The people need competition in the banking business as well as in any other line, and if the new bank will compete and lessen charges for obtaining money. it will solve the deportation of the negroup opposed to the negroup opposed to the deportation of the negroup opposed to the deportation of the negroup opposed to the new bank will compete and lessen charges for obtaining money, it will be a benefit to the community otherwise not. Then there is another way to look for benefit from competing banks; in this town some of the officers of the bank are also interested in other business, and there is a feeling on the outside, that these officers have an advantage of business information they do not like for competitors in the bank-a decided advantage. It is a common practice in the for the financial standing of men, and business men are jealous of their ratebusiness world to apply to local banks ing, they would rather not have their financial rating fixed by men who are in the same business as themselves. Therefore if a new bank is established its officers ought not to be engaged in business in competition with the bank's patrons, and it will, in time, share the increased banking business that competing banks will create.
