PROHIBITION VS. DISPENSARY.

The political campaign is now past the half way mark and the campaigners are wending their way towards the up-country. Those who have watched the course of events are prepared to make predictions as to the outcome of the contest, for it is agreed that there is but one important issue—Prohibition against Dispensary.

When the contest began there was no well-defined issue and most of the candidates undertook to manufacture political capital by casting insinuations on Governor Ellerbe without attempting to offer the slightest proof; they undertook to build mountains out of mole-hills by creating the impression that the Governor played the wilds in making his appointments, that he went back on his friends, he was lacking in backbone, etc. Yet not one of them submitted any proof nor did one of them dare insinuate corruption or malfeasance in office, but on the other hand, when pinned down all of his opponents admit Governor Ellerbe to be honest, that his administration is free from scandal, and the promises made in his inaugural address have been faithfully fulfilled, notwithstanding the fact he has had more embarrassing conditions to contend with than any former Governor.

Under the circumstances the opposition utterly failing to show that Governor Ellerbe is not entitled to a second term, his re-election would be conceded without "another gun being fired," but the issue before the people—Prohibition or Dispensary—puts the contest in a different shape. The Prohibitionists, who are supporting that measure conscientiously, are not opposed to Governor Ellerbe, because they know him to be a pure man who has given the people a wise and clean administration, but they are opposed to the sale of liquor and Governor Ellerbe believing the dispensary system the most practical plan yet devised to control liquor, is advocating that system, which is contrary to the views and wishes of the Prohibitionists, hence their opposition to him.

In the person of C. C. Featherstone have the prohibition element selected a champion, and he is manfully holding up their cause; from county to county he advocates the State doing away with the beverage feature in its sale of spirituous liquors, and that it shall only permit the dispensaries to sell the stuff for "medicinal, scientific, sacramental and mechanical purposes." As we understand the position of the Prohibitionists, and if we are wrong we invite correction, the control and sale of spirituous and malt liquors is to remain with the State as it is now, but that the beverage feature shall only be eliminated. If we are correct in this, we do not see how those opposed to the State dealing in the stuff can support Mr. Featherstone, for he is advocating a measure which must be convincing to every mind will not work, aside from the fact that by their votes for him they will be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire. Those who are strict temperance men cannot vote for Featherstone if they adhere to the doctrine "touch not, taste not, handle not," because Featherstone does not advocate the putting of liquor out of the way. He wants it to stay here and wants the State to control it as at present; the only thing he asks for is for the stuff not to be sold for people to drink. We do not believe the people are ready to experiment with an idea, that before they begin, is known to them to be impractical and can only result in failure and reproach to the cause of prohibition. But as the issue has been made, with a man representing this doubtful side, the other side representing a plan only partially tried and that trial under the most provoking and harassing circumstances, it is for the people to say by their votes which plan they will adopt.

Governor Ellerbe in representing the dispensary does so as a temperance man, whose whole life, by precept and example has been a shining temperance light and were it in his power he would lavish the liquid fiery poison from the land, but as a man acquainted with the ways of the world, he knows that so long as the laws of the United States tie the hands of the State government, and forbids them from interfering with inter-State commerce, and thereby allowing people to get liquor from outside the State, just so long will a prohibition law prove a mockery and an open avenue to the lawless.

Now that the issue is clear cut and well defined, there is nothing for the voters to do but to select for Governor, the man representing, or who is the exponent of the issue representing their views, and that selection is to be made between Ellerbe and Featherstone, the former the exponent of the dispensary, a plan which will, if enforced, be a practical temperance measure, the latter a plan which upon its face shows that it is impractical, and only at best theoretical prohibition. The other candidates for Governor are all for the dispensary excepting Col. Tillman and he wants high license with the towns to bear the burden and the counties to get the revenue, but the others are not now being seriously considered since the issue has been defined.

HE SHOULD BE GRATEFUL.

The Freeman has no personal ill will toward Mr. Thomas, but when he offers for public office we deem it our duty to place impediments in his way.

Candidate Henry R. Thomas should have great reason for self-congratulation since the Sumter Freeman published the above. That paper now says it has no personal ill will towards Mr. Thomas, not even after accusing him of being a thief, murderer, fire-bug and all of the basest crimes known to man. Why, if the Freeman had any personal ill will, in order to show it, would have to assassinate Thomas in cold blood, for it has done everything else to him.

We have no disposition to take up Mr. Thomas' cause, nor are we supporting him for re-election, but when we read the horrible accusations against Thomas published in the Freeman, and then for the editor to disclaim any personal ill will since Thomas' brother, J. J. Ragin, takes the editor to task it looks like the horrible accusations were made regardless of truth and only for the purpose of deceiving the people when Thomas offers for public office to place impediments in his way. Such journalism is not calculated to give strength to the influence of the press.

We believe this to be one year that the people in selecting their representatives will be governed more by merit and qualification than by the glad handshake. What is needed in the general assembly are men who are in a position to know the people's needs and who will take that pride in the honor conferred upon them to work for those needs.

The latest dispatches say that Spain has propounded questions to President McKinley, looking to peace. Spain wants to know, will Uncle Sam consider peace, and if so, will he indicate the terms. The war will continue until terms of peace have been made and accepted. General Miles has landed his troops on Porto Rico, and that important Spanish possession will soon be ours.

It is a sad state of affairs when such political mud slinging as is being indulged in by the Congressional aspirants is permitted. Indeed, if the records of these candidates are to be judged by what each says of the other, a party who is not acquainted with them, might be led to think that neither of them were worthy of the high honors they seek. It is to be hoped that the mud will settle before they stump Marion county—Dillon Herald.

Scovel, the correspondent of the New York World, who slapped Gen. Shafter's face at Santiago, right after the ceremonies of raising the American flag to take the place of the Spanish flag, has gotten off with an exceedingly light punishment. Gen. Shafter had the power to have had him shot, but that officer with pity expelled the seeker for notoriety from Cuba. If Scovel ever attempts to go back to Cuba, the probability is that he will be court-martialed and shot.

The grand jurors of this county, court after court, make complaints about our county poor house, not about the management, but about the buildings. We hope the present grand jury will make more than a casual investigation of that institution and recommend a sound, practical plan of improvement. The superintendent does the best he can with the means at his command, but if a plan can be devised to put the institution beyond the complaints of grand jurors, we hope the present body will discover it, and that the representatives in the General Assembly will give the matter their serious attention. The poor are with us, and humanity demands they be taken care of in a decent, comfortable manner, because as a rule, those who unfortunately, are thrown upon the charity of the county are unable to do physical labor and they need kind and wholesome attention; this they cannot get in buildings about to fall down upon them.

After a man gets in a hole it's surprising how many people there are who could have told him what path he might have taken to avoid it.

The newspaper correspondence of J. Wilson Gibbes is exasperating lacking in a fair report of the proceedings of the campaign meetings. He does none of the candidates justice. Perhaps it is not his fault, it may be the fault of his employers.

The United States government in its desire to acquire more territory not only stamps out a record of a century, but it is steering the ship of State headmost towards the rocks of international complications. Already it is rumored that Germany has been selected as the leader in this international trap set for the United States, and it is a known fact that Germany is collecting a large fleet of warships at Manila and the German Admiral is in constant communication with the Spanish governor-general. There is a grave suspicion that Uncle Sam will be told by the Powers, so far shall thou go, but no farther." Our government has not yet taken the Philippines and may never do so, although every indication points to the taking of the entire group, possibly with an understanding that England be given a slice. Suppose Spain, before the capture of the Philippines, should make a treaty with Germany and Austria, whereby she relinquishes these possessions to those two Powers, would it not have a bad effect on the results of Dewey's victory? We know not, but we do believe that the monarchial governments are not going to sit idly by and leave Spain at the mercy of a Republic. It is our opinion that whenever the United States goes to that point which will endanger the Spanish crown, Uncle Sam will come into contact with a surprise for every King or Emperor, will look to his own crown to keep his dominions from slipping from his grasp.

THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

Editor THE TIMES: Admiral Dewey's naval victory in Manila bay, coupled with the destruction of Cervera's fleet in the Atlantic ocean and the capture of the city of Santiago de Cuba with its twenty-five thousand defenders after a great deal of desperate fighting on both sides, is simply made gratifying to us for the success of our arms and even though defending a bad cause. These achievements are grand and we believe will take their places in the pages of our history as the most complete and decisive have ever been recorded in the annals of the world. Great credit is due to our brave men, both officers and privates engaged in these struggles, we must confess, but in all candor we must say that the men who stood by and worked and died by their guns are the men who won and achieved these victories. The men that carry and work the guns are the sons and sinews of all armies and are the mainstay of nationalities, American valor, coupled as it were with bull-dog tenacity, backed by a war aim in the cause of freedom and humanity, is proving too much for Spanish treachery, oppression and brutality.

The deliverance and freedom of the people of the once beautiful and fertile island of Cuba is fast drawing to a certainty, and the hated and blood-stained flag of Spain will soon be forever lowered and will never again float over that island to menace the peace and happiness of the Cuban people. Spain has made many conquests and for many years has been the undisputed possessor of all her conquests, but by the capture of the island of Cuba she has lost her last and greatest possession, and she has been reduced to a bloody nation. Spain's past record has indeed been a cruel and bloody record. History teaches that Spain has waged more wars and in these wars shed more innocent blood than any other nation and she has not even excepting the unreasonable, revengeful and blood-thirsty savages in any part of the world. Spain, though, in a measure is paying now in blood, and so seeing with her eyes the treacherous destruction of our battleship Maine, and for the cruel murder of our unsuspecting countrymen who formed the crew of that battleship. Reformed justice has overtaken these Spanish devils and they have been made to render more than "life for life and blood for blood." Our government, I dare say, will make the Spaniards rue the day that emboldened them to the American blood, but for the distribution of the blood of others and of the poor Cubans we will have to leave it in the hands of Him who has said, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay."

The destruction of Spain's boasted fleet with the capture of her 23,000 defenders will certainly convince the Dons and Dagoes of Spain that they are not quite as invincible as their puffed up vanity has led them to believe, nor neither are the "Nankoo pigs" as cowardly and as awkward as they have tried to have the rest of the world believe. It is to be hoped now that Spain will see the uselessness in trying to further prolong the struggle, and so seeing with her eyes the treacherous destruction of our battleship Maine, and for the cruel murder of our unsuspecting countrymen who formed the crew of that battleship. Our baby has been continually troubled with colic and cholera, and in consequence, and all that we could do for him did not seem to give more than temporary relief, until we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The War Policy of the Banks.

There were some $1,200,000,000 subscribed for the $200,000,000 of war bonds offered by the Government, and the amount awarded was given to small bidders in the main—It brought out the stocking-money, as it were. So that, if the banks had not adopted a war policy of contraction equal to the expansion caused by calling this amount of money out of its hiding places, there would have been a full circulating medium for awhile; but, no sooner than it became apparent that the Government would award as much of this loan to the common people as possible and that in consequence there would be a temporary influx of more money in to the circulating medium of the country, the national banks commenced a systematic contraction by retiring their circulation to an extent equal to the inflation thus occasioned. Hence, the amount of national bank notes now clamoring for redemption at the Treasury is almost unprecedented—that too at a time when more money is needed to carry on the operations of the war and the commercial distress of the country than would be met in times of peace. A money stringency is always a calamity; but a scarcity of money in times of war becomes a double hardship. And right here looms up a tremendous object lesson for the people to ponder. It illustrates, as perhaps nothing else can, the utter folly and impolicy of trusting one of the most sacred as well as one of the most powerful and dangerous functions of government to the hands of private corporations which think of themselves and their unfair advantages first and of the people last, if at all. Conduct like this ought to make it very plain to the wayfaring man that all money should be issued and controlled by the government; that a function of government which comes home to every man, woman and child in this great country of ours, is too sacred and should be too jealously guarded to have it abused and used to private ends by a favored few, as it is now and always has been under the national banking laws which afflict and plunder our people. By means of this power they manage to absolutely control and regulate the volume of money in circulation; and they are governed, in their regulation of it, not by the needs and requirements of the people at large, but solely by the advantages to themselves as a class or a flush money-volume. It happens that the money-owners and the banks always want the supply of money small, so that the demand for money will be correspondingly large and the rates of interest chargeable for its use remunerative, while the people always want just the reverse; so that under the present system (which gives the regulation and control of the whole money volume into the hands of those who want a scant volume in circulation all the time) our government falls far short of that pet phrase which we all love to quote: "A government of the people, for the people, by the people." It more nearly approaches a government for favorites—the corporations for the corporations. Hence, we have the anomaly of the national bank redemption agency of the government at Washington rushed beyond almost anything known in history at a time when its volume of work would seem to be reduced to the minimum; for there is so much need for money in the country at this time to carry on the war as well as its commercial business that it would seem that no bank would want to curtail its circulation or retire any of its currency. Perhaps that would be the case were not nearly $200,000,000 of money coming out of its hiding place to seek investment in government 3 per cent. bonds. Seeing, therefore, that this coming out of the stocking money would have the effect of swelling the circulating medium for a time, the banks (true to their ancient tradition of looking out for number one) are breaking their necks, almost and falling over each other in an almost unprecedented effort to retire enough of the present circulation to offset this $200,000,000 which is flooding the country from the chests, stockings, belts and other quaint and curious hiding places in which the saving poor have hidden it.

A Wonderful Discovery. The last quarter of a century records many wonderful discoveries in medicine, but none that have accomplished more for humanity than that sterling old household remedy, Brown's Iron Bitters. It seems to contain the very essence of good health, and neither man, woman or child can take it without deriving the greatest benefit. Brown's Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

The Deed is Done. "Our capture of Santiago after a siege of two weeks will be set down upon military records as an achievement of extraordinary brilliancy. General Shafter, who commanded during the operations, is probably not a particularly able man, and his selection for such a distinguished duty doubtless produced no little surprise among his colleagues of the army. Criticism upon his leadership have been many and ugly. But they came as a rule from observers unfortified by knowledge, and not in the business of journalism for the health of the nation and now they are forgotten. The deed is done, and the victory is great. Two things, of course, reduced the Spaniards the state of moral hopelessness that precedes surrender. The first was the irresistible bravery shown by the American army in their first assault upon the city on July 2. The other was the crushing display of the same qualities by the American navy when Cervera's ships fled from the harbor.

"All honor and glory to the soldiers and sailors, of all ranks, to the generals and admirals, gunners and riflemen, and all grades intermediate, for the capture of Santiago and Cervera!" "Again we say. Have mercy, Spain! Spare your men from further useless sacrifice, and sue for peace! Surrender Havana on the terms of Santiago!"—The New York Sun.
