Every male person not exempt by law from 16 to 60 years of age is liable to be conscripted for street tax matters; but if they have only been a resident of the town a week, unless they can show a receipt where they have paid street or road tax somewhere else they will have to pay the town two dollars.

What is the matter with the County Board of Control? They have so far just before the town's share of the dispensary profits for the past quarter, ending June. Come, gentlemen, the town needs the money, and if your business affairs will not permit you giving this matter your attention, there are others who will spare the time.

Notwithstanding the low price of cotton the people seem to be fairly well supplied with cash. This is the result of buying sparingly on credit during the crop making season. It is a common sight these days to see men bring cotton to market and return home with the money in their pockets, but a year or so ago such was not the case; it took all they could sell to pay debts.

A railroad official was at Foreston last Thursday receiving a lot of railroad ties and those he rejected were marked so with chalk. That afternoon a marriage took place and as the groom walked up the aisle of the church it was noticed that on the back of his coat was a chalk mark. His friends wondering if he got caught in the pile of crosses during the inspection.

MANNING STRUCK BY A CYCLONE.

Great Damage Done to Those Who Perish in Demanding High Prices.

The commercial wharfage of Manning was set in motion last Monday by Hurricane B, and some of the other merchants on our "Broadway" caught the inspiration and joined in to make things lively. Early in the morning the fronts of the stores became a mass of human beings, and the sidewalks were filled with goods and the awning braces were converted into hanging places for all kinds of wares. To attract the attention of the passer-by, yellow, red and green streamers were flying in front of these stores where "special sales" were being offered. Harvin & Barron were the pioneers in this special bargain business, but the ever disturbing racket man was lit with their practice they also proclaimed "special bargains." Jenkinson, at the other end of the block, put out a "nigger" with a bell, another "nigger" with a drum, another "nigger" with a transparency, and with this combination of noise and organized and put into execution a street parade, directing people to his store, where he was going to give them never-before-beard-of-bargains. All day long crowds of people from every section of the county were in town, taking advantage of the opportunities to buy goods cheap, and if the merchants tell the truth, the cash sales of the day exceeded any previous day of the season. It was a day of business and the store that offered the biggest bargains sold the most goods, but it proved what enterprise can do. Harvin & Barron, determined to start this movement, advertised their intentions. The result was, it brought great crowds to town to spend money, and as a result, a most active competition set in by those other merchants who saw the opportunity to sell goods.

These young merchants certainly have instilled more progressive ideas here, and young active, energetic, up-to-date blood has been infused into our commercial community. These merchants are changing the old order of things will either have to renounce them or get out of the way, because these young fellows have caught the idea that smaller profits bring larger sales. The old way of doing business, of losing business being forced out of the business track and the winner now must come to the small profit racket. The people who have the money to spend take the newspapers and in this day of getting almost nothing for their money they are compelled to spend their cash where the most can be obtained for their money. The question then to a business man is how to reach the people, and offer them such inducements as will attract them.

The man with the cash in his pocket is as independent as a wool sweater. He does not, after he has paid his lien, feel under obligations to spend his cash at the store where he bought it. He will sell him what he wants as cheap as he can buy elsewhere. He picks up his county paper and reads where another merchant is offering goods so much cheaper than he was paying all the money with his own property was tied up in a mortgage, and as soon as he pays off his debt, like a prisoner freed from bondage, he seeks the place where the most advantage can be made. Human nature is the same the world over, and people are going to spend asid asid sentiment when it comes to spending their money. No man is going to give a merchant more for goods because he has a lien with him in the store, when the other merchant will sell him for less; these young merchants realized this. They did not do a lien business the past summer, and of course, the leading public cannot see any reason why they cannot do so. Therefore they think they have an advantage and whether it is imaginary or real, they are trying to convince the public through the county paper and over their counters. It is a question to hear these new merchants talk to their customers in this way, "I bought a very heavy stock and my bills must be met. I must sell these goods with or without a lien." Then a very telling argument now being made is, "This is a cash store and I cannot afford to carry over my goods to force on people who are compelled to buy on credit in summer. The credit man is not satisfied with a small profit because he can carry over his goods and make his lien customers take who he chooses to let them have. If a lienor in a month of June wants a linen duster and his merchant has carried over a lot of overcoats he can force off the overcoat and the lienor cannot help himself." It is really funny to stand around and hear what is told in order to push goods off. Every scheme and device is resorted to create a demand for goods, and the old-time quiet, conservative manner of doing business has taken up its quarters at the cross roads, so, as the push, vim, thrift and enterprise of the town has sent it into hiding.

The practical object lesson exhibited in this town last Thursday of how business must be doing some of our less pushing merchants stand in their front doors and cry out, "Get down, get down, get down." Their breeches pockets, smiling with one of Brete Hart's grins; their faces wore looks as if a surprise party had struck them and inwardly they manufactured malicious words and expressions to use against the party. Let the ball roll, nobody will be hurt except that hard-headed set who will not move along with the procession of progress, and if they persist in standing in the way they will be crushed out of existence.

THE FELLOW THAT LOOKS LIKE HIM.

Some fellow was in Charleston last week, got himself filled up with "red eyes" and proceeded to "do the best" of his kind. He was tied up with a vile creature in the Fenderson district and when pulled he represented himself to be one of our citizens in order to shield his own identity. Mr. Poncey of this county was not in Charleston last Wednesday night. Here is what the Sunday News has to say about the affair: "A man from up in Clarendon county, named J. M. Poncey, and Bertie Sues, a native of this county, were in the market street, while in a little legal bout before the recorder to-morrow morning. The case will be a hot one if some unforeseen event does not turn up which will cause the mill to be closed off. The best of the contest is either three or five dollars. Poncey can't say exactly which. The Clarendon man had the woman arrested yesterday morning on a charge of swindling him out of a good deal of money. Poncey says he believes Bertie swindled him out of five dollars, but rather than overdo the thing he will just split the difference and call it three. "Poncey struck the town with a pocket full of cotton money and a red pocket handkerchief. He was in the market street last Wednesday like Old Dog Tray in bed in with bet company, and as a matter of course came out at the little end of about 100 dollars."

A NOVEL CASE.

The case of John A. Garrett, et al., plaintiffs, against Mrs. Rosa Weinberg and W. L. Osteen, suit for possession of a tract of land in Sumter county, has gained some notoriety through a novel ground on which is based the latest motion for a new trial. The case has been in litigation several years and has been before the Supreme Court once. It was tried in the circuit court recently on its merits. But now comes a motion for a new trial upon the ground that one of the jurors who sat on the case was disqualified because he had, in 1871, been convicted of larceny. This case was argued before Judge Witherspoon on Tuesday and he took the matter under advisement before rendering a decision.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

Deafness is caused by the inflammation of the membrane lining the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a running sound or imper ce hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and analgesic can do nothing but take out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammation of the mucous membrane. We will cure you with our Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. S. A. WOOD, Proprietor, 241 Co. Toledo, O.

HANDY ON HIS WAY HOME.

Comptroller to the Paris Exposition. Leaves the French Capital.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—Major Moses P. Handy, the special commissioner of the United States to the French International exposition of 1900, who was seriously ill Thursday, has started for Havre in a special compartment of the train.

Major Handy is accompanied by his wife and Lieutenant A. C. Baker, his assistant. Thence the party will sail for Southampton and will start for home on Saturday.

The friends of the major say that anxiety to complete his mission and return to the reassembling of congress and the final effort he made to attend the banquet tendered him by the American chamber of commerce on Wednesday last, caused his break down.

The physician who was called to attend Major Handy found that the latter's heart was affected, and that absolute quiet is indispensable, though his condition no longer causes serious apprehension.

CONTRIVERSY IS CLOSED.

"Les Miserables" Placed on the Eligible List of French Books.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—The controversy over the use of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" in the Girls' High school of this city, which has attracted considerable attention, has been settled by the placing of the work on the eligible list of French books for the school.

At the secret meeting of the committee having the matter in charge, the abridged edition of the famous work, edited by Professor Ferdinand de Samblancourt of Harvard university, was accepted. This is the edition of "Les Miserables" that Miss Dilworth, instructor of French at the Girls' High school, recommended in the original list she asked for at the last meeting of the committee, when the book was denounced and refused admission in the school.

She said at the time she intended this edition to be used, and no other, and pronounced it a very good book and declared that a classical course in French could not be taught properly without it.

Gregory, formerly of Chicago, who left here for the Alaskan gold fields in August, in which is given some of the hardships of the White Pass. "There have been six suicides," he writes, "three hangings and 11 killings, besides a number of deaths from other causes. It costs $1 to get a ticket through to Skagway and 10 cents to get it mailed. Prices here are very high. Flour at Lake Bennett brings $50 per sack, bacon $1 per pound, beans 30 cents, corn, Horsehoe brand, 50 cents each. A pair of shoes will bring any price you want to ask and overalls bring $8 quick."

Presbyterian Synod Stirred.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The signature of Rev. Dr. Charles Woodruff Shields of Princeton to an application for a liquor license for Princeton Inn threatened to completely disrupt the Presbyterian synod of New Jersey, which has been in session at Plainfield. The following resolution was adopted: "The synod finds occasion to reiterate the judgment that the granting of property for saloon purposes and the issue of licenses is not consistent with Christianity and that the attention of all presbyteries, sessions, pastors and teachers be brought to bear upon this matter."

Alleged Shoplifter Arrested.

SELMA, Ala., Oct. 23.—Louis Gertman, at one time the most prominent insurance man in Alabama, has been arrested for pilfering from stores.
