It is true that this system of supplying ancestors has its disadvantages. Contretemps such as the one revealed at the beginning of this article are bound to occur. The hawklike eye of a connoisseur, trained to recognize instantly the value, authenticity and history of antiques, often pierces the deception and remembers seeing the "treasured family heirlooms" somewhere else. But in the main people are gullible, and the wealthy but plebeian aspirant for social honors vaunts the blueness of his blood and points with pride to his hired heirlooms withdigestants and digests all kinds of but much danger of discovery.

> Bright Pupils. A young woman teacher in one of the grammar schools in Brooklyn was speaking of her work the other day. She said that unless a person had some experience in teaching he could scarcely understand how marvelously stupid some children were and what peculiar mistakes ordinarily bright children sometimes make. To illustrate her point she told three stories from her own personal experiences. One day, on a language examination, the following was one of the topics: "Name three kinds of sentences and give examples." This is the way one of the children met the problem. He wrote: "Declarative, interrogative, imperative. 2+2=4. 9×2=18. 13-6=7." On another day one of the questions in a grammar examination read: "I cannot see it ---.' Complete this sentence by using the words plain or plainly. Give your reason."

One bright youth wrote this answer: "I cannot see it plain.' Reason: Because it is too far away." Another scholar answered the question as to why the Dutch settled on the Hudson river by saying, "So they could have a place to wash."-New York Tribune.

Leaves of trees were used for writing purposes yery early by the Egyptians and probably by the Greeks. The Hindoos continued the use of this material until within a few centuries. Even at the present time books of leaves are not uncommon in the south of India and the island of Ceylon. The leaves of some Asiatic trees, from their size and smoothness, are admirably adapted for books. If we may judge from the name sentiment that the curio dealer has "leaf" being still applied to the paper of books, we should imagine these leaves to have been formerly the principal material in use.

The short hair on his forehead was twitching, his powerful fangs showed unpleasantly, and feeling he was about to attack and incidentally being scared green, I shot him through the heart. With a groan something human and yet brutish, he fell on his face and died quickly, like a man. He measured 5 feet 9 inches in length, his chest was 62 inches, and his arms spread 9 feet. I was glad to have the specimen, but somehow after that never cared to kill a gorilla unless he actually menaced me."

NOTHING WAS LOST. An Omission In a Wedding Ceremon

That Didn't Count. A distinguished officer of the United States navy once told this story on himself:

At the time of his marriage he had been through the civil war and had had many harrowing experiences aboard ship, through all of which he kept courage and remained as calm as a brave man should. As the time for the ceremony came on, however, his calmness gradually gave way. At the altar, amid the blaze of brass buttons and gold lace marking the full naval wedding, the officer was all but stampeded and what went on there seemed very much mixed to him. Fearing the excitement gentleman, backed out of the room and of the moment would temporarily take him off his feet, the officer had learned the marriage ceremony letter perfect, as he thought, and he remembered repeating the words after the minister in a mechanical sort of way.

After the ceremony was over and all was serene again, including the officer's state of mind, the kindly clergyman came up to him and touched him on the shoulder. Look here, old man, didn't endow your wife with any worldly goods." "What's that?" asked the bridegroom, with something of astonishment in his voice. "Why, I repeated the sentence 'With all my worldly goods I thee endow' several times and despite my efforts you would not say it after me." The bridegroom seemed perturbed for a moment, and then a beaming light came into his face. "Never mind, sir," he said. "She didn't lose a blessed thing by my failure."-Washington Star.

OLD PEOPLE

Do not always receive the sympathy and attention which

Their ailments are regarded as purely their time of imaginary, or natural and unavoidable at their time of life. Disease and infirmity should not always be associated with old age. The eye of the gray haired grandsire may be as bright and the complexion as fair as any of his younger and more vigorous companions. Good Blood is the secret of healthy old age, for it regulates and controls every part of the body, strengthens the nerves, makes the muscles elastic and supple, the bones strong and the flesh firm; but when this life fluid is polluted or poisoned and loses its nutritive, health sustaining elements, then there is a rapid decline of the vital powers, resulting in premature old age and disease. Any derangement of the blood quickly shows itself in an ulcer, sore, wart, tumor or some other troublesome growth upon the body, and rheumatic and neuralgic pains become almost constant, accompanied with poor digestion and cold extremities. S. S. S. being purely vegetable, is the safest and best blood purifier for old people. It does not shock or hurt the system like the strong mineral remedies, but gently and thoroughly cleanses the blood and stimulates the debilitated organs, when all bodily ailments disappear. S. S. S. is just such a tonic as old people need to improve a weak digestion and tone up the Stomach. If there is any hereditary taint, or the remains of some disease contracted in early life, S. S.
