Spartanburg, S. C., July 9, 1900. An interesting case was heard here before Judge Aldrich today. A marriage solomnized between Miss Fannie V. Littlejohn and the Rev. Stephen A. Nettles of the South Carolina conference, on June 25, 1899, was declared to be void and never to have been of binding force. The action was brought by Miss Littlejohn, who alleged that at the time of such marriage her mind was so much impaired by reason of a serious physical ailment that she was incapable of understanding or of carrying out the marriage contract. Almost immediately after the mar riage she was placed under the treatment of a specialist in surgery and diseases peculiar to women, and as a result of his treatment her mind has been restored, and she alleges that since regaining possession of her faculties she does not wish to ratify or consummate the marriage.

The testimony was in accordance with the allegations and while Miss Little-john testified that Mr. Nettles' treat-mary.
