A business man who has "an eye to the main chance," always makes a good display of his wares, and by scanning over the columns of THE TIMES our readers will ascertain who it is that wants to cater to the cash trade, and who can offer inducements to draw the trade.

The editor will celebrate his 43rd birthday to-morrow by gnawing on the rib of a Cincinnati turkey, direct from the cellar of the Manning Grocery Co. He feels in luck to have the rib, something few editors are so fortunate to have, and the Grocery Company has not complained of losing anything either.

The town council has issued an order authorizing the police to shoot down any dog found running at large unuzzled. This precautionary measure was considered necessary in view of the large number of rabid dogs now doing so much damage, and bringing so much distress all over the county.

Mr. J. H. Williams, the depot agent at this place, has bought a beautiful pony, and will deliver express packages from the depot for the convenience of the people of the town. This town is large enough for an express and the business part of the town, and would be, if our business men would interest themselves.

We have on the road and arriving a large stock of envelopes, paper, card board, wedding stationary and other material to supply the demand for first-class job work. Our job type is of the most modern make, and we will permit a job to leave our office unless it is done in a first-class manner. In having job work done, the quality of the material and the workmanship is of great importance. A word to the wise is sufficient.

There has been in the past a quantity of mail matter sent to the train in the house, and it was the cause of affecting the income of the Manning post office; but we are now glad to announce that an arrangement has been made which went into effect on the 15th inst., that will give the postmaster credit for the cancellations of all letters mailed on the trains at this depot. This we have doubt, will be refreshing news to a few gnats that have been lighting on the ox's horn.

The ladies responded well to Kendall's 'opening,' and they were certainly well pleased with the Millinery exhibit. This department was without a doubt, a bazaar of loveliness, and the ladies in charge, Miss Edith M. Miss Edith entertained their visitors charmingly. If the men who will have to go down deep into their jeans to gratify the wants of the ladies of their households, do not invent maledictions on the head of Mr. Kendall for bringing such seductive prices, then we will come to the conclusion that Kendall has 'moved a spell' on the women, and has the men hoodwinked.

Remarkable Cures of Rheumatism. (From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N. C.) The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts affected and being instantly benefited. Second, in rheumatism in this joint, almost paralyzing him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night, and setting up free from pain. For sale by R. B. Loryea drug store, Isaac M. Loryea, Prop.

One of the shrewdest tricks that can be worked on an unsuspecting man, is to get him to help make a large stock company, in order to raise money to pay out another man who is clamoring for the money he advanced and is about to lose. We have heard of a racket like this going on not far from us. It makes us smile then we see how some people are hoodwinked. Before a man puts his money into a company of any kind he should first have confidence in the business ability of those who are to manage it; then he should calculate cost and expenses and the net income. The man who is induced to put up his money without looking into the matter carefully deserves being hoodwinked in order that those now suffering from the bite may be relieved for others to be bitten.

New Town Council. The term for which the present town council has been elected, will expire soon, and an election will take place next month. As far as we are concerned, the present membership of the council suits us, they have done good work, and have gotten the town out of debt and put the treasury in a wholesome condition. We understand, however, that some of the present members will not stand for re-election, and of course, others will have to be selected in their places. It is important that live, progressive men be placed on the council, men who have made a study of the town's welfare, and men who are able to spare the time to devote some attention to the town's de- velopment. We have no personal candidates to suggest, and will be perfectly satisfied with the choice of the people, but we do think, in order to get the best, we should call a public meeting and ask the citizens to nominate a ticket. If this is done no one could complain and charge favoritism. In selecting men to serve on the council, we think a man should be selected who has a financial, as well as a moral standing, because those who have a financial standing are naturally more interested in the progress of the town than those who do not furnish anything in the nature of a salary. As said before, we have no personal choice, but in order to put the voters to thinking we will take the liberty, without authority, to suggest the following ticket: W. E. Brown; W. C. Davis; E. L. Wilkins; F. P. Ervin. These gentlemen would represent the various interests, and they are all men of sound business judgment, as well as progressive in their ideas. A council composed thusly, would be economical, and at the same time they would seek to put in the improvements necessary, and incident to a growing town. There is not a man whose name we have mentioned, who has not the liberty to use, that cannot spare the necessary time from his business to attend council meetings and give such aid as is important for the Intendant to make his administration a success. Manning has a number of men who would make excellent wardens, some of whom are on the council now, but they are so situated, as to be unable to give much of their attention to the town; some of them have business which takes them away frequently, and perhaps at times when they are most needed. If the present council were to stand for re-election we would give them our vote as an endorsement of the good record made, but we learn that some of them will not permit the use of their names, and hence, we have mentioned the names already mentioned for consideration, with the understanding that it is an individual taxpayer's suggestion.

Charleston Drummers Fight. Two drummers for Charleston houses, Mr. Julius Levy, who represents I. M. Pearlstein & Son, and Mr. Sam Oppenheimer, who represents Fincken Jordan & Co., met at the Carrigan Bros.' store, near St. Paul, on last Thursday, and had an altercation, in which Levy was shot by Oppenheimer. The cause of the trouble, as we hear it, was about the sale of certain goods to Carrigan Bros. by the one, and the cutting in the price after the order was given by the other. This caused Levy to come from Oppenheimer, which was resented by Levy. The wounded man went to Charleston that night, and while he is painfully wounded, no serious results are looked for. We see from the News and Courier that on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Levy, the wife of the wounded man, Oppenheimer was arrested in Charleston, placed under bond for $1,000, and a preliminary examination was to be held on Monday before Magistrate Moore. We do not see how a Charleston Magistrate could have anything to do with the case, as the crime was committed beyond his jurisdiction. It seems to us that Oppenheimer would have to be brought to this county to be tried and bound over to the court of General Sessions on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill, and carrying a concealed weapon. The wounded man is regarded by his acquaintances as a gentle man, one who attended strictly to his business, and who is courteous to those with whom he comes in contact. He is a man of exceedingly temperate habits, and his getting into a personal combat was not expected. It is the general hope, that he will soon be up and able to be on the road again soon.

The following was taken from yesterday's News and Courier: Mr. Sam Oppenheimer was given a preliminary hearing yesterday before Magistrate Moore. The only evidence brought out was affidavit sworn out by a hack driver named McLeod before Magistrate Dickson of the county where the shooting took place. The man says that he drove Mr. Levy to the store of Carrigan Bros., just outside Summerton. Mr. Oppenheimer was in the store, but came out and got in his buggy when Mr. Levy got out of his. Mr. Levy went into the store and when he came out told Mr. Oppenheimer to get on with him, and they had a fight, as he (Levy) was tired of being talked about. Witness was not able to say who struck the first blow. The men were soon separated and Mr. Oppenheimer stepped behind a fence. As Mr. Levy turned he was shot in the stomach. Oppenheimer offered Levy his hand to help him in the buggy, saying, "Go away! I don't want you to help me." Mr. George Von Kolnitz, counsel for the defence, claimed that the Constitution gave a man the right to be confronted by his accusers in order that he might cross-examine them. He objected to the affidavit on this ground. Magistrate Moore held that it was not a trial regulated by the technical rules of evidence, but only a preliminary hearing to find probable cause. The affidavit would, therefore, be accepted as evidence. "The presence of the defendant," said Mr. Moore, "would not warrant a denial of bond, which would be given if I had the power to admit him to bail." Owing to the fact that the offence was committed in another county the case would have to be referred to the magistrate there and all that a magistrate here could do would be to hold the defendant under the warrant for a requisition from that county. Under this holding the defendant was immediately committed. Mr. Von Kolnitz immediately set about to swear out a writ of habeas corpus, and in the meantime the defendant was kept in the custody of an officer. Judge Gary last night ordered Mr. Oppenheimer released on a bond of $2,000.

A Good Cough Remedy for Children. "I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a doctor, and I have since given it to many children, and it has cured every case of pneumonia, grippe and throat and lung diseases. It will prevent colds, croup, and all other ailments." D. O. Rhame, Summerton; Dr. W. M. Brockington, Manning.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought. Major Richardson Explains. Editor The Manning Times: I notice in the last issue of THE TIMES that certain individuals complain of my withdrawing my tobacco bill introduced during the last session of the Legislature, and wish some explanation about the matter. That these are some who did not read my card on this very subject, just after I determined to withdraw the bill. I hold that the people have a right at all times to criticize the work of their delegation, and although the reasons stated through the columns of THE TIMES, I can't remember the issue, were more complete than I can produce now, still I take pleasure in again giving my motives for the step I took.

The bill was introduced in deference to the interests of the tobacco growers of this county and State, and was intended to bring about a proper adjustment of the schedule of prices charged by tobacco warehousemen in handling leaf tobacco. If these were too high, they should be lowered, and if too low, they should be raised. A system should be adopted to meet all requirements. This was an important measure, and I was sure it would be thoroughly sifted when brought up in the House and possibly by the amount of discussion pro- duced it might be better than any other conditions like this, be lost without being properly understood, or mutilated to such an extent as to impair its usefulness. I, therefore, requested the bill be referred to a special committee, composed of the tobacco growers, and the merchants representing those counties where tobacco is grown. It can easily be seen that those members would get all the information they could on the subject, and that their united verdict would be of more value, than that of a single member. The members who know nothing of tobacco, and care little, as the interests of their counties were not involved. There were eight or nine counties represented on this committee, and every man I am sure, had the good of the people at heart.

I was chairman of the committee, and Dr. Woods was the other committee man from this county; but unfortunately the Doctor was prevented from being present, as he was away at home at the time. The subject was carefully considered from every point of view, and it must be borne in mind, that this was done by a committee, all of whom were specially interested in the matter under discussion, where all friction from heated arguments was avoided, and a calm conclusion was arrived at. Of course this committee had to render in a report on this bill, and the report must be favorable or unfavorable. I knew the verdict would be an unfavorable report, and that it would be useless for me to attempt to put a bill through the House, opposed by every single delegation in that body interested in tobacco growing.

To avoid any expense which would have been useless to have incurred on the State, and other obvious reasons, I requested the committee to withhold any action, and that I would withdraw the bill as I was satisfied it would have no chance of passing, the overwhelming majority of tobacco growers being of one mind; that the present schedule was the safest to keep in effect, for the present at least.

I will only add that as I think it my duty now, I thought it my duty then to explain to the people of the county why I withdrew the bill and did not wait a day to forward a card for that purpose, which was published in the columns of THE TIMES. Respectfully, HENRY B. RICHARDSON.
