Who is it in Clarendon that does not know the firm of R. W. Durant & Son. We do not believe there are such, but nevertheless like all enterprising merchants they believe in keeping in touch with their customers. Our advertisement can be found in these columns. The Rants handle hardware, cutlery and house-keepers supplies. You can get anything in the housekeeping line you want from a kitchen poker, to a handsome dinner or tea table, or the possible exception of a cooking and heating stove, and they also handle a full supply of sportsmen goods. When you go to Sumter, call on them and satisfaction is assured.

A handsome present, one that can be handed down to your children, and their children can be suggested from the grand display at L. W. Folsom's jewelry store. Folsom without a doubt can sell goods in his line as cheap as any jewelry establishment in South Carolina, and the beauty of it is that what does sell you, may be relied upon to be as represented. We ask our readers when they want a watch, a ring, or jewelry of any kind, to call on Folsom, and when they want silver we can say that his stock is simply superb. Folsom's store is the place to buy your wife, his brother, or sister, or brother-in-law's Christmas present. Be sure to go there.

Read Rytteburgs Christmas advertisement. This establishment is one of the largest mercantile establishments in the state and with the large number of salesmen they can handle with ease the vast of trade. Clarendon has always patronized the Rytteburgs liberally; their name is a household word in certain sections of the county and for that reason it would be needless for us to sing their praises, but by reading their new advertisement, our readers can see what the Rytteburgs have to offer them, and knowing the firm so well it is needless for us to say that they propose and mean to give the people grand bargains for the holidays. When you go to Sumter be sure and visit their store.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenk, editor of the Cadis, Ind. Ter. Banner, when his little girl, three years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not let it without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Dr. R. B. Loryea, druggist.

Congress is in session, and every body is out there, anxious to know what will be done with the money question and the tariff, but while this is going on J. H. Lessee is devoting his attention and bending his entire energies to sell goods. He has the best line of a nice lot of fire works, and the boys can get the material from him to have their fun. Lessee carries a general line of merchandise, but for the holiday trade, he has made a specialty of the things housekeepers want to make good dinners, and the material for the next of sales. Lessee is one of our youngest merchants, and already he has made a reputation among the purchasing public. Whenever he sells an article, everybody knows that it is just as represented.

SOMETHING TO KNOW. It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. The medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the liver and kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1.00 per bottle at R. B. Loryea's drug store.

No lady or gentleman can complete a toilet without calling for the aid of a drugist. Not that it is absolutely necessary to call the drugist, but as a general thing drug stores are the places where the best toilet goods are kept. At Dr. W. M. Brockinton's drug store the toilet goods are artistically arranged with the finest of soaps, cosmetics, and perfumes. He also has a very pretty line of paper on which many a list of love may be written. The one at a distance, Dr. Brockinton has a great many Christmas attractions and with the aid of his able assistant Dr. J. F. LeGrand, he will be able to make any heart glad with his nicely selected stock of holiday goods. There besides, he always keeps a full supply of drugs and medicines, and gives his prescription department the closest attention. Dr. LeGrand is a first class druggist and prides himself on this branch of his business.

Every man wants to enjoy his Christmas and if his clothes are all tattered and torn, he can't throw that spirit of pleasure into his Christmas. Men who are comfortably clad and whose clothes are neat will wish to see the new line of clothing that we have in stock. It is an accepted fact, if dress does not make the man, it at least makes a decided difference in his appearance in the eye of progress and refinement. To be in the fashion, to be in the possession of the recognition of the man, Brown, Cuttino & Delgar, whose establishment is just below the bank, have in their stock of clothing and gents furnishing goods, the very latest styles, and the latest novelties in new wear. They are gents' furnishes solely, and by making this branch of trade their specialty, they of course devote all their attention to it. Brown, Cuttino & Delgar, keep a nice line of hats and all the paraphernalia that go to up a gentleman's dress, and they will sell you a suit of clothes fit for the presence of a king for a surprisingly low cost.

Have you been to H. D. Riff's store since Santa Claus sent him word of his intended visit. If you have not, you should go to take a look at the goods. Riff is not the sort of man that lets his stock get out of hand and he is determined to sell the goods at a price less than the weather and the price of cotton. There would be no use for us to enumerate the goods in this store, as it would require too much space, but he will give you a list of what he has in stock. He will bring it all when they want to make their holiday purchases. Riff keeps every thing that can be found in a general store, but when a man calls on him for a bill of dry goods, shoes or clothing, he is then in his glory and if there is any thing in the store, Riff will bring it out. Mrs. H. D. Riff manages the ladies department and her stock of millinery can not be bettered anywhere. Her millinery department is growing in popularity every day, because she keeps up with the fashion and her stock is always up-to-date, and she is constantly getting in new goods and new patterns and styles. It was Mrs. Riff that revolutionized the millinery business in this town.

The toys, toys, that are now on exhibition at Jenkinson's store, Santa Claus must be hard to please if he does not get the little folks. The front part of this establishment has been set aside to bring mirth and joy to the children and customers are made upon the young ladies who are stationed at the toy department. Jenkinson has dolls, horses, cups, wagons, trains, fireworks, vases, albums and in fact every thing in the toys and holiday goods line that you can conceive of. Then his general stock has been reduced to a small quantity, but he has his usual hustling habit and proposes to outstrip his competitors. Jenkinson carries a large stock of goods, consisting of everything in the mercantile line, and he shows his willingness in using printed ink to keep in touch with the people. There is not a household in Clarendon county but what has bought from Jenkinson and all because he let the people know that he was to be sold, and when they went to him to satisfy their wants with quality and price, Jenkinson invites the holiday buyers to his store and he will endeavor to convince them that his store is the place to buy.

The alleged killing of Macgo the great Cuban chief has not cast a shadow upon the vim and spirit of S. A. Rigby. He has been looking forward to a big Christmas trade, and with his usual keen business head he has, made preparations for it. He claims that Santa Claus has his store headquarters, and is daily stopping at his things intended to bring the crimson glow of delight upon the cheeks of the little ones, and make their eyes sparkle like so many stars in the summer sunlight. Old Rigby is a man when it comes to business, and he has helped many of Manning's most bewitching young ladies, and now he is receiving applications from young men to assist in the store. With his usual vigor, his regular clerks congratulate him every day on being alive to enjoy the presence of these Christmas angels that Rigby has placed in charge of the holiday counters. Not only has Rigby a large supply of beautiful Christmas goods, but he has a general merchandise line, more complete and he has his corps of experienced clerks who were never more anxious to sell. To sum up, Rigby is a first class merchant, always enteringprising, and always ready to meet competition.

The greetings of the season may be seen at the stores before any where else, because an up-to-date merchant will buy his goods with an eye to catching the public's fancy. The holiday goods, which are the most attractive in the store, and they will not notice them in his country paper. Moses Levi, the pioneer merchant, the man who pitched his tent here when all around was a wilderness, and who grew up with the people, the one whose long experience and wisdom has been well fitted to know the wants of his patrons. He never loses an opportunity to make his great big establishment a popular resort. Mr. Levi has prepared for the Christmas holidays, he has in his store a beautiful line of China and Bohemian ware, magnificent novelties, and the prettiest kind of jewelry; besides, he has his shelves filled with everything that the human family needs to make up their wardrobe for the holidays. His stock is of the very latest fabrics, and his shoes cannot be excelled in any market. The grocery department will supply the housekeeper with all the nice things to make up a good Christmas dinner and the grocer's line of business is that these things can be bought with little money.

That gilded sign so conspicuously seen which hangs out in front of Dr. R. B. Loryea's drug store is a golden mortar and pestle, the emblem of the drug profession. It represents the vessel in which medicine is compounded, and when you walk in store you are greeted with a sight that is pleasing to behold. The goods are well arranged and neatness and care is seen on every hand. The shelves are filled with well put up packages are on the shelves of one side, and the ingredients and material for compounding prescriptions on the other. Every body knows that Dr. Loryea is a first class merchant, and his professional reputation were it to be made up of nothing but good would be high in his profession. He would be damned if he would let his store be run by a man who would not put up packages are on the shelves of one side, and the ingredients and material for compounding prescriptions on the other. Every body knows that Dr. Loryea is a first class merchant, and his professional reputation were it to be made up of nothing but good would be high in his profession. If any of our friends when in Sumter will call at the store of D. J. Chandler, they will not only find a cordial welcome, but they will also find one of the best selected stocks of clothing in this section of South Carolina. Now is the time to buy clothing, because after the inauguration of McKinley, woolen goods will advance rapidly. They have already advanced since the election about 20 per cent and those buying from Chandler will get the advantage of his having bought when the goods were at the lowest ebb. Don't forget to call on D. J. Chandler when in Sumter.

The very air is charged with rumors of coming nuptials and of course the newly married couples will soon be later have to go to housekeeping, as the old man does not take always to get tired of feeding a son-in-law. Furniture is one of the necessities in every household and Arthur Beltzer, the furniture man, for the relief of his customers, has prepared to supply the demand. He carries the largest stock of everything in the furniture line, carried in Sumter. He is also the manufacturer of the celebrated Daisy spring. Parties contemplating housekeeping should go to Sumter and inspect Beltzer's immense stock.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwood, N. C., was sick with rheumatism for several months, speaking of it, Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50c per bottle by R. B. Loryea, the druggist.
