GOVERNOR ELLERBE DEAD.

The hand of death was laid upon South Carolina's chief executive last Friday night at his home in Marion county.

Governor Ellerbe had been sick a long time and his friends throughout the State were prepared for the end. It was the writer's privilege to have had an intimate acquaintance with him, and those who enjoyed a similar privilege knew him and loved him.

Governor Ellerbe had the interests of the State at heart and his whole soul was thrown into his duties. He never took a position without consideration, and once his mind was made up he was as immovable as a rock.

During his entire public career he displayed independence and, having the courage of his convictions, he acted according to the dictates of his conscience and judgment; by doing so he was often misunderstood but more often misconstrued. Not since South Carolina became a State was there an Executive who occupied such an embarrassing position. The State had gone through a heated political revolution, followed by a sensational and exciting administration, during which there were riots and bloodshed, and which made the sore out of the revolution of 1890 gape open wider and cause the irritation to become more intense. The people were divided, households were torn asunder and brothers were enemies. This state of affairs existed until the people realized that something must be done to allay the feeling and bring about peace. William H. Ellerbe of Marion was called forward and commissioned for the task. No sooner had he commenced his work of pacification than up went the howl from the politicians of both factions; the extreme Conservatives felt that the branch of peace had upon it an office for each one of their faction, and the extreme Reformers felt that the Governor was too liberal towards those who were classed as political enemies; the Reformers claimed, "to the victors belong the spoils," and the Conservatives claimed that the minority had a right to recognition and a division of the offices. Governor Ellerbe paid no heed to either side, and made his appointments in accordance with his oath of office—to be Governor of the whole people. His first term was a success as far as it went, but it did not finish the work laid out by his policy, and notwithstanding the opposition of the bulk of the politicians, and a faction that had sprung into existence which purported to have for its motive a moral principle, and this faction receiving the aid of another element opposed to the "moral principle" movement and to Governor Ellerbe, he was re-elected. The saying, "uneasy is the head that wears a crown" was true in Governor Ellerbe's case; to add to his burden, came along the visitations of Providence and removed by death quite a number of office-holders; this necessitated the use of his appointing power and wherever a vacancy occurred, applications were many and each applicant was warmly endorsed. The appointment would be made, and where he made one man happy—the one receiving the commission—the disappointed applicants enlisted in the ranks of the enemy. It was the same way when the Spanish-American war broke out; the aspirants for shoulder straps were to be counted by the score, and as they would lose the coveted prize, over the line they stepped to ally themselves with the other clamoring discontents. We say his entire gubernatorial career was beset with embarrassing obstacles, but he bravely faced them all and acted without regard to consequences, other than the approval of his Maker, for whom he had a devout regard and whose approbation he earnestly sought.

Governor Ellerbe was an honest man, and if at any time during his career he made a mistake it was an error of judgment and not made purposely or with crafty intent. He was misrepresented by his political opponents, for political effect, but those who knew him were not shaken in their confidence in him, and when the prejudices brought about by political disappointment are brushed aside, as they are bound to be, even his enemies will accord to his memory that which is due. The historian will say, that William Hazelden Ellerbe was a fearless and honest ruler, and in his death South Carolina lost a son for whom she does not blush for having honored. Peace to his ashes.

GOVERNOR MCSWEENEY.

South Carolina has now for its chief executive Miles Benjamin McSweeney of Hampton county, originally of Charleston, where he was born and learned the printer's trade.

Governor McSweeney is no accident, although he fills the unexpired term of the lamented Ellerbe. He was twice elected by the people of South Carolina to the second highest office in the State, and his second election was without opposition, so well and faithfully had he carried out the trust reposed in him. The people of the State, when they re-elected Governor Ellerbe knew that his health was bad, and there was a strong probability he would not live out his term; knowing this condition, it is fair for us to presume that endorsing McSweeney's administration and placing him second in command, under the circumstances was virtually an expression of choice for Governor by the people, and the honor is as great as if he had been elected to the position directly.

It is hardly necessary for us to go into McSweeney's life to acquaint the people of him, because we have only recently given a sketch of the man, and the fact that he has so often been honored by his profession, the people of his home and, the people of the State, is sufficient evidence that in him the people have a man competent and with the other requisites to make a good Governor.

We know Governor McSweeney; no one can come in contact with him without discovering in the man an individuality which attracts to admiration. He is open and sincere, frank and determined, kind-hearted and sensible. He is scrupulously careful in business matters, and will not mix sentiment with his business affairs; socially he is of lovable disposition and of free hearted generosity. McSweeney is a fine judge of human nature and is able to distinguish the genuine from the pretended friendships. Experience is his alma mater and from it he has gained a knowledge of human kind which makes him peculiarly fitted to grasp the helm of the ship of State, and guide her safely on.

Governor McSweeney has been the architect of his own fortune, and as he did not permit his ear to become soothed by the tempter in his private affairs, so will he not be allured from the paths of rectitude and duty, now that he has assumed the grave responsibility of governor of the State. There is no man who is cognizant of his position and realizes its gravity more than the present Chief Executive, at the same time the State of South Carolina, never had a governor who entered upon the discharge of his duties with a stronger determination to prove by his works, a life of honest toil with an ambition to win an honorable mention on the pages of the State's history can be attained, even if the ambitious one, can not produce a long line of distinguished ancestry, yet, even if his career began as a newsboy, at the printers' case or in the plow field.

We want the youth of the State to study the career of Governor McSweeney and profit by the possibilities he has heven out for them, and we want the people to keep an eye on his administration, and it is our opinion, based upon a full knowledge of his past, together with an intimate personal acquaintance, and friendship of many years that his administration will meet the approval of those who have the interests of the State at heart, and when this term shall have ended he will not have to bend the knee to scheming politicians, to ask them for re-election, but there will come from the people such a demand for his endorsement, that the voice will sound from one end of the State to the other, and no politician will have the temerity to oppose him with any hope of success.

We have every confidence in the success of Governor McSweeney's administration, because if ability, honesty, and determination can bring about such a result, then success is an assured fact.

Anna Gould, a daughter of Jay Gould, whose father was a mouse-trap peddler, bought a titled French man a few years ago, and she is now playing the role of a French aristocrat in Paris. Last Sunday at the races she led a mob of profligate men and women to insult Loubet the president, because of his part in the Dreyfus affair. Her conduct was a disgrace to her sex and we have no doubt her riotous living in the French capital is a stench in the nostrils of decent American women, at any rate the washerwomen in America, display a better grade of morals and dignity than does the countess whose gold only made her a French aristocrat. Creatures like Anna Gould would not be permitted to associate with decent American factory women, but in France her gold outshines her morals.

Governor Ellerbe was an honest man, and if at any time during his career he made a mistake it was an error of judgment and not made purposely or with crafty intent. He was misrepresented by his political opponents, for political effect, but those who knew him were not shaken in their confidence in him, and when the prejudices brought about by political

The Cubans have become Americanized in one respect at least, they recently lynched a man who was at one time regarded an agent of General Weyler. They charged him with having outraged defenseless women and killed children.

The address of Governor McSweeney given to the press as his first official utterance, is short and sound, and bears the stamp of a man who does not intend to indulge in glittering promises, but that he proposes to make his works build the record. The people may expect a solid business administration.

Uncle Sam still finds need of American troops to civilize the conquered savages in the Philippines. A detachment of 5th, inst says that two battalions were landed covered by a well directed fire from two gun boats. Of course when these battalions landed the savages fled to the hills, at the same time they fired upon the American forces with effect at a range of 3,500 yards. We presume that Uncle Sam's blue coats came out of the fight with much glory although the dispatch does not so say.

Governor McSweeney has selected Major E. H. Aull of Newberry as his private secretary, and while we would have been glad to have seen Col. W. B. Evans continued, yet we recognize in the selection of a private secretary the Governor had to have a close personal friend, one in whom he must confide many things that he would not care to confide with a man who is but an acquaintance. Major Aull is an excellent gentleman, a man of letters and specially suited for the place, and those who will have business in the executive office can feel assured of the most careful, accurate and polite attention. Major Aull is a lawyer by profession, a journalist from choice, and a first class and successful business man; his acceptance of the position was influenced largely by his personal devotion to his friend, the Governor. A better choice could not have been made, and we congratulate both the Governor and his secretary.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Summerton Notes. Editor THE TIMES: A large audience spent a very pleasant evening at the closing exercises of the Cross Road Academy last Thursday evening. The children showed the careful training of their teacher, Miss Luta Fowell. She has untiringly devoted her time and talents to her scholars for two years. We regret to see her leave, but hope to see her charming and cheerful face again at the opening of the next term as teachers of Cross Road Academy.

The following program was rendered: Prayer. Song—School. Music. "The School Entertainment"—Louise, Alethea and May Davis, Charlie and Triphosa Cobia, Lucile Brunson, Julian Dingle, Willie Carrigan, Cecil Carrigan, Thornwell Billups, Jefferson Davis and Willie Bruer.

"Miriam's Wish"—May Davis, Cecil Carrigan, Jeff Davis, Triphosa Cobia and Alethea Davis. "Keeping House"—Julian Dingle, Willie Carrigan, Cecil Carrigan, Thornwell Billups, Jeff Davis, Esler Brunson, Willie Bruer and Miss Maggie Billups. "Mother Goose Comedy"—Louise Davis, Alethea Davis, Thornwell Billups and Cleveland Carrigan. "Uncle Dick's Mistake"—Misses Helen and Stella Benbow, Felix and Treadwell Dingle and Jeff Davis. "Actions Speak Louder Than Words"—Louise and Alethea Davis, Julian Dingle, Willie Carrigan and Felix Dingle. "Army and Navy"—Treadwell Dingle, Cleveland Carrigan, Misses Stella Benbow and Maggie Billups and School. Song—School. We regret not having Rev. J. H. Wilson, who expected to address the school. The medal was awarded to Miss Alethea Davis for excellence. Dr. Tom Davis of Davis Station delivered the medal to Miss Davis with a few remarks. Music was rendered by the Summerton and Panola String Band. Miss Pearl Fowell of Rock Hill is visiting her sister at the home of Mr. Selwyn Dingle. They will leave Friday for Columbia to attend the commencement of the Columbia Female College.

We are glad to see Dr. W. R. Wood home and able to attend to the wants of those needing one in his profession. Mr. O. C. Scarborough's house is near completion. Miss Mabel Canteley has returned home from Charleston from a visit to relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn of Darlington are visiting her mother and father, Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Briggs of Summerton. Mrs. and Miss Smythe of Charleston are visiting at the home of Maj. R. R. Briggs. The boys of this place are organizing a baseball team. Look out, Manning team. Miss Ida Briggs of Silver has returned home from a visit to Mrs. A. J. Briggs. Mr. and Mrs. Eason of Charleston spent a few weeks in town. An election for mayor and wardens for the town of Summerton will be held on June the 17th. We hope a large vote will be polled. W.

A Woman's Letter. Coolidge, Ky., Aug. 30, 1898. New Spinger Medicine Co.: Since writing you in July, I have continued to use Benedict's and am surprised at the results. Before using the remedy I suffered from womb troubles and a weak stomach, but the three bottles of Benedict's has completely cured me. It is a great medicine for delicate women. Mrs. H. R. GIBBERT. Sold by R. B. Loryea.

A Remarkable Case. Antioch, Miss., July 1, 1898. I want to thank you for the great benefit I have received from your wonderful remedy, Benedict's. I was induced to try a bottle, and it benefited me so much I used another and I am now entirely well. There is certainly no medicine like it and I can recommend it to all women. Mrs. BETTIE LANGSTON. Sold by R. B. Loryea.

Editor THE TIMES: Once more I will attempt to scribe a few lines from this place to the readers of the dear old MANNING TIMES, though news is very scarce just at this season. If everybody were like they would like to hear the news from every section of this county and would like to read THE TIMES. I look forward every week for THE MANNING TIMES because it is published in the dear old county of Clarendon where I was born and reared, and love so dearly, and I believe that every true boy in this county, that is of Clarendon, loves it so well that he makes it his home. I think that every boy should apply himself to the usefulness of the county where he is born in and be useful. Well, Mr. Editor, death is still in the land. The death of Governor Ellerbe is regretted at this place. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family. Old "Uncle" William Buddin was laid to rest in New Zion cemetery on Sunday, the 4th of June at 5 p. m. Rev. W. E. Wiggins has moved in the new parsonage at Pine Grove. Mr. J. H. EXPOSURE to WET & COLD. HAS proven disastrous to many women. Wet feet and damp clothing chill the entire system and the delicate female organs are at once affected. Painful, Profuse, Suppressed or Obstructed Menstruation, Falling of the Womb, or some other health-destroying disease is almost certain to follow such exposure unless proper precautions are taken. When any of these diseases appear women should begin the use of GERSTLE'S Female Panacea. It will regulate the menses, cure all forms of female disease, and give health and strength. It is used in the privacy of the home. No consultations. No humiliating examinations. If there is any tendency to constipation or indigestion take mild doses of St. Joseph's Liver Regulator.
