Since the secret has leaked out that gold and diamonds were discovered on property on the upper end of church street, property has advanced in price in that section, and the effect is spreading all over town to such an extent that able but the rich and well-to-do will be able to buy a plot of ground to put up a shack. It has a checking influence to the growth of any town when millionaires pit themselves against each other for the purchase of a piece of ground. One has discovered gold and other diamonds, and each does not believe the other knows it.

The ice problem is a stunner. The dealers here say that the factories have formed a trust and have run up the price over 125 per cent. If the people encourage this sort of robbery by buying ice, they deserve to be mulct by them. Ice is a luxury, and not a necessity except in cases of illness, and if the people will forego indulging in this luxury for a few weeks the ice men will be only too glad to relinquish their hold. Let every body who is opposed to being fleeced by a band of mercenary financial tacticians refuse to buy ice at the exorbitant advanced price.

We hope the Railroad Commission will recognize the petition of the people and the Central railroad that have asked for a double daily passenger service. The petition was sent quite a while ago and nothing has been heard of it. This service is sadly needed and four business men should, we believe the commission will give them the consideration that conditions here warrant. Petitions court for little; what is effective is a proposition put in a business way. The merchants should hold a meeting, adopt resolutions setting forth the conditions and then send some competent person to properly represent them before the authorities.

We are requested for Mr. J. D. Gerald to state that he has not accepted a position to travel regularly, but as an accommodation to his former employers he made a special trip at their urgent request. He is to be found managing the business of C. M. Davis & Co., of which firm he is a member, and by his enterprising efforts he has brought to Manning a first class clothing and shoe store. There was a time when it was almost impossible to get a nice article of clothing or shoes in this town, but that time is now in the past, for at C. M. Davis & Co.'s store a man can be fitted out in the latest styles with the very article of apparel and a lady or child can get as nice a shoe as can be bought in the State. Gerald is attending to his own business, strictly, and he extends a hearty welcome to the public to visit him at his store.

Does the Baby Thrive? If not, something must be wrong with its food. If the mother's milk doesn't nourish it, she needs SCOTT'S EMULSION. It supplies the elements of fat required for the baby. If baby is not nourished by its artificial food, then it requires Scott's Emulsion. Half a teaspoonful three or four times a day in its bottle will have the desired effect. It seems to have a magical effect upon babies and children. A fifty-cent bottle will prove the truth of our statements. Should be taken in summer as well as winter.

Public Debate by the Thackston's. Those who enjoy a good entertainment were given a treat on Monday night in the spacious auditorium of the Moses Levi Memorial Institute. It was the mid-spring public entertainment of the Thackston Literary Society, made up of members from the higher classes of the Institute and headed in honor of Prof. Thackston on account of his interest, efficiency and popularity. A large audience was present, because knowing the young folks who were to furnish the program, it was safe to expect a fine entertainment. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. W. H. Mills, and Dr. Dantzer Bradham presided. Miss Ella Ridgeway acted and Mr. Samuel Cole filled the secretary's place.

The first recitation was by Miss Harriet Harvin, who gave a splendid rendition of "Kit Carson's Wife." Master Guery Stukes read for the great amusement of the audience a sketch on "The Bald-Headed Man." An essay on "Queen Victoria," by Miss Ethel Howle was gracefully read and showed splendid preparation. A speech of his own production on "Our Nation and its Progress" by Master B. Pressley Barron was delivered with much ease and grace and exhibited many marks of the born orator.

The debate, on the query, "Resolved, That Cuba Should Now Have Her Freedom," was the subject of much interest, because it involved a contest among the speakers of the young contestants, and in fact it would indeed be hard to do. The affirmative side of the question was admirably represented by Miss Pet Wilson and Mr. Milton Weibrey, while Miss Sarah Harvin and Mr. John Bredin on the negative equally as well combined every point and advanced some fine argument why Cuba should not yet be turned loose to take her chance in the big family of nations of the world.

The judges were Capt. W. C. Davis, Dr. J. F. Geiger and Mr. W. C. Durant, who were requested to make their decision strictly upon the argument and merits of the debate. Captain Lewis announced the decision for the committee and beautifully alluded to the many recollections of his own while in Cuba that the debate had called to mind, and after holding the audience in suspense for a while, he announced that the committee was not unanimous, yet a majority had decided "according to the law and the evidence," or rather the argument, that the fair Queen of the Antilles should not be freed.

S. I. TILL. We do not let anyone give you as much goods for your money as you get here. There is nothing the matter with the goods, but makers feared something might happen to them and they wanted the money, and we bought them and that explains the whole thing. Why, we are selling so cheap and it is likely you will find these same goods at other places for twice what we ask for them. Everything we sell is at a bargain. When goods are bought at the bottom notch price and those who work for me are paid a fair price for their labor, and if there is left a small profit of 10 per cent for me I am satisfied. Who are the people that trade with me? They are the ones that know the value of goods and the value of a dollar. We are getting new customers every day and if we are not saving them a few cents they would not trade with us. We will give you some warm prices next week. Yours for cut prices.

OLD RELIABLE, S. A. RIGBY.

MODESTY AND PRUDENCE. Prevent us from making the glaring statement that we sell everything in our store cheaper than our competitors. Such statements would be very apt to shake the confidence of our intelligent patrons; but there is one thing that we do say with all candor and without fear of successful contradiction, that we carry ONE of the largest and best selected stocks of Dry Goods of any house in this part of the State and we defy any first class dry goods house who deals in the same class of goods as we do to name closer prices than we are quoting. We court comparisons and specially invite the public to call and look at our goods and get our prices and compare them with other houses and see if we are not able to support the above statement. As we have said before, that we are not prepared to say that we sell everything cheaper than our competitors, but we do feel justified in saying that we own many lines of goods that we are selling cheaper than our competitors can sell you the same goods, for while in the market we picked up lots of goods below the market value and we are selling these goods in proportion to the low prices at which we got them. Take, for instance, we picked up while in New York two cases (5,000 yards) of yard-wide Percales that we are selling at 5c per yard. These goods are all full pieces and perfect goods. Now we know our competitors are not selling these goods at these prices, for we know they can't get them, for the same goods are quoted on the wholesale market today at 6c per yard. Take again, for instance, we are selling a nice fast colored Shirting Print at 8c that is sold everywhere at 5c per yard, but we picked these goods up at a bargain and we let them go the same way. Take again, we picked up a lot of fine White Persian Lawns that we are selling at 15c per yard that are sold everywhere at 25c per yard. And again, we picked up four boxes of Imported White Organdies that we are selling at 25c per yard; the same goods are sold elsewhere at 35c per yard. And again, we picked up a line of Drummers' Sample Hats, in Felt and Straw, at 50 per cent under value and we are letting these Sample Hats go at proportionate values. And again we picked up a large lot of All-Wool Flannel Suits, Coat and Pants that we are selling at $3.50 per Suit that you cannot buy elsewhere for less than $5, and a look at these goods will convince you of this fact. And again we picked up a lot of 100 dozen Ladies' Gauze Undervests that we are selling at 5, 8 and 10c each in round dozens at 50, 75c and $1 per dozen. Now we feel very confident that you cannot find such values as these anywhere else in town, and when you see these Vests you will bear us out in this statement. There are many other things in our large stock that we picked up under value and are able and selling cheaper than our competitors can sell them, while prudence and modesty tell us that there are many, many things in our store that you can buy just as cheap elsewhere.

"Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's." For eighteen years we have served the people of Clarendon County in the capacity of salesman, and for the last seven years as proprietor of my own establishment and during all these long years of service it has ever been our ambition to merit the confidence of the public, to "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's" and unto every man his just dues. We feel that we have met with success in sharing the confidence of the public, for The Jenkinson Dry Goods Store is known in every household in Clarendon County as a reliable house and a house that deals in reliable goods. And The Jenkinson Dry Goods Store is also known to be a standard price-maker, for it has come to our ears that some of our worthy contemporaries have used our name across their counters, saying that The Jenkinson Dry Goods Store asks so and so for such and such goods. Thank you, my kind friends, for such a high compliment and for thus thinking of and advertising us, when we did not expect such a high compliment.
