The New York Barber On Trial For the Second Time.

SOME SURPRISES TO BE SPRUNG

Defense Will Attempt to Show That Mira-Nack Committed the Deed-Both the Accused to Swear That the Other Killed Guldensuppe, and It Is a Question Which the Jury Will Believe.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. - Martin Thorn, indicted with Mrs. Augusta Nack for the murder of William Guldensuppe, was again placed on trial in the criminal branch of the Queens county supreme court at Long Island City. Thorn's first trial, which was begun two weeks ago, was interrupted and had to be abandoned on account of Juror Larson becoming seriously ill.

There was a repetition of the scenes which marked the opening of the first trial. The main floor and galleries of the courtroom were crowded with lawyers, talesmen, reporters and newspaper artists. Deputies were stationed at all State of South Carolina, yers, talesmen, reporters and newspaper entrances to the courtroom and no persons were allowed to enter without a pass.

About 150 talesmen, especially drawn for the trial, were in attendance. There Jacob W McLeod, plaintiff, were many farmers from the remote parts of Long Island, and from their conversation in the corridors it was evident that they had not read or heard much about the Guldensuppe murder. This is regarded as favorable to getting a jury within a reasonable time. The witnesses were not allowed to sit in the courtroom, but were allowed to occupy seats just outside the courtroom door.
One of the new witnesses is Ida Zeigler of New York. Since Mrs. Nack confessed that Thorn committed the murder Counsel Howe has been direct-cottage at Woodside.

Mrs. Nack's unexpected confession upset all of Mr. Howe's plans. This induced him to prepare a new line of de-

Thorn and Mrs. Nack will each swear that the other killed Guldensuppe and it will be for the jury to decide which is believed.

Judge Smith, as soon as he arrived at the courthouse in Long Island City, sent for District Attorney Youngs and told him that he was suffering from chills and ague and that rather than risk the possibility of a second mistrial, he deemed it better to telephone for either Justice Maddox or Gaynor to try the case. The first named was subsequently secured.

ship the master of the Sprague saw a bark bearing down upon him with yards squared. The bark was the Norwegian Vara, Captain Terjesen, which cleared from Wilmington for Manchester, England, last Monday. Each vessel apparently thought the other would shange her course, but neither did so, and they came together under full sail. The Vara suffered most, having a great hole knocked in the bluff of her bow. All of the crew jumped aboard the schooner except the captain and cabin boy, who were taken off soon afterwards. The schooner anchored near by, and the bark was last sighted at dark Wednesday night. She sank during the night.

The captains of both vessels are here and have filed their protests, Captain Terjesen with the Norwegian consul. Alex S. Heide, and Captain Harper with his agents, Messrs. George Harris, The cargo of the Vara consisted of 4,908 barrels of rosin, shipped by the Liverpool Shelter company.
