We regret to see that the candidates for congressional honors have been spitting at each other. We do not think the people should allow these personalities brought into a discussion and wherever attempted the chairman should promptly stop the speaker. What right has a man seeking political honors to insult his hearers with a lot of rot which concerns no one but himself? It is our sincere wish that if the candidates leave off discussing public matters to bring forth some imaginary rumor, the people will show their disapproval by leaving the speaker to talk to the trees.
