Than allow the deep cankering fett Of revenge in your breast to abide For your step o'er life's path will be lighter When the load from your boson is the glorious sky will seem And brighter. When the cloud of displeasure has passed.

Though your spirit swell high with the young girl to become his wife? emotion

To live back injustice again, Sink the thought in oblivion's ocean For remembrance increases the pain. Oh, why should we linger in sorrow, When its shadow is passing away Or seek to encounter, tomorrow,

Our life's stream is a varying river. And though it may placidly glide.

When the sunbeams of joy o'er it quiver. It must foam when the storm meets its tide. Then stir not its current to madness. For its wrath thou wilt ever regret: Though the morning beams break on thy sadness. Ere the sunset, forgive and forget.

The Two orphans. By D'Ennery.

CHAPTER IX.

THE BLIND GIRL'S SUFFERINGS. The garret into which La Frochard's present him to our readers. cruelty and love for gain had consigned Louise, was a place to make even the stoutest heart quail.

Imagine a low, narrow room, reek ing with ordors from decaying wood and rags, and damp from the mists ing the unhappy inmate to shiver with dread, as if struck by a blast from a charnel house.

The blind girl's sufferings were fearful. For a moment all would be quiet as the tomb, and then, startled by some unusual noise, the rats which infested the dismal place would scamper from their hiding-places causing Louise to shrink with fear from the obeyed. almost unearthly noise of which she knew not the meaning. Her imagination, vivid as it is in the blind, peopled the fearful place with terrors which were intensified by being unseen.

During the hours of the day, and yet more dreary ones of the night, poor Louise crouched close to the low roof. trembling at every new noise caused ing that she might be visited by her brutal captors; for much as she dreaded them, the sound of a human voice would be a relief to her overtaxed nerves. After what seemed to her many days, but was in reality little more than twenty-four hours, Louise heard the outrage?" sound of heavy footsteps on the stairs, and immediately after, the door was unlocked, and a man entered. The voice which she heard told her visited her and much as she feared him, she gladly welcomed his coming. Instinctively, she knew that he was gazing upon her, and before she spoke, she sunk upon her knees before him in an attitude of supplication.

-if you ever knew what it is to suffer -take me from this fearful place." The tears which rolled down her really guilty ones, the instigators of her agony; but it had no effect upon the wretch before her.

A coarse, brutal laugh was the only answer to her pleadings, and she sunk upon the floor almost lifeless. Villain as he was, Jacques saw that their victim could not survive her im-

The pallid cheeks, the deep, dark circles under the eyes, and the marks swered the clerk. of suffering that were to be read in every feature of her delicate face, told how severe had been her anguish.

"You are better fitted for your business now than you were before you die, or the thrust of a sword in a came here," said Jacques, as he exulted over the misery, and delighted in the pain he had been the means of

"Oh, take me away-take me away: I will do as you tell me!" she pleaded. Will you beg?"

"Yes-yes!" "Well, come along then," and he grasped her by the arm, which was protected only by a thin covering of coarse cotton, with a force that caused her to scream with pain.

"Devilish tender, ain't you?"

friends now?" asked the shrill tones of Mother Frochard's voice, as Louise and Jacques appeared in the doorway. "I guess she'll behave herself now." a dwaller in the supposed to be the soul of honor, should be engaged in what he supposed to be asked, with a chuckle, as he brutally "I guess she'll behave herself now, laughed Jacques, as he forced the blind girl to descend the stairs without any assistance from him.

"Oh, very well-very well- my fine lady," said the old woman, as she led Louise to a seat near the table. you have been there long enough, I suppose you'd like to have something to eat, you ungrateful hussy?" "I am very hungry, madame," tered Louise. "Well, it's a good thing," snarled the old woman, "you'll know how to appreciate what you get after this.' Jacques, seated astride of the chair, and soft. with his arms resting on the back, enjoyed the scene with evident zest, while Louise listened anxiously for Pierre's sympathizing voice. Let us leave this scene for a while, gentlemen. and follow Henriette, while she accompanies her deliverer from the beautiful, but vile garden of Bel-Air. They had reached the street before to erated no longer. It is not enough Henriette ventured to speak to the to bear a noble name, it must be borne chevalier of her gratitude for the assistance he had rendered her. Then, in a voice trembling with emotion, she thanked him for his interference, and fair should be entered in the secret arthe place where she had been robbed The distance was very great, and during the walk the Chevalier De Vaudrey learned all of the history of the beautiful girl whom he had rescued from such a fearful fate; but in rance of his chief. "The secret and reply to the probable fate of her sister. could not conscientiously lighten her heart.

"But I shall find her, shall I not, monsieur?" asked Henriette, looking up into his face with an imploring

For a moment De Vaudry thought he would tell her how little chance diately, unless some kind, honest peo- row that prayed upon his wife, who desires, at the same time, that you will conform as promptly as possible ple had taken compassion on her, and even then it would require several days. But as he looked into her beautiful eyes, and saw there the hope and to discover what he had so long vainly that was almost painful. He expect- delivery. Those charged with the longing that was mirrored in them, he | sought. could not speak those words which would plunge her into despair.

Therefore he assumed a hopeful air. which was very far from being sincere, hope to find no clew to where she has Henriette was not satisfied with the answer, but she said nothing, and in a revolted at?

moments more they had reached when she was with befassier, and h was with a heavy and sorrowful heart. Vaudrey is there, let he search until the morrow.

arding-house, where, after a brief ter for the blind orphan? Can the rey was ready to fling away all dreams Louise's sufferings for three months? the heart of a stone to pity, and yet dalous, and unbecoming a nobleman her cruel captors showed no mercy.

both the sorrowing orphans, brought failing to see it there, continued, in an The blast that o'er swept us today. the same sad story of misery and delinjured tone, as if his master's bespair, and in our next chapter present havior was a reflection upon him as a a new scene to the reader.

> CHAPTER X. THE MINISTER OF POLICE. The newly appointed minister of po-heard at the garden of Bel-Air. ice de Vaudrey.

nigh office tendered him by the king. face.

flice, and before he is well acquainted accept. They vast and complicated body over which he is the acknowledged head, that we bility, 1 as a friend would be true, and as an enemy, implacable. On this particular afternoon he has nates, and is now giving some neceswhich arose from the Seine, and penetrating every crack and crevice, caustrating every crack and crevice, caustration to the chief clerk. Sary instruction to the chief clerk. If ar as his diminutive stature would and it is also interesting to observe issue three reports; the first two will cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance to decide is cover the quantity of cotton ginned of prime importance t "I desire," said the count, "that there should be no relaxation in the severity of the police toward gambling personal dignity. dens, low drinking places, and other haunts of crime. Professional beggars. too, must be driven from the streets. "Their number increases daily," re-sive of humility and deference. "The king is desirous that a stop be rest." put to the scandals that disgraced the Linieres, speaking slowly. by the wind or waves, and even pray- upon many honest families, were of ered for. common occurrence. And apropos of that subject. I have here a report ducted in the open streets at eight | ter of police. o'clock in the evening, and there gious and dexterous enough to do any, with a piercing gaze. thing," replied the clerk, as if that were sufficient excuse for the shortplainly that it was Jacques who had comings of the detectives.

count, sternly,

"They have discovered the accomplices of the chief actor," said the er thing for a nobleman to do. clerk, trying to evade an answer to the the sly dog and I wanted to pertinent inquiry, "and him! chief's very 'If you have any pity in your heart | compelled them to confess. "Three months have elapsed since that most daring outrage, and the pale cheeks showed how intense was the crime, have not been punished, said De Linieres, with a proach at his subordinate.

"That's due, my lord, to certain circumstances," was the answer, or perhaps, we should say excuse. "What circumstances?" said the count, in evident surprise that any prisonment many hours longer; for circumstances should prevent the puneven as it was, her day of terror had ishment of a crime where the perpeeven as it was, her day of terror had ishment of a crime where the perpechanged the rosycheeked Normandy trators had been discovered. "To girl as much as would many days of whom does this chateau of Bel-Air Le-long;"

"To the Marquis de Presles," an-"De Presles!" repeated the count. "An ancient and illustrious family, whose last scion would not hesitate to stake all its glories on the cast of a drunken brawl. But the girl-after the duel, what became of her. "She was carried off-by-by the antagonist of the marqois," was the hesitating answer that aroused the count's suspicions at once, and he asked. quickly, while he eyed the clerk which he had never seen before.

"The name of the marquis's oppo- the harm in a little ruin?" asked the Republican has never had the honesty "The Chevalier Maurice de Vaudreplied the clerk, with reluct-"My nephew!" replied the old gen-

After a moment's reflection he turned to the old clerk, who was regarding his chief with a look of sorrow, and said, in a voice that was singular soft and sweet for a man. "I appreciate the sentiment that saused you to hesitate.' The clerk bowed low, and was turning away, when the count stopped "For the future, sir, remember that ustice is no respector of perosons. The chief's voice was now as harsh and commanding as it was before low

"Are you sure that it was the Chevaliar de Vaudrey?"
"Onite sure. We have a list of all who were present-both ladies and

'These gentlemen," said De Lineres, in an angry tone,"must be made to understand that such orgies will be worthily; and these ladies must choose between Salpetriere and exile.' "Do you wish, my lord, that that af- him in your presence."

thanked him for his interference, and begged him to show her the way to the place where she had been robbed "The secret archives of the police." at this moment. asked the count in great surprise that there should be anything of the kind.

'Do such records really exist?"
"Certainly, my lord," said the clerk, wondering not a little at the ignocomplete history of every noble family in France may be found there. You five minutes, the desired volume will day, and he spoke of you. be in your hands."

The count remained in deep thought | prise. for a few moments. There had been in his house, as in there was for finding a lost girl imme- and that skeleton was some secret sor-

was a De Vaudrey.

If the old clerk's words were true, then here was an opportunity for him De Vaudrey's face with an intentness desire the continuance of rural free

Here he could, without humbling stories which appeared to be so well this order into effect with firmness, mystery in his wife's life which she cerely hoped that he might be able to had so long and successfully concealed. believe them the fabrications of some But it must be done at the expense enemy.

Should be available of this information which his position entitled be Vaudrey's answer as did her hus- life some of the little three for a quart-Should be avail himself of this inhim to possess, but which his manhood At last it was decided in his mind.

He would have the volume completed. The most persistent inquiry revealed nothing relative to Louise's wherenothing relative to Louise's whereidea he would refer to:

The most persistent inquiry revealed nothing relative to Louise's whereidea he would refer to:

The most persistent inquiry revealed nothing so important as a proper extra session of congress would, there.

My dear nephew, she said, kindly.
The most persistent inquiry revealed nothing relative to Louise's whereidea he would refer to:

The most persistent inquiry revealed nothing so important as a proper extra session of congress would, thereis nothing so important as a proper for simply be a waste of money and personnel of the congress would, thereis nothing relative to Louise's whereidea he would refer to:

The most persistent inquiry revealed not be more] accustomed to the congress would, thereis nothing so important as a proper for simply be a waste of money and personnel of the congress would, thereis nothing so important as a proper for simply be a waste of money and personnel of the congress would, thereis nothing so important as a proper for simply be a waste of money and personnel of the congress would, thereis nothing so important as a proper for simply be a waste of money and personnel of the congress would, thereis nothing so important as a proper for simply be a waste of money and personnel of the congress would, thereis nothing so important as a proper for simply be a waste of money and personnel of the congress would, there are some for the congress would, the congress would are congress would and the congress would are congress would are congress.

The congress would are congress would are congress would are congress would are congress abouts. No one had seen her except idea, he would refer toit.

that history the that Henrictte was forced to reinquish completed." he said quickly, as if has youth beauty and fortune. afraid to linger near the temptation ital of Henriette's history, she was upon his mission and at the same time say but was interrupted by the chevawent out, Picard, the magnificent, Need we recount the many long and who allowed himself to be called valet ruitless searches of that faithful sis- to the Chevaller De Vaudrey, entered. "Ah, Picard, I am glad that you eader not guess that; charmed by the have come. I wish to speak to you astonishment. auty of face and mind of the beauti- about your master. How is he behav-Here was a chance for Picard which of wealth and kingly favor, and entreat he was not disposed to let slip him, and after his extravagant bows, he an-And why should we describe all of swered in his peculiar voice: "With all due respect, my lord, his They were surely such as would melt | conduct is scandalous, perfectly scan | to misrepresent and slander Mr. Bry-

of his rank. Therefore we will pass over three | Picard looked for some expression of nonths, during which each day, to surprise upon his listener's face, and

"Formerly he had a few gentlemen associates, with whom he occasionally amused himself," said Picard, slowly, "and saw life, thereby giving me some ice was the Count de Linieres, as we opportunities. Alas! it is different now. For the last three months he was the uncle, and until that has changed entirely. Indeed, oung gentleman attained his majori- lord, my life has become so monotoncannot stand it any longer.'

"Yes, my lord" exclaimed Picard, clash livery," and a look of virtuous indigna-will take you back into my service.' just dismissed several of his subordidelight, and then giving a sigh of reterests of the coal barons and giant intervals during the ginning season. way of being able to plant a goodly lief, and straightening himself up as corporations commonly called trusts:" have relieved me, and I resume my condition." added the count, and at energy. this. Picard's face lengthened wonder-These orders were delivered in the fully. "I wish you to remain for a energy?" And why would "the sentone of a man who, having weighed time with my nephew. It is impor- ate as at present constituted enact no what he is about to say, expects to be tant that I should know his movements. I could employ the police, but or conflict with the interests of the I have already learned too much from plied the clerk, with a gesture expres- them, and through you who are attached to him, I desire to know the commonly called trusts?" asks Mr.

"The rest?" echoed Picard, in amaze dministration of the police during ment. "What has he been doing?" "Night thought himself upon the verge of disthe preceding reign," continued De and now his face brightened as he brawls went unpunished, and abduc- covery of an escapade of his master's, present constituted is a Republican tions, bringing shame and disgrace which was all the faithful valet hung-

"They know that after the duel-"The duel! What duel?" interruptwhich needs an explanation. How is it ed Picard, forgetting, in his eagerness monly called trusts. An extra session possible that a young girl could be ab- to know all, the respect due the minis- of congress would, he says, simply be should be no one to oppose such an duel about a woman?" asked the tives would not dare to do anything in "There are scoundrels in Paris auda- count, while he regarded the valet "He fought a duel, and dangerously wounded his antagonist, and on account of a woman! exclaimed Picard. "Where were the police?" asked the in an eestasy of delight that his mastthe sly dog and I wanted to leave "No-no! not yet," said the count quickly, catching the last of the valet's remark, without hearing the first. "I desire that you remain with him, and discover where he hides himself.'

'Of course I will." exclaimed Picard, blood of a French nobleman. y. I'll find out this saucy little beauty for whom he neglects all his friends, and he added, in a tone of a connois-"Cir, indeed!" said the count in sur-

"Doubtless he had done everything good style," continued Picard, who his ecstasy was impervious to everythat now engrossed all his thoughts. your master," said the count, surprised at this phase of Picard's character, valet, innocently.

How much longer Picard would have continued to express his delight, and what he might not have said to furthtleman, in surprise, while an expres- er surprise the count, is a matter of sion of pain passed over his face at the Country of Living and the land of conjecture.

> the valet, as he bowed himself out, and during his walk to his master's livery service, established on and afhouse, he dog, and I thought you a saint.

As the countess entered, her husband rreeted her affectionately, and conducted her to a seat. "I was about to come to you," said the count, "but you have anticipated | fications:

me. I dsire to speak with you on the subject of your nephew, the Chevalier boxes shall be made of not less than "must incense the attorney general "Wishes to impose on him," inter- which shall be supported or strength- ability, even with the aid of congress.

Liniers. his majesty deigns to favor us."

"No: but I am expecting him every moment, and I wished to talk with As if this conversation had some in-

"Ah, Chevalier!" exclaimed the countess and myself have an important communication to make to you. De Vaudrey looked at his uncle in surpise.

"My dear Maurice." said the count, after a moment's hesitation, "the king have but to mention a name, and in did me the honor to receive me yester-"Of me?" asked De Vaudrey, in sur-

"He takes a great interest in you," should marry."

Yet there is no fear that the king's such patriots as Senator Depew.

"If the history of the house of the choice will no violence to your feelings The lady whom his majesty has chosen

"In proof of which I have only to chevatier conducted her to a any longer.

tell you that his choice is Madens-house, where, after a brief The clerk bowed low, and departed moiselle—" the count attempted to

"Do not name her," he said, excited ly. "Why not?" as ked his uncle, in "Because I refuse to marry!"

To be continued. Slandering Bryan.

There are some men and some news papers that never lose an opportunity

Bryan receives $5,000 from the State Democratic campaign fund for at Washington, without passing operating expenses of his farm. The speaking in Missouri. It is, appear- through the hands of any middlemen. prices for which we are forced to sell been published far and wide, that the In accepting pay for advocating his all interested in the cotton staple. and proud family, but the hope of dis-tinction induced him to accept of the ter, with a preoccupied look upon his line with Marshall P. Wilder or any the ginners are the only reliable other vaudeville "star."

It is interesting to observe that this with the intricate workings of the opinions, and although the chevalier ingredients," and it is also interesting sustaining the reputation earned. thinks proper to compromise his no- to observe that the chief objection A tall, portly old gentleman of some tion was Picard's round face, giving it that "Bryan certainly must know that sixty years of age is he, and one who a very comical appearance. that Bryan certainly must know that sixty years of age is he, and one who as a friend would be true, and as an "Very well," said De Linieres, "I will enact no law that would curtail "You will!" exclaimed Picard, in the privileges or conflict with the in- and publication of these statistics at short of indifference will stand in the extra session of congress would, there-"I will do as I have said, on one fore, simply be a waste of money and December 13, respectively; and the a profitable one by giving it that at-> law that would curtail the privileges coal barons and giant corporations Bryan in The Commoner. Mr. Bryan then answers his own question in this

The plain and simple answer, readisenate, representing a party that derives its campaign funds from the coal barons and giant corporations coma waste of money and energy because Do you pretend not to know that the Republican party is the benefici-he killed the Marquis De Presless in a ary of the trusts and its representacontravention to the policies of these lice must be kept advised of all great and enormous aggregations of capital. A very candid confession, indeed, coming from one of the representative Republicans of the west: er should be concerned in such affairs, and yet what intelligent man will say which Picard considered the only proper that such a statement is a sufficient reply to the remedy which Mr. Bryan has suggested for trust impositions?

This whole statement is a sheer fabrication. The facts of the case as published in the Commoner one that 'upon invitation of the Democratic state committee Mr. Bryan delivered twenty speeches in Missouri. The the chevalier any length of time. "I mentioned. The committee never offerthrough Missouri he was asked to send seur, "of course she must be little and replied that he was interested in the saucy, with a jaunty, piquant air. campaign and preferred to contribute his expenses to the campaign fund. consent to his paying his traveling thing but the one satisfactory idea expenses and enclosing a check for "He has probably taken some elegant, quiet little house, the rooms hung in cover his outlay. Mr. Bryan returned velvet, and furnished in silk and the check, saying that his expenses laces, with everything of the sort." did not exceed one hundred dollars "Why, at that rate you will ruin and again asked that the amount be did not exceed one hundred dollars considered and contribution to the to correct its vile slander.

Boxes for Rural Free Delivery. The Postmaster General has issued tion of mail matter carried by the car- tion to the fact that although "Attormuttered to the infinite ter October 1, 1902, these requireand in the manner prescribed by the they have gone right ahead and in-complying with the following speci- a capitalization that may eventually de Vaudrey, and to ask you to prepare 20 standard gauge sheet iron or sheet They seem to indicate that the packhim for the marriage which the steel, and galvanized the edges of ers are skeptical about Mr Knox's "Impose on him?" repeated De upon itself, or by riveting to the industry. Of course, Mr. Knox will "It is a magnificent alliance, edges band iron or steel at least 1-16 take heed of the beef barons' dethe distinguished honors with which inch in width, or by wiring with at ignored such a challenge would be "Have you spoken to the chevalier a box be made of a heavier material for this wicked world." The Sun than 20 gauge, the above require- need not worry about this matter. ments as to reinforcements need not The Attorne-General and the trusts be observed. fluence over him. De Vaudrey entered roadside, so that the carrier can easi- the purpose of hoodwinking the peorefusing to comply with these condi- against the trusts. Great is the tions will be regarded as not desiring hypocrisy of these Republican officials. rural free delivery, and the rural carrier will be directed not to serve them.

In all service heretofore established. and unsuitable boxes are in use, the per. Its editor is Edward Rosewater, Mr. Carnegie is fond of music and, al- the injured numbered 33,711, of whom every man's, a skeleton in the closet. Iv, and in a forced tone. "He wishes and that skeleton was some secret sor- you to accept a position at court, and row that prayed upon his wife, who desires at the same time, that you As the count said this, he watched to the foregoing requirements, if they ed to know by this means whether the administration of the service will put the Census Agents.

REPORTS ON COTTON

With Proper Preparation and Fertil-The Cotton Ginners Should Assist izing it Can be Made Profitable.

Southern farmers cannot be aroused The national government has ap- too fully to the importance of plantpointed local special agents in each ing a considerable area of their farmcounty to collect cotton-ginning statis- ing lands in wheat during the next ties and we join the government in sections where our lands are favorable urging the cotton ginners of this to its growth and profitable developcounty to give the agent appointed to ment. The price of provisions and all kinds and cooperation, thus enabling him to of commodities used on the farm are ent year. The average product of the do the work in it their hearty support make prompt and accurate returns, continually advancing in price. Provision bills within the past twelve We would impress upon the ginners an. Recently the Missouri State Re- the fact that this agent is a sworn months have almost been prohibitory publican, published at St. Louis, said: officer of the Government, and that to the farmer who has been heretofore ably double. The greater part of their reports, are forwarded as given depending upon his cotton crop to pay to him directly to the census office.

ently, a purely commercial proposition The information given is held as our cotton is not on a parity with the with him. He must know, for it has strictly confidential, and the opera- high prices which we have to pay for tions of individual ginners are not divulged. Upon the joint co-operation The margin of difference has been too men in actual control of the Missouri of the cotton growers, ginners, and heavy in favor of the seller of such Democracy have declared against the local agents must depend the success commodities as we have been in the issue which he himself raised and of the census office in this inquiry, which is the only possible excuse for and its ability to render this great of profit on our money crop to about ty, the guardian of the Chevalier Mau- ous, that a man of spirit like myself his continuance on the political stage. service to the Southern people and to the cost of production. We could bet-Count de Linieres was of a very old and proud family, but the hope of disand proud family, but the hope of disand proud family, but the hope of disand proud family and proud family but the hope of disand proud source of information as to the volume of the annual cotton crop. This our cotton for 8 cents. The crop of vorth.

It is interesting to observe that this lume of the annual cotton from the ginners, is very complimentary to the ginners, Bryan's suggestions have "some good who, no doubt, will feel a pride in most sections of the cotton belt, tak-In recognition of this interest shortness of the staple. Ordinarily can not compromise my which this Republican paper presents shown by the ginners, and of a geneto Mr. Bryan's proposed remedies is ral demand for more frequent reports through this source, Congress, in the act creating a permanent census office, provided for the collection

> For the crop of 1902 the office will area of land on every farm in this valfinal report will cover the total quan-And why "a waste of money and tity ginned from the growth of 1902. Realizing that the collection of the data for these reports is made at a season when the ginners' time is greatly taxed, and appreciating the necessity for prompt returns, the census office has located in each county containing ten or more ginneries an agent, who will visit each ginnery in the county and secure a report of the quent and hurried reports now sought, it is of vital importance that the returns be made with absolute uniformity, and that all be received at Washington at one time. This result could not beexpected from individual requests made by mail of 30,-000 ginners, at a time when they are engrossed in their ginning work. Furthermore, the census ofchanges in the management and operation of these establishments. and secure returns from all new and revived plants. To accomplish such results, it becomes necessary for the office to have local representatives who shall be charged with the duty of keeping in close touch with the ginning industry in each county, and of promptly reporting the quantity of cotton ginned. The statistics for the October report will be collected during the week "Of course I will," exclaimed Picard, twenty speeches in Missouri. The now perfectly willing to remain with subject of compensation was never and gillions should keep such records thought he would not disgrace the ed and Mr. Bryan never asked for as will enable them to furnish prompt-Certain-le beauty through Missouri he was asked to send returns will be tabulated, and the re-ant, but highly lucrative.

BIRDS GET NEW NAMES.

Titles of South American

Feathered Creatures.

on every hand. He realizes that outside of a small group of ornithologists scientific names for American birds.

ican and English scientists.

This is the first time in the history

Churches Threaten Popularity.

of Ancient Instruments.

the summer as the guest of Andrew Avenue Collegiate church, in an interview told of the development of Mr.

Carnegie's philanthropic plans, of his intention to return to the United

"Mr. Carnegie is a very busy man.

anyway, and there will be no change

THE people of Chester are arranging be urged to be there.

tune. Mr. Mackay said:

through Missouri he was asked to send in a statemnt of his expenses and he in a statemnt of his expenses and he their receipt at Washington. Cotton statistic collected through the commercial system, however accurately compiled, fall short of the When he reached home, however, he demand of both producer and manufound a letter from the committee facturer—first, in that as they cover saying that the committee would not the quantity of cotton marketed between September 1 of one year and two hndred dollars with a request that August 31 of the following, they are not statistics of a crop grown in any one year; and second, in the liability to error involved in statistics so compiled. Nothing short of official reports, made sufficiently early to form a basis of prices, will entirely satisfy the cotton grower or manucampaign fund. Now these are the facturer. It is gratifying to know facts in the case, but the mendacious that the South has the assistance and co-operation of the Government in bringing about the result they desire. an undertaking the success of which now depends upon the cotton growers and ginners themselves.

Understand Each Other. The Baltimore Sun directs attenney General Knox announced last which will bring the trusts under subdelight of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection" it is evident "the Chicago on the control of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection" it is evident "the Chicago on the control of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection it is evident "the Chicago of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection it is evident "the Chicago of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection it is evident "the Chicago of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection it is evident "the Chicago of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection it is evident "the Chicago of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection it is evident to the chicago of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection it is evident to the chicago of the gamins who heard him, ments shall be observed. Each perjection it is evident to the chicago of the gamins who heard him, which is the chicago of the gamins who heard him the chicago of the gamins who heard him, which is the chicago of the gamins who heard him, which is the chicago of the gamins who heard him, which is the chicago of the gamins who had a state of the gam meat packers attach no weight to the service must erect at his own cost, attorney general's declarations, for regulations of the Department, a box | corporated a trust in New Jersey with exceed half a billion dollars Little Material .- All square and oblong incidents of this kind," says The Sun, ened either by folding the metal back to thwart the plans of our captains of which will complete the measure of inch in thickness and at least one-half finace. An attorney general who least No. 10 gauge wire; provided, if altogether too amiable and forgiving understand each other. The trusts Each box must be erected by the know that Knox was only talking for ly obtain access to it without dis- ple into voting for the Republican mounting from his vehicle. The candidates for congress in next week's county. "I am glad to see you. The same box must not be used for more election. After the election the trusts than one family, except in case of know that Knox will find some way to near relatives or those residing in the | so modify his opinion that congress same house. Persons neglecting or will not be called upon to do anything

A Candid Confession

The Omaha Bee is a Republican paone of the shrewdest politicians and commenting upon an article that up- austerity of the Scotch service. peared in The Commoner. Mr. Rosewater said:

the coal barons and suppress the trusts by calling a special session of not be ready for occupancy by that congress is about as senseless as the time, but they have decided to come In the opinion of Senator Depew proposition to settle the coal miners' selle, but you must not get discouraged was a great struggle going on in his it takes several days, for we can mind.

"Marry?" asked De Vaudrey, as though he could not believe his uncle injudicious and tends to unsettle Bryan certainly must know that the injudicious and tends to unsettle Bryan certainly must know that the The countess waited as anxiously for values. It may be remembered that Senate as at present constituted will for a big veterans' rally to be held on De Vaudrey's answer as did ner hus-band, although from a different reason. Citude for the stability of values when privileges or conflict with the inter-band although from a different reason. Citude for the stability of values when privileges or conflict with the inter-have Confederate veterans attend from the little three for a quart-large confederate veterans attend from the little three for a performance of the little three for a quart-have Confederate veterans attend from the little three for a performance of the little three for a quart-have Confederate veterans attend from the little three for a performance of the little three for a quart-have Confederate veterans attend from the little three for a performance of the little three f She loved the young man before her. and his happiness and well-being were the blowing up of the Maine. There porations commonly called trusts. An Carolina. The Governor of North failures, hard times and depression as tenth as much brains as he has their is nothing so important as a proper extra session of congress would, there-

SOWING WHEAT IN THE SOUTH. BUSY ARIZONA BEES. HOTEL FOR WORKMEN

Hidden Places.

Tons of the Treasure Taken from the Flowers of the Southwestern Desert - Great Sport for Honey Hunters.

The greatest crop of honey ever known in Arizona is that of the presterritory is somewhat in cacess of for supplies and all other costs for the | cago, reports the Chroniele. Stronge as it may seem, the mes-quite and cactus, which flourish without water, provide the bees with a honey far superior to that from cultivated plants, and the blossom and fruit of the cactus are even better than the mesquite blossom. Th. mest handsome of desert flowers habit of buying, reducing the margin grow on the hundreds of varieties of cactus. One of the most beautiful is that of the Coreus Giganious, the organ eactus, generally known by its ter afford to run the all cotton system spantsh appellation of the "saguara," Arizona's trust typical plant, that towers in great, green, fluted shafts, vailing for supplies, than to buy prothe most conspicuous and oddest subvisions at the present prices and sell ject on all the plains. In the late springtime each saguara is crowned cotton this year has been short in by a mass of brilliant, silken white flowers, sometimes over 100 in a ing into consideration especially the bunch. Each blossom is about four inches across. Nearly all develop to farmers are quite busy with their cotfruit, the "petahava," the most ton during the time that should be palatable of the wild products, and in taken up in preparing their lands for the blessom and the free the wild wheat. This trouble, however, will bees and the tamed ones find the esnot be on us this fall, and nothing sence of honey. The prickly pear, the night-blooming cereus, the cholla, the doubly barbed terror of the desert, the ocatilia and many others give issue three reports; the first two will uable grain crop. The first question honey to the bees, while the wild roses of the rocks and the thousands up to and including October 18 and whether or not the crop can be made of smaller flowers aid in furnishing tention which is necessary to secure known to the apiaries. the best results. The question of an

In the Salt River valley bees work extensive area is not important. A for a longer period than in any other few acres properly prepared and high- locality, a crop of 200 pounds of ly fertilized will turn out a heavier honey to each hive being not unusual, yield than double the number of acres while an average of 100 pounds for on poorly prepared land with little or the season is maintained. From no fertilizers. The general unfamil- Phoenix and Tempe alone are shipped iarity of our people with this crop about 1,000,000 pounds of honey each renders it necessary to discuss in de- year, nearly all of it being separated tail many of the important features or strained.

essential in making an effort to se- The wild bees of the desert and cure the best results. This I shall en- mountains provide an interesting deavor to cover as fully as possible in study and honey-hunting is a most this article. There are many success- unique spott, which is not without its ful wheat growers in the South annu- dangers, but with recompense suffially turning out as heavy yields per ciently delightful to repay one for its acre as is made on the best lands in difficulties. In the cavities of the the great wheat regions of the West. highest rocks the bees gather in The possibilities of our southern soils great swarms and store their supply to meet competition from any section of food. With remarkable sagacity has been fully established not only by they choose the most inaccessible experiments, but by hundreds of prac- spots and frequently find places tical farmers in yearly yields of the which baffle all ingenuity of even the different crops planted. No man Indian, the most persistent seeker of should ever become discouraged in honey. Frequently great hoards of making an earnest, active effort to honey are found in caves and down provide the food crops necessary for the sides of steep cliffs, where thousustaining all the requirements of his sands of bees have stored their family and farm animals. It is the products for perhaps scores of years, key note to successful farming in the and sometimes as much as a thou-South where conditions not only ren- sand pounds of honey are taken from der diversified farming possible, but such places. The Indian bee hunter makes that system of farming imper- many times risks his life to obtain ative. A full appreciation of our mag- the nectar of the wild bees, and nificient resources, and a determina- swings himself at the end of a frail tion to take advantage of them, will rope, far down the sides of a steep within a few years make every such precipice. Neither is his danger endfarmer independent and secure for ed there, for if not well protected him a business which is not only pleas- from the onslaught of the bees, sometimes in dense swarms of thousands he is likely to become a victim of the angry defenders. Indeed, not long since a Papago young man was stung English Substituted for Foreign so badly while robbing a wild hive that he died soon after his comrades had pulled him up to the top of the cliff. Robert Ridgway, chief ornithologist On the desert, too, the bees make of the Smithsonian institution, has their homes, sometimes swarming in about completed the unusual task of the shell of the decayed cactus and popularizing the literature of birds by often in caves along arroyos and the inventing plain and appropriate Eng- beds of the large streams. Very often lish names for some 5,000 or more South they swarm close to the agricultural and Central American varieties that districts and it is a frequent and very have, of course, Spanish names, by easy thing for the ranchers to gather which they are known in the country them into hives and hold them. One where they are common, and also rancher a few miles southeast of names of Latin derivation by which Phoenix has on his property a small they are known to science, but which isolated butte, near the top of which are destitute of plain English names. is a small cave. From this piece of Mr. Ridgway takes the view that rock the owner has gathered honey English is now the dominant tongue, enough to pay for his ranch. Several and that as a language it is becoming years ago a great swarm of bees setmore universal in its application every tled in the cave and the owner has day; so much, in fact, that the demand gradually tamed them, and each year for plain English terms in law, educa- gathers from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds of tion, science, etc., has come to be felt honey from them. Something Like a Covey.

few people know or care to learn the Two old hunters were swapping scientific names of birds of Greek or yarns and had got to quail. Latin derivation, difficult of pronun-"Why." said one, "I remember ciation and impossible to remember. year when quail were so thick that when plain English terms would serve you could get eight or ten at a shot the purpose quite as well, and in the with a rifle." The other one sighed.

book that he has prepared and which "What's the matter?" said the first. goes to press soon, he has supplied this "I was thinking of my quail hunts. want by employing English in place of I had a fine black horse that I rode everywhere, and one day out hunting of science that such a thing was ever quail I saw a big covey on a low branch of a tree. I threw the bridle attempted and the result will be watched with interest by both Amer- rein over the end of the limb and took a shot.

"Several birds fell and the rest flew ORGANS DISPLACE BAGPIPES. away. Well, sir, there were so many quail on that limb that when -they Gifts of Andrew Carnegie to Scotch flew off it sprang back into place and hung my horse!"-Los Angeles Times.

Browne-Who is that clumsy wom-Home from Scotland, after spending an dancing over there? Greene-I don't know; but certain-Carnegie, at Skibo castle, Rev. Donald ly hers is not a horseless carriage, is Sage Mackay, pastor of the Fifth it?-Judge. Shoemaking at Lynn, In Lynn, Mass., the center of the shoe trade, the factories are running negie's cooperation with her husband enced in getting enough hands to do thus showing a remarkably close relain dispensing the great Carnegie for- the work. The number of passengers killed in His latest benefaction was to provide railroad accidents in the United States the churches of Scotland with organs. during the year ended June 30 last, Thus far, his secretary told me, orders have been given for 350 instruments, ranging in value from $1,500 to 303, and 6,089 were injured. The $3,500 each, so that nearly $1,000,000 number of employees killed was 2,516, though his munificence threatens the 19,902 were trainmen. Kansas. Boston missonaries have in- services- passed on like a common vaded the Hawaiian islands with a laborer." Can the Journal give us "Mrs. Carnegie has entered heart novel plan tor reaching glory. They any good reason why a judge should and soul into her husband's plans, are selling the natives passports to receive any more consideration in a "William Jennings Bryan's latest Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie and their daugh- heaven, through tickets as it were, republic where all are supposed to be trust remedy has some good ingredi- ter Margaret will return to New York | with stop-over privileges at all points on an equality than a "common laborents, but his proposition to squelch on the steamship St. Louis early in of interest en route. It takes the er" who may be employed by the November. Their New York home will New England saints to look after the State? interests of the colored brother in all climes. THE Spartanburg Journal calls at-Large Store of Sweets Laid Up in Chicago Laboring Men to Be Given a Modern and Cheap Hostelry.

And the Band Played On.

J. W. Gossard and A. Montgomery Ward Considering Plans to Build an Institution Similar to Mills' Hotel, at New York.

J. W. Gossard and A. Montgomery Ward, both well-known students of practical sociological problems, may back a movement to give to Chicago 2,000,000 pounds. This year it will be a hotel for workingmen similar to far in excess of that amount -prob- the Mills hotel in New York. The two men have not discussed the matter personally, but the subject was broached to Mr. Gossard by John H. Bogue, representing Mr. Ward.

"I have had such a hotel in mind for some time," said Mr. Gossard, "and I would like to go in with some capitalist and erect one, or I would head a stock company for the purpose. Mr. Ward has found me in the right mood for joining him if a hotel can be erected according to my ideas, gained from personal experience among the people whom such an institution would benefit. "In the first place, it should be situated in the downtown district, within the loop if possible. It should be at least 12 stories high and of the most modern fireproof construction, and living could be had on both the American and European plans. On the American plan the highest price would be one dollar per day and on the European plan the lodging would be at the rate of about 20 cents per night. Every modern sanitary convenience would enter into the construction; there would be a bath in every room, tubs in the higher-priced rooms and shower baths in the rest. The meals would be moderate in price and there would be two restaurants, one serving a vegetable diet only, the other a mixed diet. "There should be a free employment agency, a free dispensary for the sick, and bath treatment rooms for those who are obliged to get the 'red licker' out of their systems before they can brace up. The vegetarian diet will be a part of the treatment. There will be provisions for laundry work, which will be done at a merely nominal rate. There should be bowling alleys and billiard tables, but no bar. "An important adjunct to the hotel would be the assembly-room, or auditorium. Here should be carried on the Higher Practical Education society meetings and the work that the society has been doing at the Jones school all summer. The hotel should be under the auspices of the society. and be used to carry out its plan of work among those who need its help. should give my personal attention to the management of the hotel and direct also the work of the Higher Practical Education society." SKATING POND FOR CO-EDS.

Prof. Crook, of Northwestern University, Has Scheme to Keep Students in Evanston.

Certain social distractions at Northwestern university, at Evanston, III. of which there has been much complaint by the parents of the students at the institution, may be stopped if the plans of Prof. Algie R. Crook to construct a skating rink materialize. Prof. Crook has announced his intention of utilizing for the purpose the vacant half-block just north of Willard hall, the home of the co-eds. He would have the university authorities prepare the lots so that they may be flooded before cold weather. The concrete sidewalks would serve as banks for the pools on three sides. Fraternity men, who have heard of Prof. Crook's scheme, have offered to build seats for the skaters, and suggest that each secret society build one and name it after the fraternRy. On account of the proximity of the lots to the dormitories the young women are taking kindly to the proposition. They laugh at the suggestion that it is a scheme to keep them away from the Chicago parks, where "American Supremacy." In the new issue of the London Fortnightly Review there appears an anonymous article on "American Supremacy," says the New York Tribune, that is likely to attract much attention. The author considers the notion of Europe being overwhelmed by the boundless production of the United States a most fantastic figment of the imagination. Upon the new president's recognition of the limits of American supremacy, he argued, the commercial and political fortunes of the whole world may in no little degree depend. He goes on to show that England will make a bad mistake if she · opposes the wishes of America in regard to the isthmian canal. The United States should hold the iron keys of the gate of the two oceans, and should have the power to close it against many of them go skating in the winenemies. Wood Pulp and Paper Industry. An interesting bulletin has just been issued by the census office, showing the remarkable increase in the wood pulp and paper industry of the United States. It shows that the establishments have increased in ten years from 649 to 763, or 17.6 per cent., while the capital has jumped from $89,829,548 in 1890 to $167,507,713, an increase of 86.5 per cent. The wage account is now $10,746,426, an increase of 57.1 per cent., while the value of the products has risen from $78,937,184 in 1800 to States in November and of Mrs. Car- full time, and great difficulty is experi- $127.286,162 in 1900, an increase of 61.2. tion between wages and product.

THE Spartanturg Journal says: "The Pobevile Press and Banner is confined to his room with perhaps a must have been expended in this way. of whom 1,507 were trainmen, while mortal illness. Surely we have come upon a materialistic age when a chief justice of the supreme court must According to Senator Burton, of answer a roll call daily and have his

THE following is going the rounds: 'Wm. Jennings Bryan has $168,000 tention to the fact that Grover in bank, a home that cost $40,000 and Cleveland has scratched out of the an income of $1,500 a week. In 1896 tomb to give out one of his ponderous his resources amounted to $100,000."