thoughtful audience I have never seen. What I heard was a speech as purely and as truly democratic as has ever been delivered in Atlanta, or anywhere else, for that matter. "He carries his Jefferson with him," said a man at my side, and this was the fact. Tillman went to the fountain-head of Democracy for his doctrine. He quoted from Jefferson's first inaugural. He quoted from Jackson's message vetoing the renewal of the United States bank charter. In no part of his speech did he depart in the slightest particular from Democratic principles as Democrats understand them. He spoke bluntly when dealing with the conditions we see around us—when dealing with the results of what he politely called "Republican legislation" and "Democratic administration." But the truth is ever blunt. It sometimes hurts, and ought to hurt. When you begin to soften the natural asperity of truth, you must, in the nature of things, adulterate its essence. But a political truth is never unpalatable to those who are pledged to the people's interests. I listened in vain to hear some hint of the "coarseness" and "vulgarity" which the newspapers led me to expect. I listened in vain to hear some intimation of "buffoonery." But these were entirely lacking. What I did hear was an earnest and patriotic appeal to Democratic voters to arouse themselves to the crisis that now endangers the country. In a certain picturesque employment of homely metaphors he reminded me of Joe Brown, who was a South Carolinian. In his fluency and vigor of expression he reminded me of Colonel Tom Howard, who was the greatest of our Georgia orators. In force and fire and directness, he reminded me of Tombs. In gesture and courage he was not unlike Henry Grady. And although these reminiscent comparisons were thrust upon my mind, they took nothing from the wit and glaring individuality of Tillman himself. As the speech progressed, it was easy to see that Tillman was disappointed. There were moments when he would pause after making an argument or asking a question, and I soon discovered the cause. He had come to Atlanta expecting to be "put to the question," as it were—to be laid out on the rack of interruption and inquiry. He had expected to find at least one half of his audience composed of gold-standard men. At one point he paused and turned Candidates' Cards.

FOR COUNTY SUPERVISOR. Mr. Editor:—Please announce me a candidate for the office of County Supervisor, and I pledge myself to abide the decision of the primary. Respectfully, R. R. HUGHINS. FOR SHERIFF. I announce myself a candidate for reelection to the office of Sheriff, subject to the action of the Democratic primary. D. J. BRADHAM. FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION. I desire to announce to the Democratic voters of Clarendon County that I am a candidate for the office of County Superintendent of Education, heretofore known as School Commissioner, and pledge myself to stand by the action of the primary. L. L. WHEELERS. FOR CLERK OF COURT. I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Clerk of Court subject to the action of the primary. J. H. TIMMONS. FOR TREASURER. I announce myself a candidate for County Treasurer in the coming primary and will abide its action. S. J. BOWMAN. FOR AUDITOR. I am a candidate for reelection to the office of County Auditor and pledge myself to stand by the primary. J. ELBERT DAVIS. FOR CLERK OF COURT. I announce myself a candidate for the office of Clerk of Court and pledge myself to abide the result of the primary. B. O. CANTEY. FOR SHERIFF. I am a candidate for Sheriff and will abide the decision of the Democratic primary. I belong to no ring combination, but solicit the votes of every white man. C. L. EMANUEL. FOR HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. I hereby announce myself a candidate for reelection to the House of Representatives, subject to the will of the Democratic voters as expressed in the primary. W. C. DAVIS. KINGSTREE ITEMS. Kingstree, May 25th.—The May term of the court of general sessions for this county convened here on Monday, the 18th inst., at 9:30 o'clock a. m., Judge Aldrich presiding. Solicitor John S. Wilson and Stenographer Mixson were at their posts promptly to their names. The Solicitor gave out only one indictment to the grand jury upon which they made out a true bill. The case was docketed and tried and the defendant acquitted. This was the case of the State vs. Kelly Powell, charged with an aggravated assault and battery. The next case tried was that of the State vs. Ephraim Johnson indicted for larceny. The defendant was found guilty and fined $30.00, but as he had no money and no imprisonment was provided by the Statutes he went "scot free." The trial of W. R. Cade, a young white man charged with the murder of W. L. Sanders on the 9th of last January, occupied the court all day Tuesday and a part of the day Wednesday. Solicitor Wilson conducted the prosecution and Messrs. Kelley & McConnell the defense. Both sides were ably handled. The trial excited great interest; and the court room was pretty well crowded while it was going on. The argument was concluded Wednesday about noon and the jury retired for their finding. They were out about 30 minutes when they returned with a verdict of guilty with a recommendation to the mercy of the court. Cade was sentenced to the penitentiary for the period of his natural life at hard labor. So far as we have heard an expression of opinion the verdict has met the approbation of all. Mr. C. W. Cade, the father of W. R. Cade, dropped dead on the court house square Tuesday morning. He had just arrived in town to attend the trial of his son. He was about 65 years of age. The candidates for the various county offices are coming to the front and are urging their claims on the "dear people." A good many have announced themselves in the papers since our last letter to the Times, and there are "more to come." So far we have only one candidate for the legislature. Editor Carter, of the Lake City Times, is being run for the lower house. Mr. Carter is a suitable man and we would like to see him elected. There are several candidates for the office of sheriff and clerk of court, all of whom are good men and we think either of them would make a competent and efficient officer. We are glad that McLaurin has consented to stand for reelection to Congress from the 6th district. He has made an able and fearless representative and pursued an open and manly course all the way. We think it would be wise to retain his services as long as possible. Rev. W. D. Moore has returned from Chattanooga, Tenn., where he had been attending the Southern Baptist Convention. Mrs. Louis Jacobs gave a delightful party at her home last Thursday evening. Prof. E. C. Dennis, of the Kingstree Academy, has returned from a visit to Camden, his old home. Black River has dwindled down to a very small stream. The ladies of Kingstree gave an ice cream festival last Tuesday evening. Quite a handsome sum was realized. Mr. Herbert Graham, our efficient Railroad and Express agent, is in Charleston having his eyes treated. During his absence Mr. D. C. McCollum, of Whitesville, N. C., has charge of the depot. Miss Carrie Cronberg, one of the teachers in the Florence graded school, is visiting the Misses Pendergrass of this village. Mr. M. F. Heller has returned from Rock Hill where he went to represent Kingstree Lodge of the K. of P. at the meeting of the Grand Lodge. W. E. C.
